"Cross-country is a longer distance to run and it's a lot harder. You have to be mentally prepared to run and I just like it a lot better," said Ellis.

For Ellis training for the running seasons is a year-round task, "In the summer I try to run twenty miles per week and on Tuesdays and Thursdays there is a group that meets and runs together. I also like to run the Bellin to see where I'm at. This year I ran with the group from the Oneida Fitness Center and I did okay I ran it in around 51 minutes."

Competing for that final varsity spot on a team that has a great shot to make it to state is something Ellis and her close friend do on a daily basis.

"One of my best friends and I, we compete for that seventh varsity spot every week and we're always within a few seconds of each other, it's so crazy. Our varsity team is phenomenal, I think they have a really good shot at going to state. But we do have some good competition with other schools."

When Ellis does not claim a varsity spot she competes on the junior varsity squad where she continues to run her hardest and improve he times.

As for her senior year Ellis plans to be a mainstay on solid Freedom team. She also has thoughts of running cross-country at the college level in the near future. Ellis said, "When I look at colleges I look to see if they have a cross-country program and I always keep that in mind."

Join Loretta Metoxen as she discusses various aspects of the Oneida soldier's participation in the Civil War. The Oneida Indians, the first allies of the thirteen colonies during the Revolutionary War, were removed from their New York homelands to Wisconsin in the early 1800s. Despite the broken treaties, they eagerly volunteered for the Union Army during the Civil War. More than 10% of the Oneida community served and at least 46 of those were either killed, missing in action or died of disease. Thirty two Oneida soldiers remain buried in the South and the Oneidas would like to bring their remains home.

Reconstruction work begins on of US 41 near Mason St.

Brown County construction requires shifting northbound traffic next week

Green Bay, WI – The Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) Northeast Region office announced that work has begun as of Monday, September 12, on the reconstruction of a one-mile segment of northbound US 41 between 9th Street and Larsen Road in Brown County. The project will eventually expand this section of the highway to three through lanes in each direction. The project also includes the construction of a collector-distributor (C-D) roadway with up to three lanes for both northbound and southbound traffic, between the Mason Street and WIS 29 interchanges. A C-D roadway is a separate road running parallel to US 41, designed to provide better traffic flow by eliminating weaving (lane shifts occurring simultaneously by multiple motorists) in this heavily traveled area.

The project is part of the $29 million reconstruction of the Mason Street interchange scheduled to begin February 1, 2012. The contractor for the project is Vinton Construction, Manitowoc.

Traffic impacts which started on Monday, September 12 include:

- Nighttime lane closures on northbound US 41 near Mason Street, Monday through Wednesday from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m.
- Northbound US 41 off-ramp to Mason Street closed Monday and Tuesday from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m.
- On Wednesday, September 14, northbound US 41 traffic was switched to the existing southbound lanes, with two lanes in each direction, from 9th Street to Larsen Road. This traffic pattern will remain in place until new northbound lanes are completed in 2012
- Reduced speed limit to 55 mph

The project includes the reconstruction of the northbound US 41 bridge over 9th Street. Work begins on Monday, September 19 and requires the closure of the 9th Street underpass to all traffic for approximately eight weeks.

All lane restrictions are weather dependent and subject to change.

Motorists are encouraged to seek alternate routes. Please use extreme caution and remain alert when driving through this or any work zone.

About the US 41 Project

WisDOT is initiating expansion and improvement of 31 miles of US 41 in Brown and Winnebago Counties. The project will include road expansion to accommodate increased traffic volume, 40 new roundabouts, improved interchanges and expansion of the Lake Butte des Morts Causeway. Current construction information and details about the project can be found at www.www.US41wisconsin.gov or by calling the project hotline: (920) 492-4120.

Whitebreast runs to honor sister and prevent suicide

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

When Dirk Whitebreast's sister Darcy Jo Keahna committed suicide at the age of 18, Whitebreast turned to running to help deal with the loss. Now the Sac and Fox citizen is running 10 marathons in 30 days to bring attention to the high suicide rate of Native American youth.

"I'm always asking myself 'what more can I do?' and I'm always trying to find out what I'm made of," he said.

Whitebreast lives in Tama, Iowa and serves as secretary on the Sac and Fox Tribal Council. He kicked off his quest in Wisconsin running the North Face Endurance Challenge in Eagle finishing with a time of 6:04:32 on Saturday, September 17. The next day, he completed the Community First Fox Cities Marathon with a time of 5:40:43.

Initially, Whitebreast had the idea to run 10 marathons in one month just to see if he could do it.

"I have friends around me who supported me, who didn't think I was crazy for wanting to do it," he said. "They were kind of pushing me to 'well, why don't you do it for something, instead of just doing it, why don't you run for a reason?'"

After some brainstorming, Whitebreast decided to run in memory of his sister who committed suicide on March 28, 2003.

Dirk Whitebrest of the Sac and Fox Nation, in blue shirt, met with Ho-Chunk youth at the Wittenberg Youth and Learning Center's Community Action Plan on Suicide Prevention on Sunday, September 18. Whitebreast attempting to run 10 marathons in 30 days to bring awareness to the high rate of suicide of Native American young people.

"I was actually living down in Lawrence when all of this happened, when I found out about my sister.

I can remember those things like they were yesterday," he said. "I had gotten a phone call, and Tama's five hours away from Lawrence, so it was a really long drive home. But that was also the last day I ever drank alcohol, it was then and there that I made that decision that I've got to change. … I wasn't in the best of places in my own life at that time.

"I knew that there was going to come a point in time eventually in my life where I would have to step up and be the man that I was supposed to be for my family."

Running became part of his healing process when he found an old pair of sneakers he wore when mowing the lawn.

"I didn't know that running was going to be in my future. I knew sobriety was going to be in my future, but I had no idea that running was going to take me where it's taken me," he said.

When Whitebreast decided to make his combined 262 mile run, he went online and found the Center for Native American Youth at the Aspen Institute's website.

"I got really emotional because the message that was being delivered and everything that I had read sunk in, this sound like me. Everything that they're saying sounds like they're reaching out to me," he said of the website.

The Center for Native American Youth director Erin Bailey stated the Center had been founded February 28, 2011 with a $1 million donation from Senator Byron Dorgan's leftover campaign funds.

"What we're focused on is bringing national attention to these issues to suicide prevention and all the kind of issues in Indian Country that go into that. Health disparities, law enforcement, education, etc. and really being a resource for tribes, and also kind of tracking successful programs and best practices and being able to relay that information back to communities," said Bailey.

Whitebreast is also reaching out to Native American youth in the areas around the sites of his runs.

"After I started looking at my scheduled marathons, there was an Indian community nearby in every one of the places," said Whitebreast.

So far, he's met with the Ho-Chunk Pac Haci Youth Council and plans to give a talk at Marquette University.

"Tribes have reached out because they've been inspired by his story and his commitment to being a role model for youth," said Bailey.

Judge denies request to delay U.P. mining permit

By John Flesher
AP Environmental Writer

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) ~ A judge Wednesday dealt another blow to opponents of a planned nickel and copper mine in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, refusing to delay initial underground blasting until their appeal of state permits for the project runs its course.

Circuit Judge Paula Manderfield of Ingham County rejected a motion to delay implementation of a mining permit that the state Department of Environmental Quality issued to Kennecott Eagle Minerals Co. in 2007. Manderfield is considering opponents' appeal of the DEQ's decision and said she would issue a ruling in four to six weeks. The opposition wanted her to order Kennecott not to begin drilling the underground entry tunnel until she rules on the appeal. But following a hearing, she declined.

"Kennecott appreciates the court's thoughtful consideration of the merits in this case," Kennecott president Adam Burley said. "While we are pleased that the ruling enables us to continue forward with productive progress and associated job creation, we remain sensitive to the concerns of others and will continue to seek opportunities for conversation."

Kennecott Eagle, a subsidiary of the Anglo-Australian mining company Rio Tinto PLC, is targeting an underground ore deposit in northwestern Marquette County that is expected to yield up to 300 million pounds of nickel and about 200 million pounds of copper, plus smaller amounts of other metals.

The groups fighting the mine are the National Wildlife Federation, the Huron Mountain Club, the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community and the Yellow Dog Watershed Preserve. They contend the mine would pollute groundwater and streams in the remote Yellow Dog Plains area of northwestern Marquette County.

Kennecott Eagle promises to protect the environment and says the mine would create hundreds of jobs in the economically struggling region.

Of particular concern to opponents is Eagle Rock, a 60-foot-high outcrop that the Keweenaw Bay tribe considers sacred ground.

Manderfield's ruling Wednesday opens the way for Kennecott Eagle to begin blasting.

Michelle Halley, attorney for the National Wildlife Federation, said Manderfield didn't appear to consider Eagle Rock a place of worship and did not accept the opponents' warnings that the mine's rock ceiling is poorly designed and could collapse.

Natural Areas Map Spotlight on Quarry Park

By Sylvia Cornelius
Environmental Project Manager

Tyenʌyokwátha? Tsi Tyutate?nikuhlolyáhtha? is the Oneida name for Quarry or "where they break the stone". It is location number four on the "Oneida Reservation Parks, Trails, & Natural Areas Map." This large natural area consists of 160 acres and has two access points along North Overland Road. The site can also be accessed from County J.

There are many highlights to this natural area, one of which is a five acre lake with a canoe launch. Duck Creek flows through the property and there are great hiking trails all through the area. The trail system contains rolling hills and some steep inclines, wildlife watching opportunities and many culturally significant plants for an ideal nature hiking experience. An amazing selection of wild edible plants can be found here in the spring. These include Wild Onion, Wild Leek, Morel, Wild Ginger and Fiddleheads. Other plants include Sharp Lobed Hepatica, Jack in the Pulpit, Spring Beauty, Skunk Cabbage, Trout Lily, Trillium, Jewelweed, Horsetail, Heal All, Great Blue Lobelia, Spotted Joe Pyeweed, Sneezeweed, Wild Bergamot, Milkweed and many more! Make sure you watch out for Wood Nettle and Poison Ivy along the trails and visit during the month of May for a wide variety of spring flowers in bloom.

You will often find families fishing here for Largemouth Bass, Crappie, Bluegill, Bullhead, Northern and Walleye. White Suckers and Carp also reside in the lake. The site provides visitors with an opportunity to view wildlife such as Mallards and Wood Ducks, Canada Geese, Wood and Snapping Turtles, Wood and Green Frogs. In addition, you will find a shelter and picnic area with a grill and low-impact camping sites. ATV's are not allowed at this location.

According to the Onʌyote?a·ká· Ohnekanusho·kú "All of the Waters of Oneida" Water Resources Report (2011), the Quarry is a man-made five-acre pond. In the early 1880s, Oneida men quarried this site and used the stone for the Episcopal Church, located in central Oneida. It filled with groundwater and today it is a popular fishing location.

Material is planned to be used from the quarry for the Oneida Lake Project. In return Environmental Health & Safety will modify the quarry to improve nursery habitat for fish.

Bow hunting only is allowed at this natural area. For information on hunting and fishing regulations contact the Oneida Conservation Office at 920-869-1450. If you would like a copy of the Oneida Reservation Parks, Trails & Natural Areas Map please contact Sylvia Cornelius at 869-1600. Maps are also available at the Oneida Conservation Office, N8047 County Road U in Oneida.

Dayton asks Congress for help with invasive carp

St. Paul, MN (AP) – Gov. Mark Dayton outlined an urgent case Monday for stopping invasive Asian carp from spreading widely in Minnesota's waters, convening a summit where he said the state will need help from Congress and where officials discussed whether a Mississippi River lock and dam in Minneapolis should be permanently closed.

At the meeting billed as a "carp summit," the first-term Democratic governor said the state risks running out of time to block the spread after scientists last month found DNA evidence of Asian carp in the St. Croix River along the Minnesota-Wisconsin border. Dayton's draft action plan calls on Congress to grant authority for emergency dam closures if invasive carp are found downstream. Other measures are also on the table, such as an air-bubbling barrier at the St. Croix mouth.

"We owe it to future generations to do everything we possibly can to prevent this, because an ounce of prevention is worth about a ton of cure when it comes to these situations," Dayton told reporters after the meeting.

Asian carp have been spreading up the Mississippi River basin since they escaped from fish farms in the 1980s, devastating native fish populations as they disrupt the aquatic food chain by devouring plankton. They can jump 10 feet out of the water, posing a danger to boaters. State officials are concerned that the carp will permanently harm Minnesota's rivers and lakes if they flourish here.

The summit included congressional staffers, state lawmakers and representatives from Canada, Wisconsin, the White House Council on Environmental Quality and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. Dayton said he plans a follow-up meeting involving Minnesota's members of Congress next month.

"We have a problem. It is on our doorstep and we need to act quickly," Natural Resources Commissioner Tom Landwehr said.

One of the options would be emergency closures of the Upper St. Anthony Falls lock and dam in Minneapolis and the Ford Dam in St. Paul - both on the Mississippi River. Closing either would require an act of Congress because the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is not currently allowed to shut locks and dams to prevent the spread of invasive species. The draft action plan also calls for a feasibility study of permanently shutting down the Upper St. Anthony Falls lock and dam, part of a two-lock system that lifts boats over the falls.

I've Graduated from College… Now What Do I Do?

A positive attitude is key for post college life

By Mitch Metoxen
Assistant Manager Oneida Higher Education

Hello everyone, this is Mitch Metoxen, Assistant Manager Oneida Higher Education. My subject in our Higher Education article series is "what do I do now that I've graduated college?" This entire series gave general advice for persons who think post-secondary education (education after high school) is for them. Now that you've successfully committed yourself and earned your degree, how do you find that dream job and is there such a thing as a dream job.

Questions like "how do I begin looking for a job," "where am I going to live," "how do I start paying bills," and "should I go on for more schooling" may be hitting you all at once. In today's economy, combined with the privilege of the Oneida Higher Education Grant, you may think your only option is to jump right into more schooling. If more schooling is not for you and I believe it is not always the best choice, then how do you go about getting that job you've been preparing for?

If you've been following the advice from our previous articles, such as choosing the right college, taking advantage of extracurricular activities, taking leadership roles on campus, working part-time, internships, job shadows, informational interviews, getting to know your professors/instructors, etc., you'll have a good head start to enter the workforce.

I feel I have to first mention that we in Higher Education do not get to counsel on this subject very often. Meaning, once you've graduated, we rarely have clients ask us for advice on finding a job. Though I've had some training in this area, I had to do most of my own research, consisting of the internet and one of my favorite past-times, listening to Wisconsin Public Radio. All the advice boiled down to three things, networking, doing your homework on potential employers and keeping a positive outlook.

Thunderhawk Times

Thunderhawk Times

By Natasha Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

"Thunderhawk Times" all started a few years back with then-ONHS social studies teacher and athletic director Lance Kelly. Kelly wanted more coverage of Oneida's athletes, sports teams, the school, and he put students to work writing about these topics.

This year the Thunderhawk Time's staff has 19 writers: Anthony Cornelius, Cody Cornelius, Kayla Danforth, Brandon Doxtator, Terrill Gutierrez, Avery King, Lakota Martinez, Noelle Metoxen, Geronimo Pocan, Mathew Powless, Edward Powless, Shawntel Skenadore, Tyler Stevens, Joelle Thomas, Luis Webster, RJ Webster, David White, and me, Natasha.

Our journalism class is piloted by Denis Gullickson and Carmen Metty. Like years past, we have been and will be doing stories on our sports teams, sports games, classes, students, teachers, field trips, and other school-related pursuits. We'll be in every bi-weekly issue.

We have already met with Dawn Walschinski, the editor of the Kalihwisaks. She said "I like getting stories about the school."

I hope you can support us and keep up on our articles from students of ONHS. This school year is going to be a good one, so don't miss out!

Name that Senior

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

I am a senior at Oneida Nation High School. I tried something different for a while and attended Southwest High School for a semester, but I'm back.

I currently reside in Green Bay, and live with my mother, father, and brother. I favor a few classes in school: Science Research, World History, & Gary's.

My future plan is to go to school to become a mechanic. Outside of school I like to mainly just hang out with friends.

Some quick fun facts about me are; my favorite food is enchiladas, favorite colors are green and blue, and my favorite TV show is Waynes Bro's.

My favorite sport to play is baseball, and my favorite baseball team is the Brewers. My favorite celebrity is Tasha Stevens, she is also my role model, just because she's that awesome.

Words I live by are "Noelle's the best person ever."

Who am I?

Think you know David White?

By Anthony Cornelius
Thunderhawk Times

He says, "My name is Tʌ́wet now-a-days." He is a junior this year. Tʌ́wet has gone to ONHS since he was a freshman, but has been in the school system since he was in kindergarten. He obviously hasn't attended any other schools.

He currently resides in "O-Town." The people that he lives with are his mom, dad, and brother.

When asked how his grades were this year he said, "Just started the school year. So, all A's!"

His schedule this year is "manageable." David says he likes the creative classes at school. He doesn't participate in any extra-curricular activities.

He was asked what he knew about the Oneida Language and Culture, his response was, "It's hard to learn but very interesting."

His plans for the future are to go to college and be successful. He listens to the "good" kind of music and his favorite color is red. He said he could be a vegetarian, but "then there's chicken."

I had asked him who his hero or role model was, he said, "Morgan Freeman because he's the best actor ever."

Tʌ́wet wants to be a doctor when he gets older.

His words of advice or motto to live by are "Ciao."

When questioned about his football knowledge whether he was a Bear or a Packer fan he told me he's not a football fan but he chooses the Packers.

He wants people to know that it's Coke over Pepsi and horror over comedy. So, if you thought you knew Tʌ́wet White before, you can say it with confidence now.

The Debt movie review

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

The Debt is an espionage thriller starring Helen Mirren, Tom Wilkinson, and Ciaran Hinds. It is about three Mossad secret agents. They were hired to capture and deliver Dr. Dieter Vogel to Israel to face trial for the crimes he committed during the Holocaust.

The movie takes place in 1997 and 1966. Helen Mirren is played by Jessica Chastain in the memory scenes; she is the main character in this thriller. Dr. Dieter Vogel is played by Jesper Christensen and he makes a great villain.

You will be surprised on how this movie engulfs you into the time periods. You feel as if a twist is coming and lo and behold it arrives, the twist in the movie is one you do not see coming until seconds before it happens. It is about four-fifths of the way through the movie, so it isn't a twist ending. As the movie continues you get closer and closer to the edge of your seat.

This movie was a hidden gem because there were very few advertisements for it. For a movie I saw just out of the blue, it was well worth going to see.

Rating: 3/5. Next movie review is a remake of an old 1971 film, Straw Dogs.

"A Division investing in the future for our Nation and Our Community"

Fourth and final in the series

Development Division: Planning Department

Who We Are

The Oneida Planning Department is made up of a manager, three planners, and a statistician. These employees are a cohesive group of educated and qualified professionals, each of which has a bachelors/masters degree applicable to their respective job description.

What We Do

The staff of the Oneida Planning Department works with all components of the Oneida Nation (legislative, organizational, and community) in continuously creating, implementing, and evaluating a vision for a sustainable future.

The Planning Department provides services and/or support in the following areas:

- Area Development Plans
- Capital Improvement Projects (CIP)
- Community Outreach
- Comprehensive Planning
- Liaison Responsibilities and Coordiantion with all local, tribal, state and national planning entities
- Physical Planning
- Projections (I.e. population, usage)
- Statistical Studies
- Data Collection and Analysis
- Survey Development and Reporting
- Miscellaneous Requests.

The Planning Department is currently involved in Community Sensitive Design (CSD) with the Wisconsin Department of Transportation (DOT). CSD is a process that is used to "weave" a transportation project into a community's architectural, cultural, historical, and environmental fabric. The design of retaining walls, bridges and sound walls will reflect colors, materials, patterns, and architectural details that give a special visual character to a project.

The USH 41 Corridor Expansion Project in Brown County is the most recent project to engage surrounding communities in the design process. The Business Committee was approached by the Department of Transportation (DOT) to participate in the process; this is to ensure true and accurate displays of the Oneida Nation's history and culture.

A core team was established of various Tribal department representatives and artists to work with a transportation consulting firm. Their commitment to the project and ability to work together created thoughtful designs that reflect and represent the Oneida community.

The DOT indicated 5 highway locations for Oneida artists to create designs on the highway structural elements. Those locations along the Hwy 41 corridor include:

- Overpass in Pamperin Park in Howard
- Overpass North of Home Depot/Larsen Road
- Junction of US 41 and 172
- Junction of US 41 and West Mason Street
- Junction of US 41 and Duck Creek
- Highway 54 Bridge
- Retaining Wall along Highway 54
- Roundabout at Highway 172 and Highway 54
- Roundabout at Highway 172/Casino and Airport Entrance
- Roundabout on Highway 54/Seminary Road

Who We Service

The Planning Department mainly works with departments within the organization. But, there are instances where the department is asked to help with requests from individual tribal members. Furthermore, the Planning Department staff interacts with all local, tribal, state and national planning entities, municipalities, governments and public works departments.

The Statistics Office provides statistical analysis of various demographic components of the Oneida membership. Listed below are a few of the specific demographic characteristics with comparisons to "other" populations calculated and provided to the overall Organization for their respective uses.

For any planning/statistical requests, please contact the Planning Office at Little Bear Development Center (800) 236-2868 or e-mail Planning@oneidanation.org.

Development Division: Oneida Utilities Department

Who We Are

The Oneida Utilities Department which has been in operation since the late 1960's, consist of all Oneida licensed and certified qualified employees. The department is responsible to provide the Oneida Nation with safe drinking water and environmentally safe wastewater treatment. This is attained through routine testing, sampling, operation & maintenance, and continuing education and training. The Oneida Nations public water and wastewater facilities are regulated by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

What We Do

The Oneida Utilities Department's purpose is to provide the Oneida Nation with safe drinking water and environmentally safe wastewater treatment. This is accomplished through superior operation and maintenance from the staff at OUD.

The following (bottom right) are a few examples of what the Oneida Utilities/Waste Water Treatment Plant staff are responsible for.

The Oneida Nations public water/wastewater systems are inspected annually by IHS/EPA. Each system rating describes the system condition based on a point system of 0 to 16, 16 being the highest. An average system rating is used as the ''O & M Capability '' factor for the tribe in determining the distribution of EPA/IHS sanitation deficiencies construction money for the next fiscal year. The Oneida Utilities Department has received perfect scores 13 out of the last 14 years on this competitive process. For fiscal year 2011, the Oneida Utilities Department has been awarded $390,000.00 to upgrade the site 1 watermain due to aging infrastructure.

If you have any questions or concerns, please contact our office at 920-497-5806.

Wastewater Treatment Plant – The Oneida WWTP is a significant accomplishment for the Oneida Nation. Treating our own waste enables the Tribe to set its own sewer rates, as well as extend/hook-up sewer service without the approval of an outside entity. Previously, the Oneida tribe had sent its domestic waste to the GBMSD (Green Bay metropolitan sewage district). Due to the GBMSD's unwillingness to allow the tribe to extend sewer service to Site II, Cora House, and Aliskwit Court subdivisions, the Tribe had decided to construct its own WWTP. The WWTP Facility was completed in Dec 2006 and is now one of the best run plants in Indian Country.

Oneida Pet Safety Program: Year One in Review

On September 1, 2010, The Environmental, Health & Safety Division began providing a new service called the Oneida Pet Safety Program. The goal of this program is to prevent animal bites and the spread of Rabies in humans. The Pet Safety Program is designed to help tribal members vaccinate their pets and to motivate pet owners to spay and neuter their pets. Spaying and neutering are both important bite prevention strategies.

Vaccinations, Spaying, and Neutering Services

The program provides Oneida Retail Cards in exchange for veterinarian services. Pet owners are responsible for taking their pet(s) to a licensed veterinarian in Brown or Outagamie County.

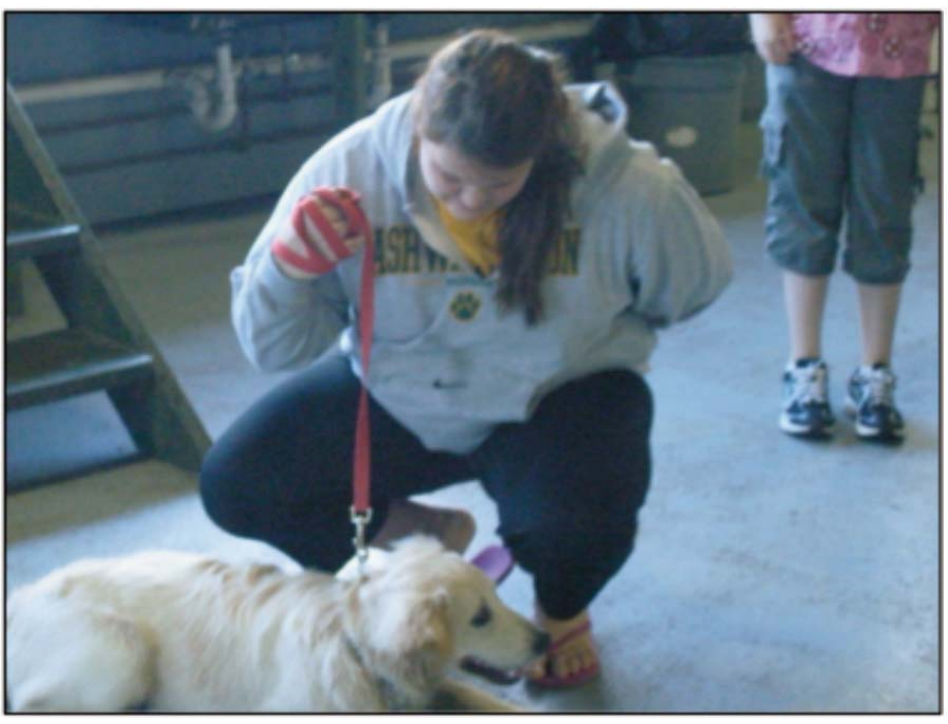
Pet owners must pay 100% of their bill at the time of service.

After the pet receives service, pet owners who provide the following information will receive Oneida Retail Gift Cards:

1. Proof of vaccination: An itemized receipt and/or rabies vaccination certificate
2. Copy of your Oneida Tribal Identification Card
3. A copy of a current Oneida Pet License if you live on the Oneida Reservation.

You can bring your paperwork to either N7332 Water Circle Place, Little Bear Development Center, or to the Conservation Office, located at N8047 County Rd. U, in Oneida. Pet licenses will be available for purchase at both sites. Licenses for intact pets are $10.00 each. Licenses for spayed or neutered pets are $5.00, and you must provide documentation from a veterinarian that your pet is spayed or neutered.

Green Bay Animal Hospital Offers Special Rates, Appointments for Tribal Members and Tribal Employees



Although you can choose any licensed pet in Brown or Outagamie County, Green Bay Animal Hospital (GBAH) offers Oneida tribal members and/or employees special discounts. Oneida tribal members and/or employees can bring their pets to the Green Bay Animal Hospital, located at 1518 W. Mason St., on the first Wednesday of every month from 1:00-5:00pm. There is no need to make an appointment for vaccines. You must however make an appointment for spay or neuter services. NOTE: Tribal employees are NOT eligible for the Oneida Retail Card portion of the program, unless they are also tribal members.

Get Ready for Winter

Low Cost Pet Care Equipment Kits

In order for your pet to maintain its body heat in the winter, it must be able to stay dry and out of the wind. Your pet also needs to have access to drinking water. If your pet spends anytime outdoors, he needs to have a safe and dry shelter. The Pet Safety Program offers medium and large maintenance free doghouses Each doghouse comes with plywood and insulation which is pre-cut to fit each doghouse. This provides additional protection in winter months. EHSD also provides straw bales. Straw provides essential warmth in the winter. Often, outdoor water pails tip over leaving a pet without drinking water. EHSD is offering pet owners spill proof water bucket systems. Each kit costs $12.00 and are available to tribal members only. You will need to provide your Tribal Identification Card to participate. All proceeds go back into the Pet Safety Program. If you would like to purchase a Low Cost Pet Care Equipment Kit, contact Steve Linskens at 920-869-4571.

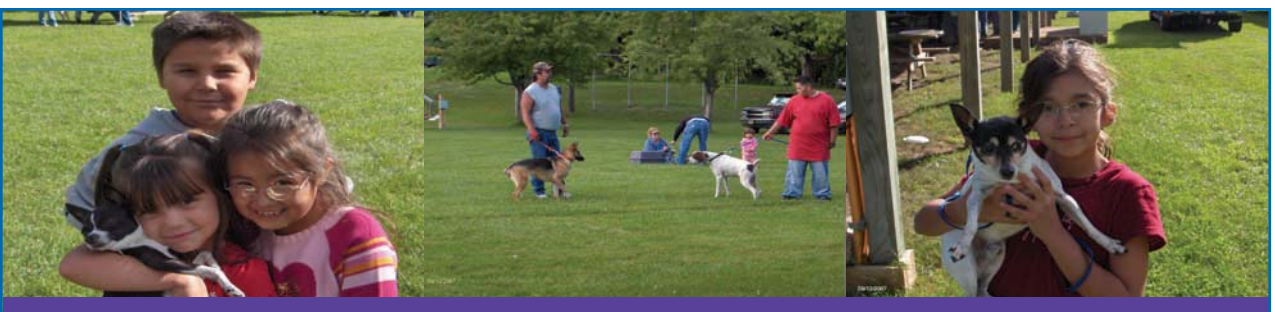
Canine Obedience Class

Another important component to animal bite prevention has to do with pet and pet owner behavior. In May, EHSD hosted its first Canine Obedience Class. The class met twice a week for six weeks. The cost of the class was $25.00 per dog. Owners and pets who showed up for every class, were given a $25.00 Oneida Retail Card for finishing the course successfully.

Some of the comments from the class participants included:

"My dog listens better and gets along with other dogs better."

"Both our dogs are doing better. But I think it's because I learned what to do."



"I know how to handle certain situations better now. I know what to do if we get a different dog too."

"I have learned a more effective way to train my dog and to continue training him."

A second course will start October 6, 2011. Please call EHSD at 920-869-4571 to register for the class. You may be placed on a waiting list.

"The retail cards, year round availability, and the partnership with Green Bay Animal Hospital is what motivated me to participate in the Oneida Pet Safety Program."

Justice Dept. announces $118.4 million to tribes

IGNACIO, Colo. (AP) ~ Some 150 American Indian tribes are getting a share of nearly $120 million in federal funds to improve safety on reservations, according to a Justice Department announcement Wednesday.

The grants were awarded under a new streamlined system and are intended to help tribes deal with soaring crime rates and issues of justice and enforcement, said Associate Attorney General Tom Perrelli at the Four Corners Indian Country Conference in Ignacio.

Violent crime rates on Indian reservations are more than twice the national rate, and there is an epidemic of domestic and sexual violence in Indian Country, along with high instances of child abuse, teen suicide and substance abuse, according to the federal government.

Federal officials have also said there is a proliferation of gang activity on reservations, and yet law enforcement recruitment and retention efforts across Indian Country lag far behind the rest of the nation.

"By deepening our engagement with tribal governments, we have sought to help put an end to the unacceptable and sobering crime rates witnessed in Indian Country," Perrelli said according to prepared remarks.

The $118.4 million in grant money is meant to help tribes with community policing, methamphetamine enforcement, justice systems, alcohol and substance abuse, and corrections and correctional alternatives, the U.S. Department of Justice said.

The grants are also planned to help fund programs to prevent violence against women, elder abuse, and provide youth programs.

Oneida will receive $98,514 for equipment and training under the grant.

Gallup builds 'world's largest Navajo taco'

GALLUP, N.M ~ Residents in Gallup have set the record for world's largest Navajo taco using 150 pieces of fry bread and, of course, more than 30 pounds of green chile, New Mexico officials and organizers said Monday.

According to volunteers and state officials, the Navajo taco created Saturday was more than 10 feet in diameter and also needed 65 pounds of ground beef, 65 pounds of beans, 50 pounds of lettuce and 90 pounds of cheese.

Bill Lee, executive director of the Gallup McKinley County Chamber of Commerce, said there was no record for the world's largest Navajo taco in the Guinness Book of World Record, so residents created one. "We just decided we would establish the record," said Lee. "There wasn't anything on the books officially."

Lee said the objective was to highlight tourism in Gallup, a city located near the Navajo Nation, and to bring residents together for a cause.

Among those that help built the massive taco were Gallup Mayor Jackie McKinney and employees from area businesses. McKinney finished the construction by using a cherry-picker truck to sprinkle diced tomatoes in the taco's center.

Afterward, residents and organizers were treated to a free lunch.

The event was part of the New Mexico Tourism Department's "Catch the Kid" summer travel promotion scavenger hunt. Events with prizes of as much as $10,000 have been held in different cities around the state this summer.

State officials said the goal of the promotion was to build in-state and drive-thru tourism.

Karen Ann Hoffman poses with her artwork titled "Wampum Urn" which has recently been purchased by the Smithsonian museum in Washington D.C.

The Smithsonian of the Cayuga Nation Institution has purchased a piece of Iroquois Raised Beadwork from Oneida tribal member Karen Ann Hoffman. The piece-titled Wampum Urn-will go into the prestigious museum's permanent collection. It will be housed at the National Museum of the American Indian in Washington, D.C.

The item that was purchased by the Smithsonian is called "Wampum Urn". It is a three sided urn about 16 inches tall and 12 inches in diameter. It is a one of a kind item handmade from dark purple velvet, lined with white satin and beaded with clear Czecheslovokian seed beads. The urn is accented with wampum shells and amethyst.

The urn depicts the story of Peacemaker and of the gift of wampum to the Iroquois people.

"I'm very pleased not only for myself, but for Iroquois Raised beadwork as an art form", said Hoffman. "It's inclusion in the collection of America's premier museum is a public recognition of the importance of Iroquois Raised beadwork as well as a validation of my work. I'm very grateful to my teachers and to the family and friends who have encouraged me in my beadwork. I'm especially grateful to my husband, Mike Hoffman, for his unending support and encouragement. To be included in the permanent collection of the Smithsonian institution is a great honor."

Karen Ann is a beadwork student of Samuel Thomas and Lorna Hill from Niagara Falls, Ontario, Canada.

She has studied under them in Wisconsin, New York, Canada and Africa for the past 12 years. During the last five years she has been exhibiting her work in Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana.

Hoffman attended the International Iroquois Beadwork Convention hosted by Colgate College in Hamilton, NY. in September 2012. She was the opening speaker at the convention attended by beaders, scholars and collectors from the US and Canada. Attendees of the convention selected her beadwork for 1st place in the animals of the forest division and also awarded Hoffman's beadwork with the best of show prize.

The collection process for the Wampum Urn began in the summer of 2011. Smithsonian curator Emil Her Many Horses noticed Karen Ann's beadwork while on display at the Indian Market at the Eiteljorg Museum in Indianapolis, IN.

Her Many Horses encouraged Hoffman to submit a proposal for purchase to the Smithsonian Institution. She worked with Emil Her Many Horses on the paperwork and in the summer of 2012, Her Many Horses presented the Wampum Urn purchase proposal to the acquisitions committee. At the end of August, the Smithsonian committed to purchase the piece. The Wampum Urn was shipped to Washington D.C. at the end of September, 2011.

Waste to energy project gets permits

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Seven Generations Corporation's (OSGC) renewable energy project has taken another step towards completion after receiving air and waste permits from the state's Department of Natural Resources.

The permits were received after a nine-month long application process that included public meetings and comment periods.

"It was a very thorough process, with the (Wisconsin) DNR experts going through everything we submitted to ensure we would meet all applicable state and federal rules and regulations," said the company's Chief Executive Officer Kevin Cornelius. "While it did take time for this process, it should reassure the public that our project does meet health and safety standards."

The plant, to be located at 1230 Hurlbut Street on Green Bay's northwest side, will take municipal solid waste otherwise placed in local landfills through a gasification process generating power that will be sold to Wisconsin Public Service.

Recently, OSGC ended contract negotiations with Brown County to accept the county's solid waste but broke talks off after an agreement wasn't in reach.

"While negotiations were held, OSGC never agreed to a contract with the County. The Solid Waste Board was aware of Seven (Generation)'s position on various issues being discussed and it became clear that an agreement would not be forthcoming. Despite this, the Solid Waste Board voted to move ahead with an agreement,

OBC takes steps to reorganize tribal structure

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

During the September 28 Oneida Business Committee (OBC) meeting the committee took action that will create a major re-organization of the tribe's structure.

In 2000 the General Tribal Council approved re-organization of the tribe under a proposal called Plan B.

The then sitting OBC viewed the GTC action as out of order and rejected Plan B.

During the meeting, the current OBC rescinded resolution BC-8-2-00-B which ruled the GTC action in 2000 was out of order. By rescinding the resolution Plan B was put in place.

"General Tribal Council action takes president over OBC action therefore we felt that it was necessary to follow that directive to make this action a recension," said Treasurer Tina Danforth during the meeting.

As part of the implementation of Plan B the General Manager position was interimly removed and the Assistant General Manager position was permanently removed.

The Chief of Staff position was given a 30 day contract.

According to Chairman Ed Delgado, the GTC will be updated and the plan will be presented for approval hopefully in November.

Though the final plan has not been finalized it appears departments will report directly to members of the OBC.

For more information regarding the changes see the Chairman's Corner on page 6A.

Civil War Veterans get new stone markers

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Driving south on Freedom Road past the Holy Apostles Episcopal Church, just before reaching the Oneida Police Department, the church's cemetery transitions into a steep hill. Covering the peak of this slope, barely visible from the road, sits a number of weathered headstones covered in moss with the names barely visible. As it turns out these are actually headstones of Civil War Veterans.

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has provided replacement headstones for those veterans whose stones are damaged or weathered beyond repair.

Director of Veteran's Affairs Kerry Metoxen stated, "We actually started out with six (headstones) and they're not the exact same because some are eroded and real skinny now. But there are a few they said are still good. They just can't be bleached, but cleaned to the inside because the growth on them is so old it's actually in the stone."

The process begins with identifying headstones that are in the greatest need of repairs, pictures are then taken of those gravestones. Those pictures are then sent in to a stone company to be replicated on a new stone. The final product takes about four months to complete and weighs around 170 pounds.

Teddy Christjohn, who takes care of maintenance of the Episcopal Church Cemetery, is carrying out the task of removing the old stones and replacing them with brand new ones.

Purcell Powless Remembrance Day

The community and family and friends of Purcell Powless will be planting a tree in his honor and memory on Saturday morning, November 5th on Takwatehkha Road. This is located immediately behind his historic homestead.

Purcell Powless retained the original allotment of his grandfather, John D. Powless and the land remains in the Powless family today. Purcell applied to have his land placed in trust and it was his wish to have his land preserved for ever for the use of his descendants and never to be sold. He is one of only a few Oneida who had the foresight to preserve his homeland in this manner.

Purcell led the Oneida Nation as Chairman for 23 years, he is the longest serving chairman in our history. Under his leadership the Oneida Nation experienced the highest level of prosperity and success ever in our history. Purcell always gave credit to being surrounded by successful professional forward thinkers and doers.

Powless, Ronald M.
March 17, 1931 – September 9, 2011

Ronald M. Powless passed away Friday, September 9th in Marietta, GA while en route to his winter home in Ft. Myers, FL. He lived a full and interesting life.

He was born on March 17th, 1931 in Milwaukee, WI, the son of Merville and Jessie Powless. Ron is survived by his beloved wife of 55 years, Shirley (nee Jodar) Powless of Green Lake, WI and Ft. Myers, FL, his son, John Powless, wife Barbara, grandchildren Deandra, Trevor and Jarod of Madison, WI, his daughter, Jane Wagner and husband Alan of Rockford, IL, his sisters, Ramona Carlson of Oconomowoc, WI and Donna Powless Grignon, Keshena WI, his brothers David Powless, Corrales, NM and Lloyd Powless, DeBary, FL, and nieces, nephews and friends.

Ron was a Native American with roots in the Oneida and Chippewa Nations. Early in his childhood Ron lived on two Indian reservations, Cass Lake, MN (Ojibwa) and Pine Ridge, SD (Sioux). He was jokingly referred to as "Red Cloud" by his fellow Phi Kappa Psi fraternity brothers at Indiana University. A "nick name "among the "brothers" was one of the enjoyable traits of fraternity life. While Ron never related to his heritage early in life, over time through work and research he found a rich background and appreciation of his Indian ancestors.

While in military service and pursuing his education, Ron lived in some of the most interesting cities of the world. Out of high school, Ron attended Indiana University on an athletic scholarship to play football for the Hoosiers in the Big Ten. Leaving school for the military he was assigned to the U.S. Army Counter-intelligence Corps where he was stationed across the street from the Imperial Palace in Tokyo, Japan in what was the former headquarters of the Japanese secret police during WWII. During his time in Japan, Ron continued to play football and was selected to the U.S. Army All Star football team in 1954. Following his military service Ron continued his education in Mexico City attending Mexico City College.

When Ron first laid eyes on Shirley at the Milwaukee Sentinel in 1956, he indicated to a co-worker "that is the woman I am going to marry". Three months later they eloped to Washington, DC where he attended the University of the Americas. Subsequently, Ron graduated from Indiana University with a degree in Marketing and Economics. Following successful careers with Xerox and Itek he formed a corporation, International Data Systems to address casino audit needs. His success afforded Ron the opportunity to contribute to improving the welfare of American Indian causes as well as enjoy homes in Wisconsin and Florida. In 2010, the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. recognized the Powless family for its success dating back to Ron's father Merville who survived early boarding school efforts by the military to orient Indians to the "white man's" way.

A private memorial service was held for the family at St. Michaels Lutheran Church, Ft. Myers on Saturday, September 17th, 2011. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions can be made to the American Diabetes Association, 1701 North Beauregard St, Alexandria VA, 22311.

Thank You...

The family of Marcella Powless would like to extend a heartfelt thank you to everyone who made her last days as comfortable as possible.

Our family was very blessed by the huge outpouring of love, comfort, prayers and donations on our behalf. With great gratitude a SPECIAL THANK YOU to the following people:

Staff at Saint Vincent's Hospital; Nurses of Unity Hospice; Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, Branch President Andrew Summers, Bishop Dennis Rekow, and the Relief Society Sisters who provided food and service of meal. Oneida Hymn Singers; Ryan Funeral Home, James Wolfe and Scott Baeten; and Friends and family who surrounded Marcella with their love and kind words.

Lastly, we would like to express our gratefulness to the Oneida Elderly Services Program. Marcella looked forward to participating everyday with the Elders. She would immediately mark her monthly calendar as soon as it arrived. We truly believe this program gave her life meaning and the needed strength to go on living to 91. She would joke with us about how tired she would be at the end of the day, "I could barely drag myself in the door." The Elders Program gave her the mobility to socialize outside the home, even if there were too many "Buggies" on the bus. Marcella enjoyed and appreciated the staff more than they will ever know. She stated more than once, "Some people don't realize how good we have it, but I do." Marcella loved everything about this program, from the meals, to the crafts and playing games.

We sincerely thank you for sharing our sorrow. Your kindness is more deeply appreciated than we can find the words to express.

Marcella will always be remembered and greatly missed by all the lives she has touched.

In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory of

Diane B. House (Thiesen)

who four years ago passed away on October 19, 2007

My Mother, My Soul

Mom molded me with her love and her laughter through each hug and kiss she taught me what family meant her warm touch taught me thankfulness her smile taught me to be polite (when it's a must) and she taught me what a smile and wink can get done (when it's a must) Mom's life lessons are the strength I walk in the love I live in the family I am surrounded by Mom never had to define what it meant to be Indian
because Mom was that definition she always helped with a humble hand and never took more than she needed she never judged because she knew everyone had a story her respect was always sincere she kept humor close to her, because she knew laughter was the key to life.
Mom molded me, she molded my soul

She is alive in each of us
She is our foundation now and in our future
She only dies if we do not honor her - If we do not live what she taught us
Mom molded who we are
She molds who we become
She is our soul

You are missed by your children, grand-children.
Your life lessons will not be forgotten,
for we are distilling them unto our children.

Thinking About Divorce?

Divorce is undoubtedly one of the most difficult decisions a person may face in his or her life. Almost one out of every two marriages today ends in divorce. The decision to divorce is a painfully personal one, but as final as it is, sometimes divorce is the only solution if there are issues of abuse or abandonment, or after trying time and time again to remedy a losing situation. The reality is that while divorce is a negative experience for you and your family, it may be the only way for you to empower yourself and to move forward to emotional health and growth. Once the divorce is finalized, you will find that you are open to new experiences and relationships that were not possible while you were married.

When you have considered all the options and have made a final and firm decision to divorce, you may find yourself in an emotionally traumatic time. You will need help with the process which can be confusing and overwhelmingly legalistic. There will be questions about marital finances and property, retirement, taxes, child support and placement, living arrangements, and many more.

The documents you will need to start the action are: the divorce petition, confidential petition addendum, a summons (to be served on your spouse within 30 days). If there are issues that need to be addressed quickly then you must also file a notice of motion and motion for a temporary order and affidavit for temporary order. If you and your spouse are in agreement about all the issues in regard to the dissolution of your marriage, then a joint petition may be filed. There is a required waiting period of no less than 120 days after the initial filing for the final hearing to commence.

You may want to have the divorce heard and finalized in our own tribal court, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, OTJS. To qualify, one of the marital partners must be an enrolled Oneida tribal member or other Indian and must have resided within the reservation boundaries for at least 60 days prior to filing.

At the temporary hearing the Court will determine, among other things, who will live in the marital home during the pending of the case, which party will have placement of the children and child support and temporary payments of debts. The court may order mediation or peacemaking if necessary to work out some prevailing issues. After the temporary hearing both parties will need to fill out and file a financial disclosure form. At the final hearing you will need an updated financial disclosure form, the Marital Settlement Agreement, in which all marital debts and assets are equitably divided and the terms of the child custody, placement and support have been agreed upon. You will need to complete and file a Vital Statistics form. Finally, after the final hearing, the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law must be completed and filed with the court.

LRC Assistance

The LRC staff has helped tribal members with the preparation of legal documentation and representation in divorce cases heard in the OTJS. The fees charged by the LRC paralegals and OTJS court fees for these services are lower than most local attorneys and state county courts. To lower costs even more, if you wish, the paralegal may just prepare the documentation and guide you step by step through the pro se procedure.

The LRC tribal attorney helps those tribal members who must take their case to Brown or Outagamie County Courts. Again, the fee is lower than most local attorneys.

We can only assist/represent family law cases in the OTJS and Brown and Outagamie Counties.

If you've made the decision to divorce and need help, call us at the LRC for an appointment for a free, confidential consultation. We provide help, hope and comfort to those tribal members who need it.

Injury Prevention Program secures grant from IHS

The Elderly Services Complex received two new treadmills courtesy of the Injury Prevention Program on Tuesday, September 27. Jennifer Jordan of the Injury Prevention Program stated the treadmills are wider and have a longer walking base to accommodate people who struggle with balance.

"We want to help to keep the elders healthy and active," she said.

Complex resident Geri Villalobos looks forward to using the new equipment as part of her fitness routine.

"It's going to be very nice to use every day," she said.

The Injury Prevention program has been in partnership with Elderly Services since 2009. The purpose of the partnership is to get Oneida elders to exercise more and reduce the number of falls that elders may experience. One way that falls can be reduced is through regular exercise, which improves balance, mobility, and strength. Though a grant from Indian Health Service, the Injury Prevention Program was able to provide two treadmills to the Elderly Services Complex.

All Oneida elders, even those who do not live at the complex, are welcome to use the treadmills between the hours of 8-4:30 pm Monday through Friday. In order to use the treadmills, all users will need to fill out a disclaimer form, which is available at the Elderly Services Reception Area. Elders who do not live at the Elderly Service Complex will also be required to sign in and out with the receptionist. All treadmill users will be required to sign in and out on a log sheet, which will be located in the treadmill area.

The Injury Prevention program and the Elderly Services program currently offer an Elder Incentive program which encourages elders not only to exercise, but, to become more involved in events and outings that are happening in the Oneida Community and the Greater Green Bay area. If you are interested in becoming involved in the program, please contact Michelle Cottrell at Elderly Services, 920-869-2448.

If you have any questions about the treadmills or the Injury Prevention Program, please call Jennifer Jordan Injury Prevention Coordinator at 920-869-4520.

Chairman's Corner...

Ed Delgado
Chairman

It has been a very challenging month of September for the Business Committee and the Chairman's office staff consisting of Executive Assistant Kitty Melchert, and Senior Policy Advisors Diane House and Linda Dallas. I have often observed Diane working far into the afternoon even though she is only scheduled to work until noon, and I have walked into my office's on some occasions far past 4:30 p.m and Kitty and Linda were still there, working at their desks. I thank them for their hard work and their dedication to the Chairman's Office and the Oneida people. I am sure all members of the Business Committee feel the same about their staff. I am also thankful for the Business Committee's commitment to try and work towards a common goal of restructuring the Tribal organization in order to improve Tribal efficiencies and sustain quality Tribal services in these hard economic times.

Organizational Direction

On September 28, 2011 the Oneida Business Committee began the first of several steps that will result in restructuring and realignment of the Tribe's organization. As of October 1, 2011, the organization will, on an interim basis, operate without the General Manager and Assistant General Manager position.

Background:

In 2000, the General Tribal Council adopted a resolution which among other things, eliminated the General Manager position from the Tribe's organizational structure and directed that a different reporting structure be implemented. The newly adopted structure was called "Plan B" in the adopting resolution. However, the Business Committee at the time believed that proper procedure was not followed in 2000 and the GTC action was voided by BC Resolution # BC-8-1-00-B. The current Business Committee believes that the General Tribal Council action of 2000 was in fact proper and rescinded BC Resolution #BC-8-1-00 in order to begin implementing an updated Plan B. To date, the Committee continues to meet and discuss how Plan B can be best updated with complete implementation contingent upon approval by the General Tribal Council. So change is coming and you the membership will be updated and hopefully in November, the new plan will be presented to General Tribal Council for approval.

Travel Clarify

When I ran for the Oneida Tribal Chairman position, I was quoted as saying that I would be a stay at home Chairman. But I learned that is an impossible task. There are responsibilities of the Chairman that require travel to meet with U.S. governmental leaders and with Tribal leaders across Indian country. Accordingly, at the end of August, I traveled to Washington DC and had dinner with Vice-President Joe Biden. What an interesting and informed character he is. I was impressed. The purpose of that trip was to gain the ear of the Vice-President and mention the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin as many times as possible so that our needs would have a better chance of being addressed both financially and politically. Later in September, I traveled to Washington DC again in order to ensure that the Oneida Tribe receives as much health related assistance as possible. I assure you, after two trips to Washington DC in less than one month, the incentive to gaze at statues of Americans long gone becomes really boring. However, I still give my respect to the memorials dedicated to America's soldiers of the two World Wars, the Korean War, and the Vietnam War. We should never forget the sacrifices made by those service people who served in those conflicts. Most recently, I traveled to Hinckley, Minnesota to provide input on possible allocations to the Tribe on issues of land consolidation. Often in Indian country, parcels of tribal land are divided up among hundreds, even thousands, of descendants. My next step on this issue is to consult with our Land Management Department.

A Beautiful Reservation

Two roundabouts have now been completed on the Oneida Indian Reservation. One is on Highway 172 in front of your Oneida Casino and the other is at the intersection of Highways172 & 54. We should all be careful as we travel through these newly created roundabouts because to some drivers, the process is new and challenging. However, I think we can all agree that the newly constructed roundabouts say something good about our history as Oneida people and our presence here on our Reservation which is our home as Oneida people now and forever. I know there is some opposition from some who oppose the cost of the roundabouts because they contain reference to Oneida history and culture here on the Reservation. Some of those folks who appear to be in opposition to the roundabouts because of the Oneida cultural connection should sometime visit Washington DC. There, the whole town is all about American history and culture with strong European, Roman and Greek influence. Washington DC is a beautiful city which benefits all Americans. The Oneida people are steadfast and determined that our Reservation also be a beautiful place. That concept is part of our history and those people who live on our Reservation who are not Oneida might take advantage of Oneida ways about beauty and respect for the environment and actually benefit from our ways, and it might be a good way for us all to better work together.

One last comment on the Roundabouts: On Saturday, Oct. 1st, I drove by the roundabout at the intersection of Highway 54 and 172. It was late afternoon and sitting on top of the turtle's back were two Oneida youth, both between the ages of about 15 and 20 years old. They both had red shirts on and I think both had long black hair. It was a beautiful sight, these two young Oneidas sitting on the turtle's back and looking over their Reservation lands. I told the Communications

OBC Forum...

I hope the fall is a good time of the year for you and your family. In many ways fall triggers a season of change. Likewise, the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) has been trying to forge change. As you may have heard, the OBC reaffirmed the General Tribal Council (GTC) approval of Restructuring Plan B. This is a momentous change which will foster governing efficiencies and advance cleaner governing paths.

One report I would urge people to read, which speaks indirectly to some of these issues and the need to reform and change the government, is the Jack Pawley Report. I have copies of the report if you'd like to review it. This report probes at some of the long-standing governing issues which we have experienced over the past thirty (30) years.

Packer Championship – Are there lessons to be learned?

The changes and the move towards Restructuring Plan B is simply a response to what the Oneida People, the GTC, approved on July 22, 2000. It is time that we foster changes here; we cannot live under the same tired governing systems which do not work. The GTC recognized the need for change some ten plus years ago, we are simply honoring what the GTC directed us to do in July of 2000.

The idea of change, in general, reminds me in so many ways of the issues the Green Bay Packers went through just a few years ago. Who can deny what a year it was for the Green Bay Packers? It was a great ride which led into a spectacular playoff run, topped off with a great victory in the big game. The city, the fans, and the Packer leadership should be very proud of the team.

It was not without sacrifice that this team arose from the dust to become the champions they are today. When I think about the transformation that the Packers made, I can't help but think, do we (Oneida) have that type of spirit and desire to change, to make things better? Does Oneida have what it takes to be a champion in the eyes of its people? Of course we do!

Here is just a little overview on one critical part of the Packers rise. I'd like to remind you of what was being said a few years back about the man at the center of the team's transformation, General Manager Ted Thompson. Much criticism was thrown towards Thompson from people who wanted things to stay as they were. Even in football, there are people who foot-drag, resist change and simply don't want anything different, good thing Ted Thompson didn't listen to the critics.

One of the most controversial things that occurred during Thompson's tenure was when he made the difficult decision to build a team around Aaron Rodgers instead of indulging Brett Favre's antics. Favre's dizzying indecision on retirement was tiring, "I want to stay, I want to go, I'll get back to you." Favre thought it was alright to wait until the last minute, in effect holding the team and organization up, while he decided what he wanted to do. Favre's actions were a farce and it went on for way too long. When Thompson had finally had enough, he did what people in leadership need to do, he made a decision that would benefit the team in the long run. He was going with Aaron Rodgers at quarterback. When this happened, many people were calling for Thompson to be fired because he was making a drastic change to what they had become comfortable with.

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

What Thompson showed us was a priceless example of good leadership in a controversial situation. That's what Oneida can use; leadership which makes well thought-out decisions and sticks with them. Thompson's decision made a change and a move in a new direction, resulting in a positive difference to the organization. Making one critical decision in an organization, which needs change, can make a world of difference. Maybe the Oneida leaders can learn from a model like this. Here are some noteworthy quotes regarding the changes and support made by the Packer organization:

"There's a lot of Packers fans, and you'd like for all of them to think that the organization is being run well… But you can't worry about that. You have to do your job. And quite frankly, I don't speak on those things anymore. We've moved on." Ted Thompson, General Manager

"I think it truly shows the strength of Ted to stick to his guns, stay the course… We stayed with the plan. We made the decision based on what we felt was the best interests of the Green Bay Packers, and we never budged off of it. It wasn't popular, and it wasn't fun at times, but we felt it was the right decision. And I think why we're standing here today talking about it proves it was the right decision." Mike McCarthy, Head Coach

"I have seen what he's done over his career, and I think it's tremendous…If you go back and look at all the things, certain guys he brought in, certain guys he let go, and these guys go to other teams and play for other teams. And you go, 'Wow, why didn't we keep him? Why'd we let him go?' And in all due respect, Ted made the best decision for this organization, and that's what you have to live with." Donald Driver, Player

Despite Thompson's critics, including from some players, and despite mounting pressure to not pursue wholesale changes and personnel reforms, Thompson did what he had to do in order to propel the Packers into the championship. He had the trust of most of the organization to move ahead. Now, when I think about Oneida, I see that we can use some change ourselves. Maybe one day we can realize our own championship of sorts. Only for us, the reward won't be a trophy; it will be the satisfaction of knowing that we are running our tribe in an efficient, logical, and organized manner. In Oneida, changes could bring about an era where waste does not reside and where favors are not given to the chosen few.

Change is needed here in Oneida, no one can deny that. Just like the Packers and any other organization that aspires to be better, change needs to occur on occasion. It is through change and a meaningful evolution that we achieve the goals, aspirations, and longevity our ancestors had envisioned. We have our own unique history where many of our people suffered during very depressed times so that we can be where we are today. With that being said, we have to ask, why are so many of our people still suffering today? Do we think the suffering from the past has earned us this future?

Why is our organization so slow to respond to the real needs of the Oneida people? How can we, as a people, let this go on for so long (30 years or more)? I remember how long the housing waiting list was for many years; hundreds of people needed housing but were turned away because we had no response or mechanism to help them. Then we re-did the housing list, now today the housing list is growing again.

For years we had a stagnant pay scale. I have worked on the pay scale, through a petition, as did many others, and today, we have a new system (Valiant) in place yet most employees couldn't get a raise until the GTC took action. Why can't our governing models address these matters, why did the GTC have to take pay wages into their own hands?

Is this the hallmark of a championship organization? Could the Packers have achieved a championship operating under the Oneida model of doing business? Could you imagine Thompson using consultants to do his job for him? I wonder how the Favre vs. Rodgers decision would have played out if Thompson had hired outside consultants to make that decision for him. Thompson runs the team, he makes decisions, he owns up to his management responsibilities.

In Oneida, we have to change! We can no longer find it acceptable to just get by. We cannot have an organization where obvious cronyism operates in open air. A few people cannot be allowed to manipulate our systems to hire friends and family while qualified people sit on

For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated that when this came up for the BC approval years ago, I was one of the person's that opposed selling alcohol within the reservation boundaries and I knew it was a business decision that was made on behalf of the BC but I still stand behind our youth who actually came forward to the GTC at the time and asked for the committee not to approve this, based upon the alcoholism that our people suffer from on this reservation. So for the record I oppose this motion.
For the record: Ed Delgado stated that he supports this; studies have shown that those reservations who are dry do not affect the decrease to the amount of alcoholism on the reservation; it just formulates new patterns of drinking.

Purpose:
Hunting, Fishing and Trapping Law Amendments.
The purpose of these amendments is to permanently amend the Hunting, Fishing and Trapping Law for the 2011-2012 season. The Amendments, which were adopted on an emergency basis on June 22, 2011, allow ten and eleven-year olds to obtain a sportsman license to hunt after completing a hunter safety course, if he or she remains within arms grasp of a mentor while hunting; obeys all hunting laws and regulations; and obtains the necessary licenses, permits and/or tags. The Amendments also outline the requirements that a person must meet in order to be a mentor to a ten or eleven-year old hunter.
In addition, the Amendments allow tree stands to remain up until April 1st, as opposed to two weeks after the end of archery season; require a buck to have at least 4 points in order to be harvested; limit a designated hunter to hunting for one elder or disabled person; legalize colony traps; and require individuals to obtain a permit before possessing or releasing birds for dog training purposes.

Decades of Service

For more than 20 years our mother worked and promoted the SEOTS Program and Board. She was one of the original community people selected to begin an undertaking that was not suppose to last. Every year our mother along with the other members of the board worked very hard to keep the SEOTS program opened and funded. Recently our mother stepped down from the SEOTS Board after more than 20 years of dedicated service. The Business Committee nor the SEOTS Board did anything to acknowledge our mothers years of service to the SE Wi. Community. A SEOTS Board member invited our mother along with another board member who was leaving the board as well to dinner as an after thought. SHAME ON YOU BC and SEOTS Board for the disrespect shown to our mother Kim M Reyes for all she has done over the years. She worked hard to make sure Oneida's here in SE Wi. were able to utilize the same services that tribal members in Oneida had. Our mother received no acknowledgements hell she didn't even get so much as a card from the SEOTS Board when she left. Disrespectful as you are SEOTS Board can we trust you with our program that so many tribal members worked so hard to get going in the first place? Is this the kind of behavior we are to expect from this board?

Eyes and ears of our community……don't flatter yourselves.

Sincerely,
Justin Reyes and Clarissa Reyes

Thank You

I wanted to write a note to let each and every person at the Oneida Community Health Center Dental Clinic know that my experience here has surpassed my expectations for my first internship experience. I knew before I came to Oneida that the clinic was known for a high standard of care for the community members, excellent dental, dental hygiene, assisting and management, and also that the location in the heart of Wisconsin, of course was gorgeous. There were a few things I had to learn.

What I did know was that the level of commitment, expertise, compassion, professionalism, and care that everyone I have come into contact with here has for the clinic and the community. I also did not anticipate the warm way in which you have accepted me into your work and family environment, and also into your daily life.

I want to thank you for the many gifts you have given me. Thank you for your kindness in the way you have led by example in not just the mechanics of dentistry, but the subtle ways of approaching situations that may not always be ideal (you never know what will happen). Your reactions and actions, and ability to roll with changes that came along during the day, speak volumes about how this is a true team and everyone helps and participates to ensure that patients are well provided for and co-team members have the help they need to make their job effective. Thank you for your generosity in providing much guidance and mentorship. This is irreplaceable and I do not know if you all know what a special place in my life and heart you will always have as my "first real life" experience in dentistry. From showing me how the clinic is run, to how to make a patient more comfortable, to techniques on restorations, my level of knowledge as I leave Oneida is leaps and bounds above what I came with. Thank you most of all for allowing me to be a part of the special team that is Oneida Dental Clinic. The community is very fortunate to have you to provide for their dental health care.

I also would like to send a thank you to the community of Oneida for allowing me the privilege of being allowed to practice dentistry among the most thoughtful, accepting and kind community of people I have met. The patients I have had the fine opportunity to meet and treat have allowed me a learning experience that will not soon be surpassed. They have taught me about being a better listener, diagnostician and provider by allowing me to hear their chief concerns and complete their treatment plans in a non-hurried teaching environment. This generosity will not be forgotten. I will always remember my time here the happiness and gratitude and hope to be able to visit again soon!

Thank you all,
Rena Christman

A Second Chance

My name is Carmen Hill; I'm an enrolled Oneida member. I'm currently incarcerated at REECC Correctional facility. Sitting on a two-year bit for my second delivery of narcotics offense. I sold drugs to support my own drug and gambling addiction. I was harming myself and others to get my needs met. My family didn't like who I was and what I had become. I come from generations of addiction in my family. I'm happy to say they're all recovering alcoholics/drug addicts.

I remember when the judge sent me to two years in prison. I thought I was just going to die, that night I asked the Lord for forgiveness and that I was going to make the best out of my situation. I'm doing that right now, I'm going to school for my HSED and learning about myself and learning to love myself and knowing that I'm somebody.

I have lost 130 pounds since I have been incarcerated and still losing. I feel great and I'm very proud of myself.

I admit I'm a recovering addict and I'm going to put all my energy into staying clean and sober. To me recovering means learning how to think things through and making wiser choices and responding more appropriately to situations that come your way. Taking it one day at a time.

Being sent to prison wasn't my rock bottom, it's beginning a new life. My sobriety means the world to me.

"Proud Native Woman",
Carmen Hill

Guest Editorial

Responding to a previous letter

Dear Editor,

In the last issue of the Kalihwisaks a letter was submitted by Cathy L. Metoxen that had some very harsh and misleading references to me. She stated that I had posted on Brandon Steven's facebook but she decided not to include the post. Perhaps she did not include my post because she wanted the readers to believe it was a post in ridicule or in fun. I did in fact post, but my post was positive and supportive. I posted the following; "Whomever gives the prayer tomorrow, I hope the council listens and heeds the prayers. Bring your minds together and legislate do not administrate."

I stand by that post and will continue to encourage our elected leadership to bring their minds together to legislate as elected officials are empowered to do. She also insinuates that high paid employees were in the meeting and were rude, disrespectful, unethical, and unprofessional and she went on to list other behaviors.

I was in the meeting, as Director of Public Relations it is my responsibility to keep myself involved in attending meetings from time to time. At no time was I disrespectful or rude, unethical nor did I engage in any other conduct than advisory and professional.

I have worked for the Oneida Nation for more than 30 years and I stand by my actions. I am an enrolled Oneida with every right to express my opinion. Through my tenure with the Tribe I have been instrumental in many positive initiatives within our nation and I am proud of my accomplishments and contributions.

I pride myself in seeking solutions and resolutions to make our community a better place to raise our children. I would encourage Cathy Metoxen to strive to be a more positive and pleasant influence in our community. It is my personal opinion that she has good intentions but sometimes comes across as a very bitter and negative woman.

As the aunt and elder to Councilman Stevens it should be her desire to help guide him in a positive and respectful manner. Councilman Stevens is a young man and through his life he should have the resources of his community elders and family to support and guide him. Cathy is a very active individual in Tribal meetings, she has great energy within her that should be focused on building our nation. It is easy to point the finger and we are all guilty of it at times. I believe our challenge to our fellow tribal citizens is to point our leadership in the direction of seeking solutions and resolutions. Leadership is not always perfect and they will need to be guided when they make mistakes. It is important to encourage our leadership in a respectful manner. It is also important to support them when they are forward thinking and resolution oriented.

Finally, to suggest sabotage is the intent is a very serious allegation and impugns the integrity of every professional in the BC Conference Room. I can guarantee that my actions and intentions are not to sabotage the Oneida Nation or the Business Committee in any way. I believe when you point one finger you had better check the direction of your other three fingers.

Respectfully,

the sidelines unable to contribute or work for the tribe they love. We must put an end to the questionable hiring practices going on in some areas of the tribe. It is simply not acceptable for people to continue to place their friends and family in prime positions.

When people in high places want to throw breadcrumbs at you and tell you to enjoy your dinner, it's time to wake up! It's very obvious that we cannot have some people's pockets lined with gold while other's pockets are lined with dust! We, as a tribe, can no longer have an indifference towards the pain, homelessness, and unemployed we have among us. The time is now to heal and create opportunities for all those who we can reasonable serve! This is a wake-up call.

Any nation is only as good as how they treat all their people, regardless of who they are. We will be judged dimly in our own history books if we allow our people to go without. When our people have to sleep in the cold and have to go to the Salvation Army for a warm meal; that is saying something. When employees go years without raises as waste flourishes, that is saying something.

Similarly, just like Thompson did for the Packers, "I know we can make the best decision for this organization, and that's what we'll have to live with." The only question we'll have to live with when we get older is did we make the right decisions today? Our kids will want to know the answer to that question; we better have a good answer.

Office Update: SEOTS

I would like to thank the SEOTS staff for their assistance in communicating and organizing a successful community gathering at SEOTS on September 21st. I had the opportunity to give a briefing from my office on policy and political issues I have been working on since taking office.

I spoke to community members regarding potential services that could be offered to the Milwaukee area and requested feedback on what services they would like to see. I also gave an overview of the current status of the budget and the obstacles the Tribe is facing.

One of the important issues I am actively working on is housing, not only here in Oneida but in Milwaukee as well. We have so many tribal members who have been left out in the cold when it comes to providing adequate, affordable and timely housing options. I discussed at the length what the Milwaukee area housing needs are and discussed the need to measure those needs so appropriate types of housing options can be sought.

Dealer's Wages

On September 14th, the OBC overwhelming approved a motion to clarify all dealers making under $60,000 are to be included in the .75 wage increase this October 1st. This was a monumental first step for bring the dealers to an appropriate wage scale and I thank the OBC and Gaming Management for their full support. It was evident the GTC action of July 4, 2011, did not specifically exclude the dealers in the motion thereby there was no viable reason to exclude this one category of employees from the increase.

In the coming months, I will be presenting the OBC with another proposal to permanently remove the wage cap on the dealers so that they may hired and paid at market value. My goal is for the dealers to be able to be compensated in a manner that is consistent with all other regular jobs in the Tribe, including the eligibility for any performance review related increases that are otherwise offered to employees of the Tribe. I will keep you informed of our progress.

Liaison Assignments

Through the transition process, liaison assignments were agreed upon and approved by the OBC. I am pleased to announce that I am the liaison for: Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) Board, Oneida Golf Enterprises, Oneida Housing Task Force, and the WI Minority Health Council. In addition, I will be part of the following committees: Audit Committee, Community Development Planning Committee (CDPC), Finance Committee, Legislative Operating Committee (LOC), and Quality of Life.

I have also accepted several liaison assignments in which I will be an alternate for, as needed. As always please free to contact my office at 920-869-4438 or vdelaros@oneidanation.org with any questions or concerns regarding these areas or any other policy topics which may be of concern to you. Thanks.

Respectfully,
Vince DelaRosa,

SEOTS Receives UWM Community/University Partnership Grant

By Mark W. Powless

For far too many years, numerous Native American youth have struggled in academic settings. In Milwaukee, the Milwaukee Public Schools (MPS) system tracks student performance by race, and specifically for Native youth. Two of the most troublesome figures are for grade point averages and graduation rates. As indicated in the MPS 2008-2009 District Report Card, of all ethnicities, Native American students had the lowest grade point average of 1.47. They also had the lowest graduation rates at 55.2%. Unfortunately these numbers are not a one time occurrence, but instead are part of a growing trend.

In an effort to address the crisis situation our youth are facing, SEOTS has been seeking funding to research the problem and implement a plan to improve Native academic performance. Earlier this year, SEOTS applied for and received a Community/University Partnership grant from the University of Wisconsin – Milwaukee (UWM) Cultures and Communities Program. The grants focus on promoting partnerships between the community and UWM to positively influence the well-being of the Milwaukee community.

South Eastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) and the UWM Department of Educational Psychology have partnered to develop the Honoring Our Youth, Fostering Strong Minds project. The project uses a Community Based Participatory Research (CBPR) model to explore the disparate rates of academic achievement for Native American youth within the Milwaukee-metro area. A youth Advisory Board will guide the project in conjunction with the project leaders. Three Native American UWM students will be trained in CBPR and focus group facilitation, and will act as facilitators for three focus groups of Native American youth. The project will also conduct three focus groups with adult Native American community members, and one focus group with local agency leaders who serve the Milwaukee-area Native American community. The project data will be utilized by SEOTS to develop a program to improve Native academic performance and will be shared with the Native American community, Native American serving agencies in the metro area, and UWM units serving the Native American community, such as the Electa Quinney Institute for American Indian Education, American Indian Student Services, and ACT 31 educators.

Adults and youth interested in participating in the project are encouraged to contact SEOTS. A special yawʌko is extended to Dr. Leah Arndt of UWM for her help with this project.

WI Tribal Veterans: Gallant Service

By John A. Scocos
Secretary, Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs

In recent years, Wisconsin's Native American tribes have continued their steadfast support of all Wisconsin veterans, assisting with a number of veteran initiatives and providing support for 2010's LZ Lambeau, Wisconsin's official 'Welcome Home' to its Vietnam Veterans.

Wisconsin's tribal veterans have a long and proud history of military service, from the Civil War through the current conflicts in the Middle East. Native Americans from a number of Wisconsin tribes bravely served in several Civil War regiments. Initially, Wisconsin's war planners ignored tribal calls for enlistments, but as the war dragged on and casualties grew, Native American soldiers were eventually welcomed into the ranks. Once on the battlefield, Native American soldiers acquitted themselves well, fighting with great tenacity at places like Corinth and Vicksburg, and providing skilled assistance as master woodsmen and sharpshooters. In 1864, the forty or so Menominee of Company K, 37th Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry took part in one of the Civil War's most notorious events, the Battle of the Crater at Petersburg, Virginia. Tunneling from behind Union lines, a group of Pennsylvania coal miners planted a large amount of black powder underneath Confederate defenses. Once detonated, a giant crater opened up, soon occupied by charging Union forces, among them, Company K. Once the Confederates regained their composure, they fired down upon the exposed Wisconsin warriors. In all, seventeen members of Company K were either killed, wounded, or became prisoners of war. Their gallantry, especially the efforts taken to prevent the capture of the regiment's sacred battle flag, remains a proud chapter of Wisconsin's Civil War lore.

The Medal of Honor is our nation's highest military award for bravery above and beyond the call of duty. Wisconsin is proud to be home to sixty-one recipients of this award, including Mitchell Red Cloud, a Ho-Chunk. Decorated for his service with the Marines in World War II, Red Cloud re-enlisted in the Army at the age of 25 to fight in the Korean War. In the early morning of November 5, 1950, 1,000 Chinese infantrymen ambushed Red Cloud and his battalion. Grossly outmanned, Red Cloud grabbed his Browning Automatic Rifle (BAR) and emptied magazine after magazine into the charging Chinese troops.

A citation reads: "His accurate and intense fire checked this assault and gained time for the company to consolidate its defense," even after he was shot twice in the chest and his assistant BAR man was killed. The citation continues, "With utter fearlessness he maintained his firing position until severely wounded by enemy fire." At one point, Red Cloud climbed to his feet, wrapped his arm around a tree, and continued firing until his fellow soldiers could reorganize and eventually evacuate the wounded.

Members of all Wisconsin tribes are currently serving in each branch of the Armed Forces. The Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs continues to work with all tribal veterans and the Tribal Veteran Services Officers (TVSO) to ensure they receive proper care and assistance in the critical readjustment period after returning home.

Judge restores Indians mascot for Mukwonago

WAUKESHA, Wis. - A Waukesha County judge says the state's effort to strip Mukwonago High School of its Indians nickname was unconstitutional.

Judge Donald Hassin Jr. ruled Thursday in favor of residents who challenged the 2010 state law that allowed complaints about Indian nicknames and mascots.

The judge agreed that the law as applied in the case against Mukwonago schools was unconstitutional because the decision maker a Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction employee had an impermissibly high risk of bias.

The Milwaukee Journal Sentinel (http://bit.ly/qjMlmu) reports a former student registered a complaint against the Mukwonago School District over the Indians name.

Last October, the DPI ruled that the mascot perpetuates stereotypes of American Indians and is discriminatory. The district was given a year to drop the Indians mascot.

Potential deer crashes high again this fall

Each fall, deer become more prevalent and their movements even more unpredictable along highways and rural roads throughout Wisconsin. October and November are the mating season for deer. As a result, deer are more active especially at dusk and dawn when they move back and forth between their bedding and feeding areas.

As they roam, deer often will dart unexpectedly into the path of vehicles. To avoid a collision with deer, drivers must be attentive and cautious at all times, Wisconsin Department of Transportation (WisDOT) officials advise.

Last year, law enforcement agencies reported a total of 16,947 deer versus motor vehicle crashes. Dane County had the most motor vehicle versus deer crashes reported in 2010 with 854. Shawano County had the second-most with 719 followed by Waukesha County with 687. In Shawano and Green Lake counties, more than half of all reported crashes in 2010 involved deer. Deer are the third most commonly struck object in Wisconsin traffic crashes (behind collisions with another vehicle or a fixed object).

"To avoid deer crashes, drivers must slow down when they see deer in the area. If you see one deer, there are probably more nearby that could dash in front of your vehicle," says Randy Romanski, chief of safety programs for WisDOT's Bureau of Transportation Safety. "If you can't avoid a deer, it's safer to hit the brakes and hit the deer than to swerve suddenly and try to miss it. If you swerve, you risk losing control of your vehicle and rolling over or hitting another car or a fixed object, like a tree."

Motorcyclists must be especially careful because collisions with deer can be fatal to motorcycle drivers and passengers. Motorcycles were involved in 12 of the 13 fatal deer versus motor vehicle crashes in 2010, according to Romanski.

The WisDOT Bureau of Transportation Safety offers the following advice to prevent deer crashes:

- Be on the lookout for deer, eliminate distractions while driving, and slow down in early morning and evening hours—the most active time for deer.
- Always wear your safety belt—there are fewer and less severe injuries in vehicle-deer crashes when safety belts are worn.
- If you see a deer by the side of the road, slow down and blow your horn with one long blast to frighten the deer away.
- When you see one deer, look for another one—deer seldom run alone.
- If you see a deer looming in your headlights, don't expect the deer to move away—headlights can confuse a deer and cause the animal to freeze.
- Brake firmly when you notice a deer in or near your path.
- Do not swerve—it can confuse the deer as to where to run—and cause you to lose control and hit a tree or another car.
- The one exception to the "don't swerve" advice applies to motorcyclists. On a motorcycle, you should slow down, brake firmly and then swerve if necessary to avoid hitting the deer. If you must swerve, always try to stay within your lane to avoid hitting other objects.
- If you hit a deer, get your vehicle off the road if possible, and then call a law enforcement agency. Walking on a highway is dangerous, so stay in your vehicle if you can.
- Don't try to move the animal if it is still alive. The injured deer could hurt you.

Company seeks permits for new copper mine in UP

By John Flesher
AP Environmental Writer

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) ~ As one company begins drilling a nickel and copper mine in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, another has applied for state permits to mine copper and silver in a different section of the peninsula near Lake Superior.

Orvana Minerals Corp., a subsidiary of a Toronto-based mining company, is targeting 798 million pounds of copper and 3.5 million ounces of silver from an underground deposit near Ironwood, on the U.P.'s far western end. Orvana has filed paperwork required for 13 permits - one from the state Department of Natural Resources and the others from the Department of Environmental Quality.

If they are approved and the parent company decides to proceed, the mine would operate an estimated 14 years and employ about 250 people, said Bill Williams, president of Orvana's U.S. subsidiary.

"We look forward to this permit review process and are optimistic about a positive outcome," Williams said Monday.

Copper and iron mining was big business in the Upper Peninsula for more than a century after discovery of rich deposits in the mid-1800s. But the industry gradually declined. At present, the only active mines in the region are the Empire and Tilden iron operations in Marquette County.

But a resurgence may be coming. Kennecott Minerals Co. recently began initial drilling for a nickel and copper mine in northwestern Marquette County scheduled to begin operations in 2013, although opponents are challenging in court the DEQ's decision to issue permits.

Two other companies, Aquila Resources Inc. and HudBay Minerals Inc., are exploring a zinc and gold deposit in Menominee County. They have postponed filing for permits while continuing to determine the size of the ore body, said Hal Fitch, director of the DEQ's Office of Geological Survey.

Several organizations and the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community have fought the Kennecott project, and environmentalists have raised concerns that a mining industry comeback could pollute the region's waters and air while disrupting wildlife habitat and the region's treasured solitude.

Michelle Halley, a National Wildlife Federation attorney who led the legal challenge of the Kennecott mine, said she has begun reviewing the Orvana documents.

"As far as whether we will choose to submit technical comments or litigate, it remains to be seen," Halley said.

Among potential red flags are the company's plan to withdraw an average of 150,000 gallons of Lake Superior water each day and discharge treated wastewater into a creek that feeds the lake, she said. Also worrisome is that the underground portion of the mine would reach to within 200 feet of the lake, Halley said.

Williams said the 200-foot buffer zone would protect the lake. Surface buildings and other infrastructure would be at least a mile inland, he said.

``We have spent a lot of time and effort doing all the testing that was above and beyond what was required," Williams said. ``We've presented a very sound mine plan with minimal environmental impact."

Among the most contentious issues with the Kennecott project is the potential for acid mine drainage _ a chemical reaction that generates acid when sulfur-bearing minerals are exposed to air and water. Williams said the chances of that happening with the Orvana mine were remote because the ore body contains little pyrite, the iron sulfide that most commonly becomes acidic.

Plans call for crushing the rock and producing mineral concentrates at the site, then shipping them elsewhere for smelting, which reduces them to raw metals.

Fitch said the DEQ has determined that Orvana has submitted a complete application. The public will get several opportunities to comment in person and in writing before the department makes a final decision, which could happen in as early as seven months, he said.

The agency has a team of experts who will review the 6,000 pages of documents and will hire outside help if needed, Fitch said.

``We will make sure the process is public and that we address the concerns that are out there," DEQ spokesman Brad Wurfel said.

From 1A/Civil War stone markers

"The old stones had no base to them, they were just the stone placed in the ground about eighteen inches deep. So it's no wonder (the headstones) always would tilt of move. With the new ones I'm pouring a concrete base for them and they get buried eighteen inches again. Once they get a base on them they don't move all that much," Christjohn said.

The first headstone replaced was that of Civil War Veteran Abraham Antone.

The next Veteran's Memorial Markers to be replaced are those of Civil War Veterans Cobus Powless, Jos Thompson, and Jacob Powless.

These markers are being replaced to remember those Civil War Veterans whose markers previously went unnoticed.

"There's so much work that has to be done up here. Yet a lot of people don't realize what these are, being Civil War markers. There are just so many Veterans we have up here; a lot of veterans from every war and it just keeps going on. One could be a relation and you just might not have known," said Christjohn.

This is an ongoing project for the Department of Veteran's Affairs and they hope to get to all of the markers that need to be replaced in the near future.

From 2A/OBC Wrap

concealed weapon law and the Wisconsin state bill regarding the liquor license permit at Thornberry Creek at Oneida was accepted.

The OBC approved the interim removal of the General Manager Debbie Thundercloud and the permanent removal of Assistant General Manager Jennifer Hill-Kelly. The decisions are linked to a tribal-wide reorganization.

The Tenuta & Associates lobbyist contract was approved along with Gerald Hill's contract with the Oneida Personnel Commission and the Medical Director's contract at the Oneida Health Center.

A targeted land acquisition was approved with funding coming from the FY2012 budget.

Third quarter financials from the Oneida Airport Hotel Corporation, Oneida Golf Enterprise, and Oneida Seven Generations were accepted.

The next OBC meeting is scheduled for October 12 at 9 a.m. in the Norbert Hill Center.

From 6A/Chairman Delgado

Director and the other Business Committee members. We would like those two youth to contact either my Office (920-562-1750) or the Communications Director Bobby Webster (920-869-4270). Maybe a little photo shoot can be arranged as the Tribe promotes the resettlement of our Oneida lands with Oneida Indians. A little cash and fame might be involved.

ORCCC

At an earlier BC meeting, I received support to hold off in the building of the Oneida Residential Community Care Center until the costs of construction of the building could be further evaluated. During the subsequent week, I spend hours trying to find ways which would reduce the costs. Unfortunately, at this late date just prior to the scheduled beginning of construction, it is too late. Cost concerns should have begun long ago. I still have concerns about the cost, but now I have to get on board and support going forward on the project. I wish I would have raised the cost issue a couple years ago. Thanks for reading.

Thank you,
Ed Delgado
Oneida Tribal Chairman

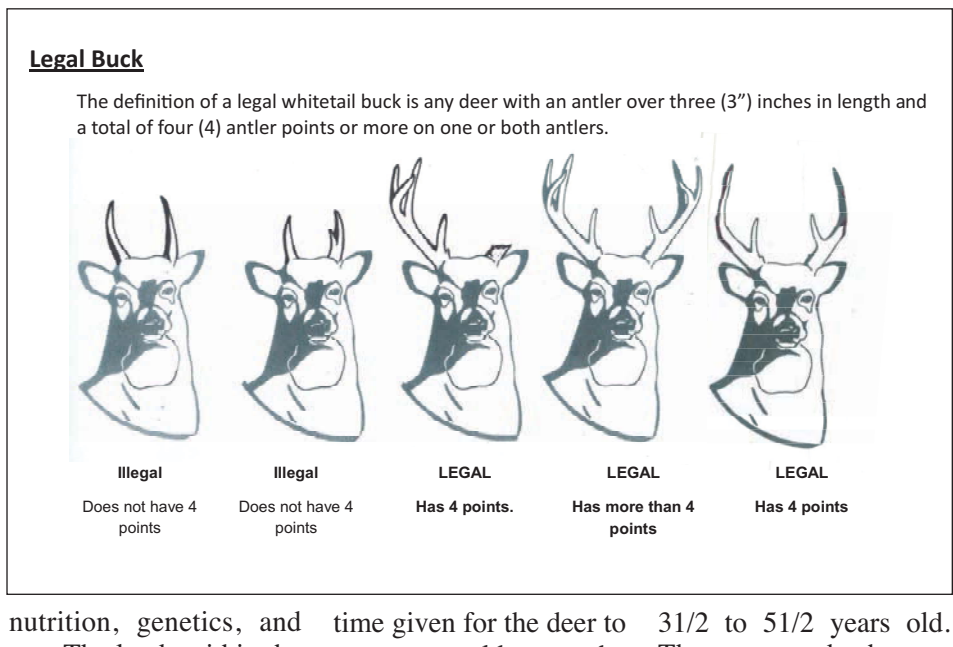
Attention: Oneida Sportsmen, Hunting Season Amendments

By Shad Webster
Natural Resources Director

The Department would like to update the Oneida Sportsmen of the amendments that have been approved for the 2011-12 hunting season. The following changes are a direct response to the Sportsmen's concerns about the current whitetail deer harvest rate and population density.



During the whitetail deer seasons the following rules will be in effect for harvesting a legal buck. All Oneida Sportsmen will be issued one (1) archery back tag for the harvest of a legal antlered whitetail buck or an antlerless whitetail deer along with one (1) firearm back tag to harvest a legal antlered whitetail buck. Oneida Sportsmen that choose to participate in the antlerless firearm drawing (Hunter's Choice drawing), may receive one (1) of the one hundred and fifty (150) available permits. Any unfilled back tags can be utilized during the muzzleloader season. Oneida Sportsmen are allowed to harvest a total of two (2) whitetail bucks, during the 2011-12 hunting season, with archery equipment, firearm, or muzzleloader during the established seasons. The seasons are as follows:

- Archery Season opens September 3, 2011 and continues until January 29, 2012.
- Firearm Season opens November 19, 2011 and continues until November 27, 2011.
- Muzzleloader Season opens November 28, 2011 and continues until January 1, 2012.

The definition of a legal whitetail buck is any deer with an antler over three (3") inches in length and a total of four (4) antler points or more on one or both antlers.

Oneida Sportsmen will be allowed to hunt for one (1) Oneida elder or disabled member, during any of the established whitetail deer seasons. The elder, or disabled member, must notify the Department as to who will be hunting for them during the 2011-12 hunting season.

The amendments will reduce the overall harvest rate by the membership but allow the age structure of the whitetail deer herd to develop. The three (3) critical components to whitetail deer's health are the available nutrition, genetics, and age. The lands within the exterior boundaries of the reservation provide ideal habitat for food and shelter for the whitetail deer. The genetics are here for quality, healthy deer to reside and produce a strong fawn crop year after year. With the time given for the deer to grow to an older age, the opportunity for a sustainable herd will continue to increase in the future. Mature does will develop healthier fawns in greater numbers each spring and bucks will reach their antler potential if allowed to grow to be 31/2 to 51/2 years old. The proposed changes will allow the Oneida Sportsmen to experience quality hunting opportunities afield while creating a prime opportunity to harvest a mature whitetail deer.

Conservation officers receive new training

By Shad Webster
Natural Resources Director

The Oneida Conservation Department has recently sent the Conservation Officers to the 2011 Native American Fish and Wildlife Society Regional Conference, hosted jointly by the Menominee Indian Tribe of Wisconsin and Stockbridge-Munsee Band. The Conservation Officers attend a number of training sessions directly related to the enforcement and duties of Conservation Officers. During this conference the Conservation Officers received 24 hours required In-service Training and firearm certification qualification.

During the Conference certified Instructors provided tactics and procedures to assist with Officer Safety, search techniques, simulation, surveillance, firearms training, and site monitoring.

The Conservation Officers had opportunity to train with their side arms during five (5) simulation activities. The courses include Firearms Certification, Shooting from a Boat, Simuntions "Shoot or Don't Shoot" training, Active Shooter Simulations, and Low Light/Night Time Shooting (Tom Kroeplin, Training Director Great Lakes Indian Fish and Wildlife Commission). These training scenarios provide real life experience for the Officers and prepare them for possible situations in the field.

Oneida Conservation Officer Harvey Kosowski aims at his target while attending a recent firearms training.

Conservation Officers also participated in Handcuffing and Searching Procedures (Tom Kroeplin, Training Director GLIF&WC) which ensures Officer Safety when establishing contacts afield. The techniques assist the Officers with locating and identifying possible hidden weapons, drugs, and other contraband during field contacts.

With the current rise in active Illegal Marijuana Grows throughout the region, Officers attend workshops on Surveillance Techniques (Bill Gibson, United Forest Service) and Site Monitoring (Mike Sasse, Special Agent Division of Criminal Investigation). The workshop taught Conservation Officers tactics on identifying sites, monitoring activities, and identifying/tracking suspects. The training session included a field trip to a recently discovered and processed grow site and provided an in depth look at a grow operation. The trip examined reasons why the site was chosen and planting/harvesting operations by the growers. The Conservation Officers received detailed information about the surveillance equipment and techniques conducted during the bust.

The Conservation Officers received valuable training during the annual 2011 Native American Fish and Wildlife Society Regional Conference. The techniques and experience will assist the Officers with protecting the Nation's natural resources, however; the Officers need your assistance with identifying violations that occur. To report possible fish & game, forestry, or environmental violations contact the Oneida Conservation Department at (920) 869-1450, Officer Metoxen at (920) 562-5704, or Officer Kosowski at (920) 713-8451. Have a safe and enjoyable hunting season!

My Scoop

NBA Lockout Leads Too…

By Lakota Martinez
Thunderhawk Times

Because of the NBA lockout LeBron James could play in Europe this year?

If you ask me what I think about it. I`d tell you he has nothing to lose, LeBron would only be teaching the "ballers" across seas how it`s done in the NBA.

Even if he doesn't play in Europe because of the amazing basketball player that he is, he will still be in the gym only getting greater and stronger.

Playing in Europe or not, the NBA should be excited and hyped for what the best player in the NBA is going to do next.

The Death Penalty

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This past week the talk of Capital Punishment has been coming up a lot. I have just finished reading The Green Mile. Although the book is fictional, it has some heart to it that makes the meaning of the book that real. The book gives you a feel as if you are there watching the person die yourself. There is this inhuman feeling to it.

My belief is that no person has the right to take another's life. The government or state tries to make themselves feel better by what they are doing, by blaming it on Justice. I don't think it is justice at all. Who is to say what is justice enough, and what is not. The saddest part of all is that some people truly and honestly believe that what they are doing is okay. They honestly think that by killing the criminal the world is better. They believe that person is sick, and needs to be put down. I think it very hypocritical, because you are just as sick if you can sit there and watch or allow the life to be taken.

I can't speak for everyone though, because I haven't lost someone close to me, by the hand of someone else. So I haven't had the feeling of need for justice. Yet, because I feel so strongly about what I believe I think that it a tragic were to happen, I would keep my mind set, and would never wish for another person's life to be taken.

ONHS Homecoming Plans Coming Together

By Jaleesa Caldwell
Thunderhawk Times

Oneida Nation High School's Student Council is planning a homecoming for the 2011 Football Season for the last week in October. (October 24-October 29) We're putting together a school spirit week, class competitions, powder puff football, and a school dance.

As of now, we were told we only have three and half days to work with for a school spirit week, so we planned Monday as Twin Day, where you and a friend dress the same. Tuesday; opposite gender day, where girls dress like guys and guys dress like girls. Wednesday is the color war between classes, where every class is addressed a color to wear, seniors wear pink, juniors wear blue, sophomores wear red, and freshman wear black. Then the last day, Thursday, is our spirit day where we come in our school colors and show our school spirit.

On Thursday we'll also be doing class competitions such as scooter relay races, the human pyramid, tug-a-war, 3-on-3 basketball, and hall decorating. Then, to complete the day, we'll be having powder puff football between the girls in each class. The games will be the seniors vs. juniors and sophomores vs. freshman. With the half day that we have we are hoping to make this a very fun, enjoyable day for everyone.

With no school on Friday, we will continue to show our school spirit with having our football game at 7:00 against Stockbridge. The winners of the two games from Thursday's powder puff football will be playing at halftime, to determine the winners. Then a bonfire will follow, for anyone who is willing to attend. The fire will be put out around 11:00-11:30.

Then, Saturday, we plan to have a Halloween-themed dance for the students here at ONHS. This is the first time ONHS is having a homecoming dance in 10 years, so we hope for the best for this. The dance is from 8:00-12:00. We will be having a costume contest for the top five costumes.

We are hoping to make this homecoming event a success and hope that everyone that is going to be in attendance has a great, enjoyable time.

ONHS Students prepare white corn

Submitted photos

Oneida Language and Culture students in Sonny Hill and Kalʌ́na Brooks' classes are engaged in preparing white corn as food. The corn has come from the high school's Three Sisters Garden located behind Norbert Hill Center. According to Brooks, "This is the first time the Oneida Nation High School ever had a Three Sisters Garden and it was organized by the Oneida Cannery, Iroquois Women Studies, and Oneida Language and Culture Classes. The Three Sisters in this case are White Corn, Bear Beans, and Acorn Squash." Thunderhawk Times reporters Lakota Martinez, Tasha Stevens, and Joelle Thomas interviewed the group which included (l to r) Bradley Sievers, Brooks, Yasmine Denny, Michael Mills, RJ Webster, Devonte Pointer, Noelle Metoxen, and Kanani Nunies.

Dining on a student budget

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

In a time when every penny counts—especially for teens—Noelle Metoxen decides to write about area restaurants, with the high school student in mind. Here are her first two reviews. Watch for more to come.

Restaurant Review-CHILI'S

Last Friday, my mother and I went out to lunch at the Chili's on Mason St. I do have to say I really enjoyed myself. It was around 1:30, so we had missed the lunch rush.

They have the 2 for $20 deal going on. My mother and I took great advantage of that. The soda's there are well sized, in mug like cups. We had the chips and salsa appetizer to start us off. We liked the salsa really well; it had a nice zing to it without over doing it.

I ordered the Chicken, Bacon, and Ranch Quesadilla with fries. It was amazing! They give you a well amount of slices of the quesadilla, not stingy at all. My mother ordered the Fried Shrimp with Avocados tacos and a side salad. The salad was nicely sized as well, and well distributed with the veg's in it.

After a minor mess up with my mother's order (they accidently brought out the wrong shrimp meal) they fixed it quickly, and we were enjoying our meals. My mother is an avocado lover, so she really enjoyed her plate. She was so stuffed she wasn't even able to finish her meal. She had plenty to take home for supper.

I enjoyed my time at Chili's and would love to go again sometime.

Restaurant Review-RICO'S

Last Friday, my mother and I were set to meet my brother for dinner. They were in the mood for fish. We had gone to one restaurant but they had been down for the night due to the storm earlier that day. So getting back in our vehicles and riding to the next nearest place, we came to Rico's in Freedom. I had never been there prior, but my hunger was willing to try it out.

The drinks there were given in quite large cup, which we didn't mind. With a good meal, comes a thirsty appetite. My brother ordered the perch plate, and my mother ordered the cod plate. I ordered a chicken wrap.

The place was kind of small and stuffy, but it was understandable for a Friday night. Our food came fairly quick, and I loved the chicken wrap I ordered. Most restaurants give the ranch in a dipping cup on the side, but Rico's put the ranch right in the wrap for me.

I asked how my brother and mother enjoyed their meals, and they were both satisfied, but my mother had wished she ordered the perch. She had taken a bite of my brothers and thought it was much better than the cod.

All in all, we enjoyed our visit at Rico's, the people there are so friendly and the food was good.

Oneida Housing Authority turning homes green

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

As fall weather turns crisp and cool, Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) employees are working to keep housing residents warm, cozy and green.

Through a stimulus grant from the American Reinvestment and Recovery Act, Rehabilitation Project Manager Dale "Frissell" Hill has used the funds to rehabilitate OHA houses, and help his employees reinvigorate their job skills.

"That's the coolest part about the program," said Hill. "The goal is to give young people a long period of time of good work experience."

Currently, the group of seven men have been working as Rehabilitation Trainees replacing asphalt shingles with metal roofs, changing out vinyl siding for wood siding, and installing insulation among other duties.

"Folks around the reservation know the program is hard, the standards are high, we demand good craftsmanship," said Hill.

James Huff and Paul Melchert have been working for the program for more than a year. Huff had some construction experience before joining OHA.

"I just tore off roofs and helped clean up," he said.

He's appreciated the hands-on training he's received through the weatherization program.

"The things we've learned are actually extraordinary," said Huff. "We learned how to install drywall, we learned a lot about energy efficiency, dry lock, trim work, installing windows, tiling is a big thing that we did learn. Right there, you're basically a carpenter."

"Mainly, we learned understanding the importance of sustainable design and we're looking at long term," said Melchert.

While the program focuses on weatherizing OHA housing, a lot of the work involves repairing damage done by residents such as replacing broken windows and repairing holes in the walls. According to Hill, an average house rehabilitation should run $15,000, but repairing intentional vandalism can double the cost.

James Huff paints drywall in an Oneida Housing Authority home. Huff is part of a team that rehabs homes to make them more energy efficient.

"If it's intentional tenant damage, it takes away from good things we can do in the program," said Hill. "I had one kind on the crew that after he learned how to repair holes in the wall, he said he didn't know it was so time consuming and so expensive, and he would never do it again."

In addition to getting training and certification, the trainees are learning how to plan a project.

"It's not just learning how to do something, but what it takes to plan it," said Hill. "I try to teach them everything that goes into that before you ever actually start."

Huff and Melchert appreciate their new skills and the chance to work with other Oneida citizens.

"Our contractor Jerry Jordan, JJC is predominately all Oneida members, and we are all Oneida members. Jerry Jordan had a lot to do with us learning on hand, on the job site, on what to do, on what not to do. It's basically Oneida members teaching other Oneida members skills trade, and that's a big thanks for Frisell and Jerry Jordan and all of Jerry Jordan's construction workers," said Huff.

Hill acknowledges that it can take patience to work with individuals who are not experienced carpenters.

"You can't have a program that targets those kids and not have patience; otherwise we'd have 10 new employees every month," he said. "It is stressful, but it's fulfilling. All the guys made me proud, they've changed so much."

While the program is slated to end next August, both Huff and Melchert see their work making a long term impact.

"We grew up in these low income houses, and I just hope that the program actually can stay there so I can teach younger tribal members coming out of high school or thinking about college and want to have a job on the side. We can teach them the skills we know and help them out with their future," said Huff.

"It's a great thing to know that the work I've done here will be lasting a long time for the tribe," said Melchert. "I feel like I'm helping preserve our reservation."

Paul Melchert paints a basement pole in an Oneida Housing Authority home that is being renovated to be more energy efficient.

Brookfield Renewable Power Signs Agreement to Donate Land to Hiawatha Institute

100 Acres Overlooks Cohoes Falls and is site where Haudenosaunee Peacemaker established the Iroquois Confederacy

Marlborough, MA – Brookfield announced today that it has signed an agreement to donate land of extraordinary spiritual and cultural significance to the Hiawatha Institute for Indigenous Knowledge. The approximately 100 acres of land, located adjacent to Cohoes Falls in Waterford, New York, contain the sacred site where Skennenrahawi, the Peacemaker, is said to have established the Haudenosaunee (Iroquois) Confederacy, the world's oldest united nations (see story below).

Tom Uncher, Brookfield's General Manager for New York East Operations said, "Brookfield recognizes that this land is part of our continent's rich history and is pleased that the Hiawatha Institute has agreed to preserve and protect the land's environmental, cultural and historical importance for future generations." Instrumental in securing the land grant is Brookfield's Senior Advisor of Aboriginal Affairs, John Kim Bell. A Mohawk from Kahnawake, Mr. Bell is an internationally recognized symphonic conductor and composer and founder of the National Aboriginal Achievement Foundation and National Aboriginal Achievement Awards in Canada. Mr. Bell has raised millions of dollars to provide post-secondary educational opportunities to Aboriginal youth across Canada for which he has received numerous awards including the Order of Canada.

John Kim Bell stated, "returning this sacred and historic site to the Iroquoian People is a deeply meaningful moment in history for our people and I am proud as a Mohawk to have played a role in seeing this land returned to First Nations ownership. I am also very pleased with my colleagues at Brookfield for their willingness to work in such a positive manner with a First Nation's organization."

Also playing a key role in the historical event were Dr. Greg Schaaf, Director of the Center for Indigenous Arts and Cultures, in Santa Fe, New Mexico and the late Mohawk Nation Chief Jake Swamp, founder of the Tree of Peace Society on the Akwesasne Mohawk Territory in northern New York.

Karihwakeron Tim Thompson, Wahta Mohawk, and President of the Hiawatha Institute for Indigenous Knowledge expanded upon the importance of this donation, "For the first time in over 300 years Haudenosaunee people will have undisputed title and complete access to an area which is considered among the most sacred places to Indigenous peoples in North America," he said.

Karihwakeron noted "It was at Cohoes where Skennenrahawi met the Mohawk people and persuaded them to adopt the Great Law of Peace and thereby become the first member nation in what was to become the world's first, democratically based, united nations organization. That event, on the north shore of the Mohawk River, would change the course of human history."

About the Hiawatha Institute for Indigenous Knowledge (HIIK)

The Hiawatha Institute for Indigenous Knowledge (HIIK) is a newly established organization associated with Syracuse University. It was created in fulfillment of a dream first envisioned by the Oneida leader Shenandoah 200 years ago: his wish was to provide a place of learning where the essence of Native knowledge would be shared with the world in a school of higher learning. A group of contemporary scholars, educators and community leaders have renewed the vision. The group consisted of delegates from the member nations of the Haudenosaunee (Six Nations Iroquois) Confederacy, the oldest democratically based united nations organization on earth. They were there to do what they could to preserve the culture and traditions of the Haudenosaunee as distinct Native peoples while making available specific instances of our ancestral knowledge to anyone who has a desire to live in harmony with the earth by protecting the rights of those yet to be born onto the seventh generation. Named after one of the creators of the Haudenosaunee Confederacy over 800 years ago, the HIIK will work in partnership with Syracuse University to offer degrees in areas of study ranging from music to forestry, philosophy to energy, all from a distinct Native perspective in an inclusive curriculum designed by aboriginal knowledge keepers and unique among all institutions of higher learning in North America. The event was facilitated by Jennifer Stevens, and our special guests and historians were; Laurence Hauptman, New York State professor of history, author Gordon McLester, historian and author, and Loretta V. The Oneida Land Claims Commission would like to thank their presenters and participants for making another successful evening coving our Oneida history. The Oneida Treaty History Series will be a continuous event throughout the year; The Land Claims Commission is striving for community outreach, and giving our tribal members opportunities to learn through various events and a social network on FaceBook, and website more about current affairs of our New York Land Claims and our long history.

Up-date from the Office of the Oneida Ombudsman

Shekolih,

As I send out this report, it is quite obvious that the fall season is definitely upon us. Fall is a season of change, preparation, and transition. It seems to be appropriate that this be the time in which regular reports begin to come to the Oneida Community from the Office of the Ombudsman.

Since accepting the position as the Oneida Ombudsman in April, I have been actively working to fulfill the duties and responsibilities as an Organizational Ombudsman in many capacities. For those in the community who are not aware, the Oneida Ombudsman is a position within the Oneida Nation that came about as a result of a General Tribal Council motion back in 2005. Since that time there have been two other individuals that have filled the role of the Ombudsman, but for about the past two years the position sat vacant. It is with great honor and respect that I have accepted the position and look forward to meeting the responsibilities of the profession and practice of an Organizational Ombudsman.

Over the past six months I have been actively working on the re-opening of the Office of the Ombudsman so that it can operate as an Organizational Ombudsman is intended: both proactively; to minimize the opportunity for problems, concerns, and/or complaints; and in the reactive sense of addressing problems, concerns, and/or complaints that do arise. This work has included the following actions: organizing and aligning the Office of the Ombudsman with the core values and strategic results as identified and defined by Ska>nik&=lat for the Oneida Nation, reestablishing the membership of the Oneida Ombudsman with the International Ombudsman Association, compiling the historical information of the Oneida Ombudsman with current research information regarding the Organizational Ombudsman to strengthen the resources and structure that guide the work and actions of the Ombudsman, create an informational brochure about the Oneida Ombudsman, engage in both individual and organizational case work to address issues and proactively act to avoid potential concerns, and actively embracing the responsibility of understanding policy and process at all levels of the organization in order to function as an Organizational Ombudsman ~a representative of "fair process" and the "fair administration of process."

It is the duty of the Office of the Ombudsman not to release information of the work done, or being done, that could identify individuals or groups who have sought the services of the Ombudsman while keeping the organization and community abreast of the issues that surface and work being done to improve the actions and services of the organization.

- Since the time I came aboard, a concern from within the community arose regarding access to care and services with Oneida Behavioral Health. I want to ensure the community that this matter is still being assessed and addressed and will be the subject of a more specific report out to the community over the next few months. This is a complex matter that is being looked at and worked on. However, with the changes that have occurred in the organizational leadership, it is also a matter that is awaiting the opportunity for discussion across all levels of "management."
- On the proactive side of things, the Comprehensive Health Division has been diligently working to operate with open lines of clear two-way communication and to revive the actions of Quality Assurance and Quality Improvement across the division. These are both vital actions within the health arena and also will be the subject of reports to come.
- In regards to identifying trends, the subject matter of communication seems to be at the root of many matters that come before the Office of the Ombudsman. Concerns related to style and amount of communication seem to be an issue that is impacting many levels of the organization. When communication is at the root cause of a concern or complaint, it continues to come out that it is not as much about the actions or end decision but rather the lack of open, clear, two-way communication that is the problem. People tend to be better able to accept actions that they may not agree with when communication is upfront, open, honest, clear, and provides as much of a voice to all involved as possible.

In reports to come I anticipate more information to be provided about what questions, concerns, and/or complaints have surfaced along with resolutions that have been reached or recommendations that have been made for possible resolution of the issue. I also anticipate more reports about the positive actions being taken to improve services and ensure fair process and fair administration of processes to all.

Should I Skip It? Eating Healthier

Kaitlin Fermanich
Dietetic Intern

We've all heard that it's bad to skip a meal. Our bodies need proper nutrition in order to sustain daily living. So why do we do it? Maybe we're too busy. Maybe we're trying to lose weight. Maybe, we just don't feel like cooking so instead we eat an entire box of crackers for dinner. It's not going to hurt us, right? Wrong!

When we skip a meal, our body goes into fasting, or starvation mode. It burns calories from our muscles to help stay fueled. We can start to experience nausea, fatigue, and light headedness. When it comes to weight loss, our metabolism is very important. Our metabolism is what burns calories from our food for energy. When we stop eating, our metabolism slows down. The only way to get it going again is to eat something or exercise. That means that, in order to lose weight, we actually have to keep eating.

Think of breakfast. Do you know why the name was created? Most often, we get anywhere from 6-10 hours of sleep every night. While we're sleeping, we're also fasting. Breakfast "breaks the fast" and provides us with a great start to the day. Maybe you don't like a big breakfast; that's okay! Something small a like a banana, yogurt, or piece of toast will break that fasting cycle.

Breakfast definitely isn't the only meal we skip. No matter what meal it is, we tend to get really hungry if we miss it. Our bodies are designed to eat once about every 4-5 hours. We're likely to eat extra calories if we skip a meal than if we eat on a regular schedule. Not only will we eat more, but we might choose to eat unhealthy foods. Skipping meals can create cravings. When we miss a meal, we might be inclined to grab fast food, or other foods high in fat and calories. That means that we have a greater tendency to break into that stash of sweets we've been trying to avoid. Studies have shown that people who eat less than 3 meals and 1 snack per day are more likely to be heavier than the frequent eaters.

What about that box of crackers for dinner? If you're trying to lose weight, think about healthier food choices. The USDA now recommends that half of our meal is fruits and vegetables, leaving only about a quarter for grains. If you're pressed for time, try preparing meals with left overs, make a quick salad, or try a lean deli sandwich and a piece of fruit.

The next time you're considering skipping a meal, don't do it! You'll feel better and be much healthier in the long run. Let's keep our metabolism running strong, eat healthy foods more often, and give our bodies the nutrients they deserve!

LAX program looking to teach game

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

The game of lacrosse is deeply rooted within the Oneida culture and the Oneida Lacrosse Program wants to ensure it stays that way.

The programs founder Curt Summers created the non-profit group after seeing the excitement of box lacrosse in New York.

"A year ago I was out east and box lacrosse is really big," said Summers. "I thought I really wanted to bring this home."

Box lacrosse is played on a smaller field with walls similar in size and appearance of a hockey rink. "It's a lot faster, phenomenal, crazy and physical," Summers said.

The program is looking to generate enough funds to build a box field along with a field lacrosse site.

"The box alone is going to cost us between $200,000 and $250,000," he said.

Fundraising for the program has been deliberately slow as the group focuses on forming their objectives.

"We have done the brat barn and we are selling shirts with our logo in it," Summers said. "Right now we have just raised enough money to fund our other fundraisers."

Along with game-play Summers would like to teach Oneida youth about the connection between the tribe and lacrosse.

"They have that feeling when they play but they don't know what that is. I tell them that is you and who you are. The game originated with our people and we will be talking about where the game came from and how it is important to us," he said.

During the summer the group held informal gatherings across the area to introduce themselves to the community.

"We got a bunch of kids together and we used (the time) to teach them stick skills. We had kids as young as four up to adults," Summers said. "We had three sites with about 50 to 60 kids."

Summers remembers funding his own trips and equipment for tournaments around the state and in Illinois and Minnesota. He hopes the program will be able to assist future teams and their needs.

"We really had no backing from anybody," he said. "We want to help out those teams."

The program is in the process of setting up spring camps, clinics and meetings. Summers has also identified professional players willing to come to Oneida to help assist with camps and equipment needs at no cost.

He has also identified key potential donors who could assist with major funding efforts but is waiting to get fully established before making any donation requests.

"This is our game and it can take you places," Summers said. He just wants to make sure every child has that opportunity.

For more information about the program visit their Facebook page by searching for the Oneida Lacrosse Program.

Health care providers learn the three D's: Document, Document, Document

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Arthur Thexton prefers not to see doctors. It's not because he has a phobia, it's because he's a Prosecuting Attorney for the Wisconsin Department of Safety and Professional Services.

"I'm here today to give a talk called 'How Not to Meet Me Professionally,'" said Thexton on his presentation given to health care providers from the Oneida Community Health Center (OCHC) and other area health professionals on Thursday, September 22 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

Thexton's talk centered on the growing problem of prescription drug abuse.

"There are now more deaths from drug overdose than there are deaths from car accidents," said Thexton. "The reason the drug overdose has grown is because of prescription drugs, not so much heroin or cocaine or meth, but prescription drugs, and the fact is there's an industry of people out there who pretend to be patients and come to doctors and lie to them in order to get these kinds of medications, and then they sell them, or abuse them themselves, or both."

Thexton stated in his talk that doctors get into trouble with writing prescriptions when they fail to keep proper records.

"Document, document, document," he advised the group.

He also noted that sometimes doctors don't look at people the same way law enforcement might.

"Doctors begin with the premise that patients are telling the truth," said Thexton. Law enforcement personnel, on the other hand, are trained to be skeptical.

Doctors could face stiff penalties if it's found they're misusing their prescription writing duties.

"Doctors are held to a high standard and if they ignore the obvious signs, then they can have their prescribing privileges restricted, and they can be required to get education to help them knock it off, and in extreme cases, we just had to take licenses away," he said.

About 12% of investigations result in a discipline.

"I don't want you to be in that 12%, I want to avoid the problems," said Thexton. "Every provider in this audience will be scammed at least once in their career."

Thexton pointed out a couple of common phrases patients often use when trying to get more prescription drugs such as "it fell in the toilet" or "the dog ate it."

"Have you ever tried to give a pill to a dog?" he asked.

Instead of focusing on pain, Thexton advises health care providers focus on function.

"Is the patient using drugs to live his life, or is he living his life to use drugs? Does function improve or degenerate?" he asked.

Prosecuting Attorney for the Wisconsin Department of Safety and Professional Services Arthur Thexton gave a presentation to area health care providers on protecting themselves from writing questionable prescriptions.

OCHC Registered Nurse Jennifer Hoffman found that information to be helpful.

"It gave me some things to ask patients when they come in, how you're doing, rather than how's your pain, how's it better or worse, ask them how their functioning," she said.

In discussion after Thexton's presentation, attendees asked questions, and discussed the need for different clinics and pharmacies to talk to each other concerning patients.

"We can't let the patients play us against each other," stated one attendee.

Tribal chairman Bailey plans run for Congress

By John Flesher
Associated Press

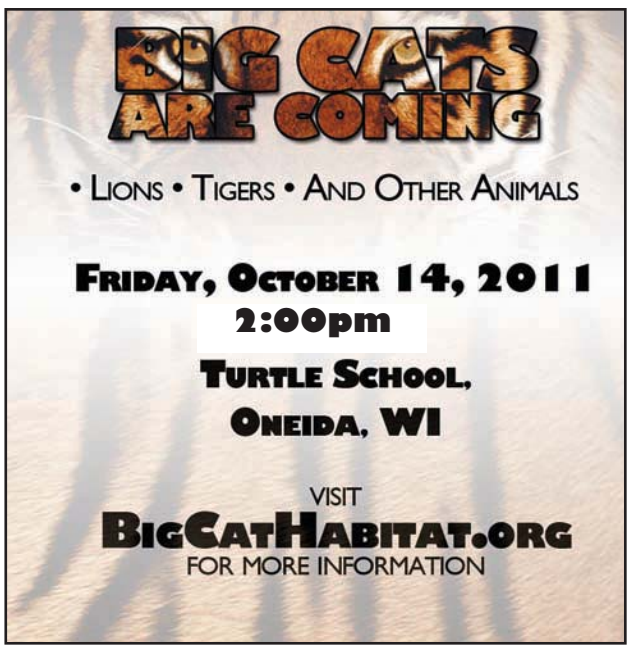
Traverse City, Mich. - Derek Bailey, chairman of the Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians, said Friday he will seek the Democratic nomination to challenge freshman U.S. Rep. Dan Benishek in northern Michigan's 1st Congressional District.

Bailey joins former state legislator Gary McDowell in the race to unseat Benishek, a tea party-backed Republican from Crystal Falls elected last year. Benishek replaced Bart Stupak, a Democrat who decided against seeking re-election after serving 18 years in the House.

Democrats consider the seat among their best prospects for reversing the GOP's takeover of the House in 2008, even though the district may be somewhat more GOP-friendly since its lines were redrawn following the 2010 census. It still takes in all the Upper Peninsula and a large section of the northern Lower Peninsula.

Bailey, 38, described himself as a bridge builder who would cooperate with members of both parties at a time of fierce partisanship to reduce the federal debt and strengthen the economy.

``Working together respectfully ... is the basic expectation for our representatives," he said. ``I pledge, and stand by my past work efforts, that I will bring this perspective to Congress and simply get work done."



Bailey was elected in 2008 as chairman of the Grand Traverse band after serving four years on the tribal council. The 4,100-citizen tribe operates two casinos and the Grand Traverse Resort and Spa, and provides government services in six counties: Antrim, Benzie, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Leelanau and Manistee.

A Traverse City native who grew up there and in neighboring Leelanau County, Bailey was appointed by President Barack Obama to the National Advisory Council on Indian Education. He said he would be an advocate for early childhood education and rural families.

``Within our culture we have a teaching that any decision you make today should be based on how it will impact seven generations to come," Bailey said. ``If you truly embrace that teaching and apply it when making law and policy, then of course you will protect our greatest natural resource."

Responding to Bailey's entry into the race, McDowell said he would keep his focus on Benishek. ``No one in Congress is looking out for Northern Michigan and Dan Benishek is part of the problem," McDowell said.

Benishek's spokesman, Kyle Bonini, said the congressman ``is focused on representing Northern Michigan and will let this be decided by the citizens.'

High court won't hear Oneidas' land claim in NY

By Dawn Walschinski and the Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) _ The Supreme Court has turned down an appeal from the Oneida Indian Nation claiming that it was underpaid for over 250,000 acres in onetime tribal lands in upstate New York that changed hands more than 150 years ago.

The justices on Monday left in place a federal appeals court ruling that threw out the Oneidas' land claims.

The Oneidas say the state illegally purchased land in upstate New York in a series of transactions in the 18th and 19th centuries. They claim New York underpaid for the land in Madison and Oneida counties by about $500,000, a sum now worth $500 million with interest compounded.

The lawsuit was filed in 1974 by Oneidas in New York, Wisconsin and Ontario, Canada.

Amelia Cornelius of the Oneida Land Claims Commission stated she is unhappy with the Supreme Court's October 19th decision to not hear Oneida's land claim in New York.

"I'm just really disappointed that the Supreme Court rejected our claim," she said.

When asked how long she had been working on the Oneida land claim, Cornelius chuckled a little.

"I honestly don't know, too many years," she said. "Probably ever since I was on the Business Committee back in the 50's."

The battle for the lands lost through a series of illegal deals brokered by land speculators and the state of New York in violation of the federal Non-Intercourse Act of 1793 has been going on for some time.

"I remember going to with my grandmother over to the CC Camp when Julius Danforth was chairman, and they were talking about the land claims then, and I remember my grandmother making some kind of comment that she would probably be dead before it was ever settled. Here I am, I'm still alive and it's settled, but in the negative," said Cornelius. "It's kind of a sad day in our history."

Time line of the Oneida Land Claim

1784: Fort Stanwix Treaty: Guaranteed territorial integrity of the Oneida Nation.

1788: Fort Schuyler Treaty: Oneidas cede all lands in New York to the State except 270,000 acre reservation.

1793: Non intercourse Act: Passed by congress forbids states or individuals from acquiring Indian Land without federal consent.

1794: Canandaigua Treaty: Confirms the Oneida's rights to their land.

1785: Fort Herkimer Treaty: Oneidas sold a portion of their land between the Unadilla and Chenago River for $11,000.00. Oneidas lose 300,000 acres.

1795 - 1846: Through 26 transactions the State of New York acquires the remaining land except 32 acres.

1823 - 1838: Impoverished and threatened with force of removal caused half of the Oneidas to relocate to Wisconsin and Canada.

On Monday, October 10, 2011 students from West DePere High School visited the Oneida Tsyunhehkwa Agricultural Site to take part in the 18th Annual Harvest & Husking Bee. Students ventured into the corn field for picking, they then returned with thier bundles and began husking and braiding what they gathered.

The Oneida Museum was also present to educate the students in cultural practices and tools used during the fall season.

Bill may alter how Thornberry gets license

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A bill working its way through the Wisconsin State Assembly will throw a hurdle in the way of Thornberry Creek at Oneida to obtain a liquor license.

Assembly Bill 95 would repeal a provision in the state's 2009 – 2011 budget that allowed the tribe to obtain a liquor license through the state instead of the Village of Hobart.

The provision allowed the Oneida Golf Enterprise Corporation (OGE), a tribally owned corporation, to obtain the critical liquor license without paying disputed fees claimed on tribal land by the village. Past practices had businesses requesting liquor licenses obtaining them from local municipalities.

Tana Aguirre, the tribe's Local Government Lobbyist, feels the proposed bill may lead to more conflict between the two governments.

"The bill is very important to the Thornberry Creek Golf Course because when they first applied for a license (The Village of Hobart) tried to use it as leverage to illegally collect fees on land held in Trust by the Federal Government for the Oneida Tribe," she said.

The bill was recommended for passage in the Assembly Committee on Rural Economic Development and Rural Affairs by a vote of 7 – 5. The bill is now in the Assembly Rules Committee, where a vote in the State Assembly can be scheduled. If Assembly approved, it would move to the State Senate then to Governor Walker where it would be signed into law or vetoed.

Oneida Higher Education hosts Youth College Fair lage.

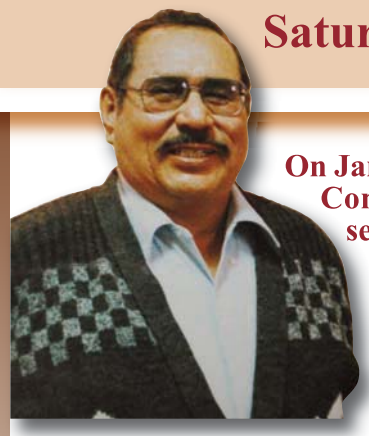
"I believe it would end unnecessary friction or misunderstandings about liquor licensing between our two governments," she said. "Hobart should treat all of its establishments serving liquor the same, including establishments owned by an Indian Tribe, in this case, the Oneidas. Likewise, the State of Wisconsin should treat all Indian tribes the same regarding liquor licenses. (Assembly Bill) 95 would repeal legislation that granted the Oneida Tribe, and no other Wisconsin tribes, the right to go to the state for a liquor license."



OGE President Bobbi Webster has concerns about the course's ability to operate if the liquor license becomes an issue between the two governments.

"The Oneida Golf Enterprise Corporation (OGE) is very concerned about the status of AB 95 which may have an impact on how we conduct business at Thornberry Creek at Oneida. Obviously our ability to engage in business could be devastating by the passage of this bill. Initially when we opened for business a few years ago the Village of Hobart denied our application for a liquor license based upon outstanding debts by the former owner, not by OGE," Webster said. "In order to do business legally we had to apply for a liquor license from the State of Wisconsin. It was granted. Eventually Hobart agreed to award us a license. Now a bill, AB 95 has been introduced to a state committee that seeks to prohibit our ability to seek a license from the state, restricting us to only applying to the Village of Hobart."

"We currently hold a license from the Village of Hobart and we strive to maintain strict compliance with all laws and ordinances. If we continue to be licensed based upon our operation as lawful citizens, we should be in good shape, but if Thornberry Creek at Oneida continues to be a political football we cannot gauge the damage to our business by any government that holds our license hostage for any reasons. We are a well respected business that pays all our bills and should be treated as an asset to this area," she added.

Purcell Powless Remembrance Day

Saturday • November 5, 2011

On January 26, 2011, the Oneida Business Committee adopted a proclamation setting November 5th as

Purcell Powless Remembrance Day

The community and family and friends of Purcell Powless will be planting a tree in his honor and memory on Saturday morning, November 5th on Takwatehkha Road. This is located immediately behind his historic homestead.

Purcell Powless retained the original allotment of his grandfather, John D. Powless and the land remains in the Powless family today. Purcell applied to have his land placed in trust and it was his wish to have his land preserved for ever for the use of his descendants and never to be sold. He is one of only a few Oneida who had the foresight to preserve his homeland in this manner.

Purcell led the Oneida Nation as Chairman for 23 years, he is the longest serving chairman in our history. Under his leadership the Oneida Nation experienced the highest level of prosperity and success ever in our history. Purcell always gave credit to being surrounded by successful professional forward thinkers and doers.

Five years too long
Tell me where the time has gone
I miss you more everyday
It's like the pain never goes away
I know you're in a better place
But I wish I could just see your face
One last chance to say goodbye
Would make my heart feel so alive
As time goes on, my love grows on There's one thing I know without a doubt
I miss you more each day out

Love you bro,
Chantre

Always in our hearts, Love and miss you

We thought of you
with love today but that is nothing new
We thought about you yesterday and the days before that too,
We think of you in silence we often speak your name
All we have are memories and your picture in a frame
You memory is our keepsake with which we'll never part

Lines of communication may open with Village of Hobart

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Business Committee (OBC) took action during the October 12 OBC meeting that may open the door for communication between the tribe and Village of Hobart.

The resolution approved today is very similar to the one passed in 2008 that stated no service agreement negotiations will take place without the village recognizing the tribe as a government with jurisdictional rights over the reservation. The 2008 resolution also stated the village board must abandon attempts to change federal Indian policy to the detriment of the Oneida Tribe. The OBC took action that rescinded the 2008 OBC resolution.

The resolution passed today still requires the village to recognize the tribe as a government with jurisdictional authority but it allows for communication between tribal officials and village officials regarding issues of mutual concern.

"(The) resolution says that only if they recognize us as a federal Indian governing tribe and our right to govern our people and our lands we'll talk about a service agreement and we will talk with them on other issues," said Tribal Chairman Ed Delgado during the meeting. "This will open up communications that have been closed for years."

Delgado says the resolution in 2008 did limit negotiations on a service agreement but unintentionally stopped communication between the tribe and village.

"(The resolution) reminds them that we did not intend that we could not talk on other issues. We didn't say that (three) years ago and we are not saying it in this one," he said. "They misunderstood the first resolution, we need to get to the table and this is not an attempt to back down."

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Jourdan uses experience to build business

JJ Construction hopes to be main option for Oneida customers

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Jerry Jourdan can remember his first construction foreman.

"My father Randall Jourdan, he just passed away, he got me into it when I was a kid. We used to go out with him on jobs sites and build little shacks and little bridges by the ditches. … and I remember being a little guy and having a little apron on and my dad saying 'hammer it there' and 'put it on the blue line and keep it level'. My dad my biggest influence, he's the one who got me in it," he said.

Jourdan has been in construction for 22 years, and started his own business JJ Construction six years ago to combat the ups and downs of carpentry.

"I would go to job sites for the union and I'd only work for six months or so and they'd send you home," said Jourdan. "Some friends and family asked me to do some work for them, and the extra money came in handy."

Jourdan enjoys the diversity of activity he finds in construction.

"It's never the same. The job might be the same, like say you're building the same house next to each other, but the problems are never the same. You might not be square, you might have to cut a stud different than the other one, or the openings are different, so there's always a different task … you might be doing windows one day, the next day you could be doing siding, you could be putting in a deck the next day," he said. "And you're out doors, I love the outdoors."

Recently, he and his five-man crew have been working with the Oneida Housing Authority to do energy assessments and winterize Oneida housing. By installing new insulation and new windows and finishing basements, housing residents will see a lower utility bill.

"Just from me doing this work here has opened up doors through our community doing a lot of work for the Oneida, and I love it," said Jourdan

His crew members are all Oneida citizens, and three are family: his brother Lyle Jourdan, and sons Cameron and Jonas Jourdan. Jerry Jourdan states Oneida should go through Oneida businesses before turning to outside contractors.

"If we can do the work, Oneida should hire us," he said.

JJ Construction focuses on home remodeling projects such as siding, windows, doors, decks and does some new construction as well. JJ Construction offers free estimates.

"There's nothing I won't do, if I don't know how to do it, which is rare, I have people that work for me that will do it," said Jourdan. He can be contacted at 920-660-8976 or Thill16@new.rr.com

U.S. Census Data for the Oneida Reservation

The 2010 population on the Oneida Reservation was 22,776 according to the United States Census Bureau. These numbers include all residents living on the Oneida Reservation, tribal and non-tribal members. In 2000, there were 21,321 residents living on the Oneida Reservation. That is a growth of 6.8% in ten years. There were 8,586 total housing units on the Oneida Reservation in 2010 of which 8,250 (96%) were occupied. In 2000, there were 7,559 total housing units of which 7,370 (97%) were occupied. The total number of houses on the Oneida Reservation grew 13.6% over the ten-year span.

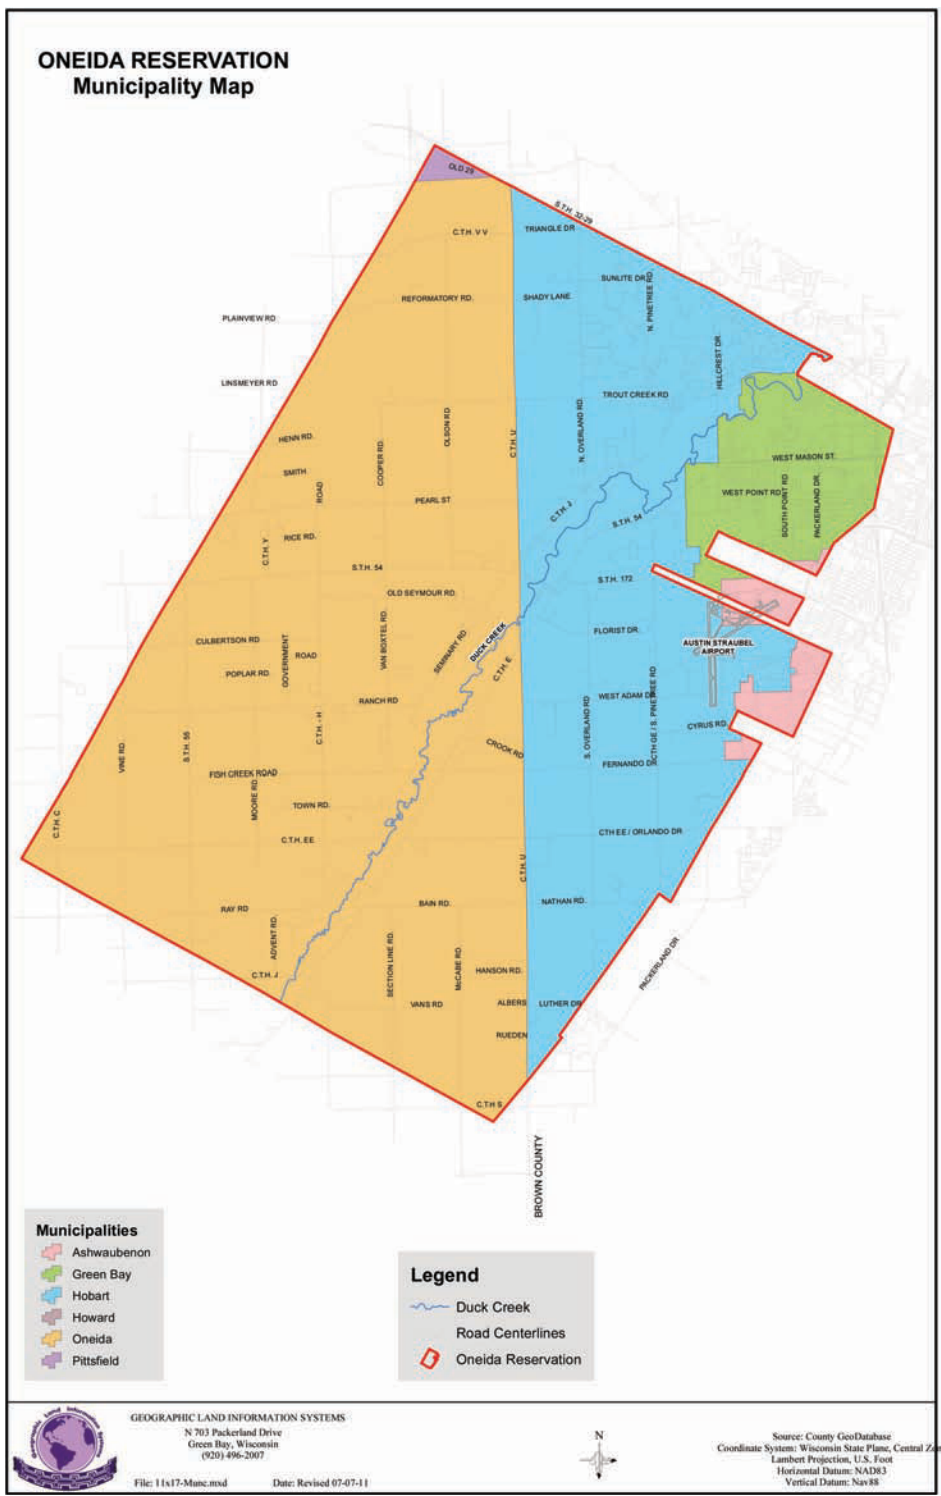
Since the population on the Oneida Reservation has not grown as rapidly as the number of occupied housing units, the average household size has decreased. In 2000, the average household size was 2.89 and in 2010 it was 2.76. This is due to the aging population on the Oneida Reservation. The median age in 2000 was 35.2 years old and in 2010 it was 40.1 years old. The population aged 65 and older went from 1,344 to 2,446, an increase of 82.0% from the year 2000 to the year 2010. The percentage of people aged 65 and older went from 6.3% of the population in 2000 to 10.7% of the population in 2010.

Although the number of families has grown 8.7%, the number of families with children under 18 years old has decreased 11.1% over the ten-year span. The U.S. Census Bureau defines a family as two or more people living together who are related by birth, marriage, or adoption. The number of children under the age of 18 went from 6,601 to 6,104, a decrease of 7.5% from the year 2000 to the year 2010. The percentage of children under the age of 18 went from 31.0% of the population in 2000 to 26.8% of the population in 2010.

The number of rental units on the Oneida Reservation went from 1,581 to 1,791, but the percentage of housing units that were rentals remained at 20.9% from 2000 to 2010. More people were living in rental units in 2010 than in 2000, but the percentage of the total population who lived in rental units only increased slightly from 18.1% to 19.1%. The average household size of rental units remained lower than the average household size of owned housing units, 2.45 and 3.01 respectively in 2000 compared to 2.43 and 2.83 respectively for 2010.

Over 20% of those living on the Reservation in 2010 were American Indian or Alaska Native (4,654 residents). In the 2000 Census, just under 17% of residents living on the Oneida Reservation were American Indian or Alaska Native (3,602 residents).

When the Census was conducted in 2010, the Oneida Enrollment Department reported that 4,199 enrolled Oneida members lived on the Oneida Reservation. In 2000, the Oneida Enrollment Department reported that 3,094 enrolled Oneida members lived on the Oneida Reservation. The Oneida Enrollment counts are similar to the results of the 2010 and 2000 censuses but the Census counts are self-reported and also include members of other American Indian Tribes.



The Oneida Reservation includes all residents living in Oneida and Hobart and residents living in parts of Ashwaubenon, Green Bay, and Pittsfield. The locations of each of those municipalities within the Reservation boundaries can be seen on the map.

According to the Census Bureau, in 2010 there were 4,678 total residents living in the town of Oneida. Of those residents, 44.5% (2,080) were American Indian or Alaska Native. There were 6,182 residents living in Hobart in 2010. Of the residents living in Hobart, 19.2% (1,190) were American Indian or Alaska Native.

The U.S. Census Bureau has not yet released the data specific to members of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin. Watch for future articles detailing those results. If you have any questions, please contact the Oneida Statistics Office at 920-869-4564.

OBC Forum...

Sagoli,

It has been a very busy time for my office these past six weeks working on the reorganization plan for the Tribe. Since my last visit, there have been numerous meetings on our goal and the direction we would like to take our organization. We have been communicating with the community through neighborhood meetings and informing them of the next steps in our endeavor. In the next few weeks we will be holding meetings with the employees to also show them what our vision is.

With this new plan the eight division directors are reporting to the Business Committee, however, we are not involved in day-to-day operations. By having the division directors report directly to the BC, we have eliminated a layer of supervision in the hopes of being a leaner and more efficient organization.

Last week I had the opportunity to attend a Life Study conference here in Green Bay. It is very interesting how our nation has some of the same similarities as Brown County when trying to make it a better community for all of us to live in by increasing our population and bringing back individuals who used to live and work here as well as some who never have. In 2000 there were 5,186 Native Americans living in Brown County. In 2010 there is now a population of 6,715 or a 29.5% increase in Native Americans living in Brown County. To that extent, more housing is needed and one of the goals we are working on is to increase the housing on the reservation to meet the needs of all Native Americans.

David Jordan
Councilman

I attended two Land Commission meetings recently wherein we talked about seeking land areas within the reservation to build houses on. The Land Use Technical Unit (LUTU) is responsible for mapping the areas and determining whether it is wetlands, conservancy, environmentally protected or suitable for housing needs.

On October 10th I attended an Ethics and Planning Seminar and found it quite interesting. It was a very good training and I am glad I had the opportunity to attend. This seminar dealt with not only providing a strong ethical environment to work in, but also Audit's role in providing internal controls to keep irregularities from occurring in the Nation. Everyone has a role in promoting ethics and identifying fraud and should take actions in the best interest of the Tribe. The "Tone At The Top" is where our elected leaders set the ethical expectations and everyone in the organization follow that lead, management through supervisory controls and staff adhering to the controls and identifying fraud and reporting it when necessary.

I attended an Audit Committee meeting and several audits are now available to the general membership. Should you wish to review a completed audit, please contact the Audit Department at the Norbert Hill Center and submit a written request leaving a contact number where you can be reached. They will set up an appointment time for you to review the desired audit.

This next month we will be working on overhauling the Stipend Policy and also the GTC Meeting Policy to bring back to the GTC. Stricter controls need to be placed on following the Stipend Policy and making sure that everyone who receives a stipend for the meeting is actually entitled to the stipend. We have all heard of individuals leaving the meeting and being called by someone in the meeting to get back as the meeting is about to adjourn. This was not the intent of the stipend. The intent was to get more individuals involved in our government and a greater voice vote when changes needed to be made affecting our Nation.

I have also been involved in several Legislative Operating Committee meetings as well as attending several DOT meetings regarding the new highway projects which may affect the Oneida reservation.

The negotiations for the Oneida Nation gate at Lambeau Field is coming to the forefront and as with all expenditures, the Committee will be looking to continue this partnership if it is in the best interest of the Tribe.

On October 13th the Business Committee had the opportunity to attend the Farmer's Market through a "meet and greet". Although the weather was not optimal, it was a great experience to be able to see old and new faces and to mingle with the general public as well as the vendors. I hope to be able to have more experiences such as this to interact with our membership and to gain a more positive relationship.

Lastly, I want to give a big "Thank You" to Tom Wilbur for the opportunity to share the Big Cat Extravaganza show at the Turtle School on Friday. It was well received by the community and our school-aged children. This was a very informative and entertaining show and I thank him for bringing it to us.

The US Supreme Court has turned down our land claim appeal. That shouldn't be a surprise to anyone. The window for a Native American nation getting justice on a treaty opened in 1985 and closed ten minutes later.

We can all turn this decision this way and that, but the cause of this starts with a bundle of arrows that's been dismantling for 200 plus years.

When the Peace Maker came to the Iroquois, he used a bundle of arrows tied together to symbolize the then five nations that came together to form a confederacy. While the arrows were in a bundle, they were almost impossible to break, but individually they snapped with little effort.

Like that bundle, the Iroquois Confederacy stood strong against a coming tide of immigrants from across the Atlantic. Trade deals favored the Iroquois because of their strength, but eventually a division within the non-natives began to break the bundle. Initially, as the American Revolution started, the Iroquois agreed to stay neutral, but regional contacts began pulling Oneida toward the Americans and the Mohawk and Seneca towards the British.

Having undone that bundle, religious leaders and land speculators began unbundling the Oneida people. Religious differences split families and the state of New York and others used Oneida's friendship against itself to get us to sign treaties and land deals that were illegal and in violation of the US Constitution. Eventually, the Oneida arrow was broken into three parts living in Wisconsin, Canada and central New York.

During the time frame when Oneida won its US Supreme Court test case in 1985 to today, Oneida had a chance to come together and negotiate as one, but that arrow was being ground into dust, not by the United States, but by Oneidas who didn't want to acknowledge the existence of the other.

Still today, in this fragment of the arrow in Wisconsin, do our own people want to keep splitting the shaft until nothing's left but shreds? Front line employees versus "Tribal Elites", On the Reservation versus Off the Reservation, Oneida Business Committee versus General Tribal Council. Divisions may change, but they rarely go away.

It is tempting to curse out the federal government or our Oneida leadership at the top of our lungs and continue to crack apart what's left of the arrow. Or we can take a moment to assess if all these divisions, these titles, these walls we put up labeled "us versus them" are doing us any good. People put up walls to protect themselves from the "other", but instead the walls become echo chambers where we can only hear ourselves repeating over and over that the other is bad. We need to use this as a new starting point. We need to unite, to become of one mind as our opening prayer states and work together for peace and prosperity for our people.

Then the feds will be sorry.

Fighting for the Environemnt

Dear Editor:

The undersigned groups and individuals support the following statement and the actions of PEPL in fighting to protect the environment and the health of future generations.

People Empowered Protect the Land (PEPL) of Rosendale achieved a dramatic victory over our threatened land by filing the citizens' petition for a contest case hearing with the DNR. We made public the many flaws in Rosendale Dairy's permit. With strong support from Midwest Environmental Advocates, we moved through the legal process and successfully achieved significant improvement in RD's spreading plan. We exposed the multitude of drain tiles - direct conduits to groundwater - which RD preferred to keep undisclosed. We will continue to watch, monitor, and record. We are beyond intimidation.

Meanwhile, toxic manure threatens to spread across our rural communities. High-capacity wells are drying up our lakes and wetlands. PEPL and hundreds of other groups and individuals are rising up against an unsustainable system. We are aware of the limits of the land and of our finite resources.

While permits to discharge millions of gallons of untreated waste should require mandatory round-the-clock monitoring by DNR, these growing industrial operations are largely self-regulated. Weekly flyovers to videotape the vast uncovered manure pits should be required. Air emissions equipment should be installed to measure the volatile compounds invading our breathing space. Sadly, justice for the land is under attack and needs help.

The people of Wisconsin are rich in persistence and passion. We must be the teachers and urge our legislators to write the laws that acknowledge water is finite, that the people may not be robbed of their natural resources. We are not going away.

- Elaine Swanson, People Empowered Protect the Land (PEPL) of Rosendale

Let off some steam

To the Oneida Tribe,

I am proud of my dad, mom and everyone who deserves my respect.

As for the Oneida Tribal Justice System, Center for Self Sufficiency, the court systems that dare to judge me or an officer that has lied, any district attorney who has backed them and would not let me defend myself, they can all kiss (off). I called the ACLU also to defend my rights; they haven't called me back yet.

What about those 10 Commandments or morals, honor, faith, hope, peace (I'll give you a piece!) and let's not forget wisdom! Thank you for letting me vent!

Crystal Ann (Jordan) Biller

P.S. – I don't want my tribe claiming me if they won't help me! I have no money to pay!

A Humble Thanks

I, Thomas Espinosa, am herby, transcribing this letter in conveyance of my gratitude towards our great nation Oneida Nation of Wisconsin; hence, I truly humble myself for everything the Nation has done for me!

I would like to commend all those who voted for me during the primaries. I assure you that it is my inclination to strengthen my rapport through mutual trust and respect! I adamantly believe any official representing our nation should be one that bestows ethics and/or morale; also they acknowledge it is the General Tribal Council that supersedes when critical decisions preside. Therefore, I commend all members of the Business Committee and others of which were delegated to office. Some are oblivious to the notion that for any governance to become efficient, that all citizens must take to affirmative, this may even entail sacrifice, particularly during these tumultuous times. It is known that a governing body may even have to make decisions that may not concur with the consensus; however what may be deemed unpopular may be of an essence; thus resulting subsequently in prosperity and equality for all.

It is my inclination that if those of prudent mind and body can be beacons in this community. This can only be sought through compromise, dedication and the notion that the end result are the preparation of the leaders of the future, our youth!

I would like to thank our Nation for a means of employment, the Community Health Center and the other vast amenities that continue to edify the lives of our people. Without these resources I would be unable to sustain the life I currently live. Most may take these for granted, I however thank the Creator, and Oneida mutually.

For years my life has been encompassed by the lives of extraordinary people especially family and friends. They have given me strength when I needed it most.

When I am at work exuberance permeates and I always strive for excellence thanks to all associates, executive, supervisorial, as well as frontline! As time progresses we can all ascend thus utilizing the innate gifts and talents we all have been endowed! If ever I have insulted, disrespected anyone I truly apologize. I am just adamant with one objective in mind, that being to eradicate the ambiguity that is quite so pervasive; to improve the facets of communication and to promote cohesiveness. This in turn could alleviate a lot of conflict resulting in greater productivity.

I thank our Nation for the $1200 for I do not believe that this is an entitlement, but as a gift, I'm asking if there are any services that I can offer as a means to pay tribute, for I would rather give than receive. For when I ascend to new plateaus in life, so too shall others. I would also like if any member of Oneida is in need of a great friend, just look over your shoulder, thanks once again! The best in all future endeavors to all!

Sincerely,
Thomas Espinosa

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Opposed: Vince DelaRosa

For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated he opposed, he issued a memo and he would appreciate if he could get responses. He will send it out, he does not know if everyone has seen it or not; it is dated Sept. 20th. He does want a new nursing home built; that is not a question, he has some questions about costs. The Chairman has tried to look at costs and knows that we have been able to drive any costs down. One of his biggest concerns is that this facility will serve about 3.5% of the identified population of people that could be needed services. The presentation that you guys gave us indicated that there would be over 13,000 people; tribal elders, 65 and older who presumably would be in this population group and we are only going to be servicing about 3.5% of those folks. The other 96.5%, I have no idea what we are going to offer. He has framed out in his correspondence, he talks about Medicare; a couple plans like pace and social manage care plan and some other things. He entered his memorandum into the record to clarify his concerns. He also stated he understands when a previous council approves a budget; it would be nice for this council to just kind of rubber-stamp that and move it forward, but he did have some questions and he would have liked to see those answered, but as the Councilman has stated there is a belief that the projects ready to go and it needs to go.

Amendment to the motion by Tina Danforth that the committee be provided monthly reports of the expenditures of this project, seconded by Patty Hoeft. Motion carried with two oppositions:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham

Opposed: Vince DelaRosa, Brandon Stevens

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated he opposed because he thinks it is a little tedious, he would rather have a quarterly report.

Oneida Tribal Judicial System

Quarterly Summaries for July. - Sept. 2011

Initial Review

Rule 9(D) – Criteria for Acceptance:

The Initial Review Body shall accept an appeal for appellate review if one or more of the following elements are sufficiently alleged to exist in the original hearing body decision by the Appellant in the Notice of Appeal:

(1) A violation of constitutional provisions;

(3) The decision is clearly erroneous and is against the weight of the evidence presented at the hearing level;
(4) The decision is arbitrary and/or capricious;
(5) There is exhibited a procedural irregularity which would be considered a harmful error that may have contributed to the final decision, which if the error had not occurred, would have altered the final decision;
(6) There is a presentation or introduction of new evidence that was not available at the hearing level which, if available, may have altered the final decision.

To conserve time and space provided, the Oneida Tribal Judicial System will only put into print the Initial Review Decisions which have been denied. The cases that have been accepted at Initial Review will be published when the final adjudication has been entered.

Denied Initial Review Decisions

Linda S. Dallas vs. Oneida Appeals Commission. Docket No. 11-AC-017, July 26, 2011. Judicial Officers Stanley R. Webster, Pro Tem Anita Barber, Janice L. McLester presiding. Untimely. Denied according to Rules of Appellate Procedure, Rule 9(G) Oneida Administrative Procedures Act: An appellant may choose to file an appeal under the time line established by the Oneida Administrative Procedures Act, which provides that an appeal must be filed within thirty business days of the entry of the original hearing body decision.

Shawn Skenandore vs. Oneida Bingo & Casino, Gaming Maintenance, Vaughn Moore. Docket No. 11-AC-020, September 8, 2011. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless presiding. Denied in accordance with RAP, Rule 9(B)(1): The Initial Review will determine if the case is ripe for appellate review. This case has failed to meet this obligation. This case falls into the Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures, Section V.D.1.c Complaints: If the employee lodging the complaint is dissatisfied with the attempted resolution he/she may ask the Area Manager to attempt a resolution.

Appellate Court Decisions

Looney and Lizzie Mouse vs. Division of Land Management, Oneida Land Commission Board. Docket No. 11-AC-003, June 9, 2011. Judicial Officers Jennifer Webster, Stanley R. Webster, Richard Ackley (Pro Tem), Pearl House (Pro Tem) and James Van Stippen (Pro Tem) presiding. This case was an appeal of Respondent's decision which granted a judgment of foreclosure on Appellant's property due to failure to keep current with their loan payments. The Appellate Body remanded this case to Respondents to answer questions which the original record failed to address.

Susan Blaser vs. Sandra Gauthier. Docket No. 10-AC-032, June 20, 2011. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Janice L. McLester, Anita F. Barber (Pro Tem), Jim Van Stippen (Pro Tem) and Kimberly Vele (Pro Tem) presiding. This case arose out of a five day suspension issued by Ms. Gauthier to Ms. Blaser which ultimately ended in the termination of Appellant. This is an appeal of the Oneida Personnel Commission decision which upheld the suspension. Ms. Gauthier issued the suspension on July 30, 2008 for violation of Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures, Section V.D.2.iv Threatening, attempting or doing bodily harm to another person as a result of an altercation with Ms. Blaser on July 21, 2008. On appeal the Personnel Commission upheld the suspension largely based on Ms. Gauthier's testimony. After review this Appellate body found sufficient inconsistencies within Ms. Gauthier's testimony and evidence presented to reverse the Personnel Commission. Decision reversed.

Jennifer Webster vs. Oneida Election Board. Docket No. 11-AC-019, August 3, 2011. Pro Tem Judicial Officers Anita F. Barber, Leanne Doxtater, Pearl House, Robert Miller, Jr., and Josephine Oudenhoven presiding. This case arose as an appeal of Oneida Judicial System, Trial Court by Jennifer Webster's challenge to the Business Committee the results at the Milwaukee polling site from the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin's general election held on July 16, 2011. Ms. Webster requested the Court to declare the elections results invalid due to the presence of Oneida Election Board member Kitty Melchert at the Milwaukee polling site an alleged violation of the Oneida Election Ordinance, Section 2.4-3. On May 10, 2011 Ms. Melchert identified herself as a subject to recusal due to two conflicts of interest, those being her immediate family member, Rosa Melchert was on the ballot for a seat on the Election Board and her supervisor, Edward Delgado was on the ballot for Tribal Chairman. Due to a shortage of board members at the Milwaukee polling site on July 16, 2011, Ms. Melchert was requested and served as a poll worker a violation of Section 2.4-3. The Appellate Body found that although there was a violation of the Election Ordinance, the ordinance sets a high standard which must be met in order for election results to be declared invalid, Sec. 2.11-11(a) "The person challenging the election results shall prove by clear and convincing evidence that the Election Law was violated or an unfair election was conducted, and that the outcome of the election would have been different but for the violation." It was Ms. Webster's burden to prove that the outcome of the election would have been different but for the violation. It was shown there was a violation of the law in that Ms. Melchert should not have been involved in any Election Day activities. It was not shown that the outcome of the election would have been different but for the violation. Trial Court decision upheld.

Susan Danforth vs. Oneida Housing Authority. Docket No. 11-AC-025, August 23, 2011. Judicial Officers Winnifred L. Thomas, Anita F. Barber, Janice L. McLester, Lois Powless and Jennifer Webster presiding. This case was an appeal of the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Trial Court decision which issued a judgement in favor Respondent, Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) against Appellant, Susan Danforth in the amount of $11,210.90 for excessive reimbursement and having charged personal expenses to the OHA. The case arose from audits of the OHA performed by the Oneida Audit Department. As a result of the audits, the OHA sought reimbursement of improperly overpaid travel expenses and personal charges on the OHA credit cards and Oneida Business Committee adopted an emergency amendment to the Oneida Housing Ordinance which dissolved the OHA Board of Commissioners and assigned the Oneida General Manager the oversight of the OHA program. Ms. Danforth argued the OHA Board did not fall under the Authority of the Oneida Housing Authority Personnel Policies and Procedures because the Board was created by the Oneida Tribe as a separate entity, governed by their own set of regulations and rules. The Trial Court disagreed and found the Board to be under the OHA Personnel Policies and Procedures based on the fact they passed a resolution in October 2004 which directed the Boards travel reimbursement to be in accordance with the OHA Personnel Policies and Procedures, which are regulated by federal standards. The Appellate Review body found Ms. Danforth failed to enter arguments which were persuasive to disturb the Trial Courts decision. Decision affirmed.

Lizzie and Looney Mouse vs. Division of Land Management. Docket No. 11-AC-003, August 23, 2011. Judicial Officers, Jennifer Webster, Stanley R. Webster, Richard Ackley (Pro Tem), Pearl House (Pro Tem) and James Van Stippen (Pro Tem) presiding. This was an appeal of Oneida Land Commission's decision granting a judgement of foreclosure. The case was reviewed by the Appellate Body on June 7, 2011 and remanded on June 9, 2011. Appellant, Lizzie and Looney Mouse has filed a Voluntary Motion to Dismiss as a result of the Land Commission vacated foreclosure decision of November 8, 2010 allowing a settlement agreement to be reached between parties. Case dismissed in accordance with Rules of Appellate Procedure, Rule 11(B)(1).

Matthew W. Denny vs. Oneida Bingo & Casino, Table Games Department, Frank Cornelius. Docket No. 11-AC-005, September 7, 2011. Judicial Officers Stanley R. Webster, Marjorie Stevens (Pro Tem), Pearl House (Pro Tem), Linda Cornelius (Pro Tem) and Richard Ackley (Pro Tem). This case was an appeal of Oneida Personnel Commission decision which upheld the termination of employment for three separate violations of Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedures. The first on May 25, 2010 a written warning for insubordination, Section V.D.2.I.a. The second on June 16, 2010 a five day suspension for insubordination, Section V.D.2.I.a. The third on August 3, 2010 termination. The issue was whether the supervisor's use of progressive discipline to terminate an employee from employment for insubordination according to the Complaints, Disciplinary Actions and Grievance section of the Oneida Personnel Policies and Procedurals Manual was valid. In March, 2010 and May, 2010 Respondent, Frank Cornelius directed Appellant, Matthew Denny to stop advocating on behalf of any person (except himself) against tribal management or the Oneida Nation immediately. He indicated failure to comply with this directive could result in progressive discipline. Mr. Cornelius also verbally reminded Mr. Denny that he was not permitted to use tribal resources for his advocacy. Mr. Denny continued to advocate and appeared at a hearing on June 15, 2010 which resulted in a five day suspension on June 16, 2010 for insubordination. Upon return to work after suspension, Mr. Cornelius questioned Mr. Denny about his use of tribal resources for advocating. Mr. Denny admitted utilizing his cell phone and computer in his role as advocate. Mr. Denny was placed on investigative leave. The investigation confirmed the use of tribal resources for advocating which resulted in Mr. Denny's termination on August 3, 2010. The Appellate Body found sufficient evidence presented in testimony and record to affirm the Oneida Personnel Commission decision of termination.

Trial Court Decisions

Julie A. Mitchler vs. Oneida HRD-Benefits and Crawford & Company. Docket No. 11-TC-038, May 16, 2011. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case arises out of Julie Ann Mitchler's claim for compensation for injuries which arose in the course of her employment. Oneida HRD – Benefits and Crawford and Company, denied her mileage, dental and permanent partial disability claims. Petitioner claims her treatment was in excess of thirty (30) miles from her place of residence and that therefore she is entitled to reimbursement under Sec. 13.8-2. Petitioner asserts her dental care and denture repair is a result of her February 11, 2010 injury and therefore did not submit a claim until April 11, 2011. Respondent agrees there is a 5% percent limitation to each knee, but Dr. Spears included them as 10% percent total. The Court denies Petitioner's mileage claim. Section 13.8-2 of the Oneida Worker's Compensation law is specific and does not allow mileage from the employee's residence or a deviation. It states the employer must pay reasonable travel expenses if "the employer requires the employee to submit to treatment outside the county of employment, and further than 30 miles from the place of employment, Respondents did not. The Court denies Petitioner's dental care and denture repairs. Mitchler's claims were beyond the 180-day limitation as it was filed over a year after her fall. The Court grants Petitioner's claim for 10% percent permanent partial impairment. Petitioner was rated at 5% percent impairment for each knee which totals a 10% percent. Petitioner's claim for mileage and denture repair was denied. Petitioner's claim for permanent partial impairment was granted

Oneida Indian Preference Department vs. Burkel Construction. Docket No. 11-TC-090, July 20, 2011. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Stanley Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case originated from Petitioner's request for a Temporary Restraining Order, which was denied. However, this case moved to request for an Injunction requiring Respondent to adhere to Oneida Law. Petitioner filed a complaint against Respondent for continuously failing to comply with Oneida Law or Rider I, by not meeting with Petitioner to develop a core work crew and by failing to hire any Qualified Indian Trades Workers. Petitioner claims Respondent signed a contract that binds him to certain obligations and he has failed to adhere to that contract. On June 29, 2011 the Court granted Petitioner's motion for a Temporary Injunction against Burkel Construction until a hearing was held on the merits. On July 20, 2011, an injunction hearing was held. The parties stipulated and moved for a dismissal. The Trial Court granted the dismissal.

Oneida Holy Apostles Episcopal Cemetery, Daniel Hawk vs. Anthony John. Docket No. 11-TC-079, July 6, 2011. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. This case was a request for a money judgment against Respondent, Anthony John for burial expenses. A pre-trial was scheduled for July 5, 2011. There was no service to Respondent. Petitioner's complaint failed to follow the instructions printed on the complaint. Lastly, Petitioner failed to appear at a scheduled hearing. Therefore, this case was dismissed in accordance with Rule of Civil Procedure, Rule 16.

Jennifer Webster vs. Oneida Election Board. Docket No. 11-TC-092, July 28, 2011. Pro Tem Judicial Officers James Van Stippen, Gerald Cornelius and Linda Cornelius presiding. This case involved a Petition for a Declaratory Judgment. Jennifer Webster filed a Petition for Declaratory Judgment on July 26, 2011. Ms. Webster participated in the July 16, 2011 General Election running for Business Committee Council Member. Ms. Webster is alleging violation of the Election Law, Section 2.4-3 Recusal and Oneida Code of Ethics, 3.3-1 through 3.3-8 by asserting the election results were tainted due to an Oneida Election Law Violation and Oneida Code of Ethics violation, the public trust and confidence breached because the 2011 General Election was conducted out of compliance with the Oneida Election Law. Ms. Webster claimed that by allowing a previously recused board member to participate in the election at the Milwaukee polling site, it created a conflict of interest. The Trial Court found Ms. Webster failed to present sufficient evidence to support her argument. The Oneida Business Committee was directed to investigate the actions of the Oneida Election Board in its application of the Oneida Election Law in regards to this matter.

Complete copy of the decisions can be obtained at the Oneida Tribal Judicial System office and can be viewed from the Oneida Internet. Submitted by Janice L. McLester.

Most land put in trust for tribes' quality of life

By Suzanne Gamboa
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) ~ The Obama administration has approved 541 land trust applications for Native American tribes and of those, three were for gaming, an administration official said Thursday.

Larry Echo Hawk, Department of Interior assistant secretary, said the majority of the land placed in federal trust was for tribes who used the land for quality-of-life purposes.

Of the 541 applications, 89 were for housing, 191 for agricultural purposes, 47 for economic development, 211 for cemeteries, courts, recreation, health care, child care, education and law enforcement facilities and three for gaming, said Echo Hawk, who oversees Indian Affairs. Those applications were approved from October 1, 2009 through Sept. 11, 2011

"This is not gaming," Echo Hawk told the Senate Indian Affairs Committee after ticking off the numbers.

Placing land into federal trust - meaning the federal government holds title but the land is set aside for the benefit of the tribe - has become more difficult for tribes after the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 2009 that the Interior Secretary lacks authority to do so for tribes not under federal jurisdiction in 1934, when the Indian Reorganization Act was passed.

Many tribes are urging Congress to restore that authority, but efforts have been hindered by concerns about land outside of reservations being put into trust for gaming.

Other witnesses in the hearing said the Supreme Court's ruling has stymied investment in tribal projects that provide jobs for Native Americans and people in communities near tribal reservations. In addition, tribes are spending a lot of time and resources researching documents to establish they were under federal jurisdiction in 1934, witnesses said.

"The federal government already puts burdens on tribal land. The (Supreme Court) decision just adds to those burdens by making it hard for tribes to manage and grow their sovereign territory," Rep. Tom Cole, R-Okla., said in written testimony. Cole is Chickasaw.

at the Milwaukee polling site, it created a conflict of interest. The Trial Court found Ms. Webster failed to present sufficient evidence to support her argument. The Oneida Business Committee was directed to investigate the actions of the Oneida Election Board in its application of the Oneida Election Law in regards to this matter.

Jennifer Webster vs. Oneida Election Board. Docket No. 11-TC-092, August 2, 2011 - Amended. Pro Tem Judicial Officers James Van Stippen, Gerald Cornelius and Linda Cornelius presiding. This is an amended Declaratory Judgment of July 28, 2011. The Trial Court found that yes, the Oneida Election Law does not have a process for an election board member who had previously been recused in a duly called meeting to work at an election. The Oneida Election Law allows for the Oneida Election Committee to contact the Oneida Business Committee to appoint or re-appoint alternates (2.4-7) and that the Election Board acted inappropriately by assigning a recused member to work the election at the Milwaukee polling site. The Trial Court found Ms. Webster had proven the Election Law was violated by conflicts cited that may or may not have changed the outcome of the election. Ms. Webster has not substantiated the claim of personal harm as a result of the Oneida Election Boards activities in question.

Yvonne Metivier vs. Jennifer Hill-Kelly, Debbie Thundercloud. Docket No. 11-TC-091, August 15, 2011. Pro Tem Judicial Officers James Van Stippen, Gerald Cornelius and Marjorie Stevens presiding. This case came through a motion for an injunction in regard to the placement of a political sign on leased Tribal Property. Petitioner, Ms. Metivier filed for an injunction on July 14, 2011 to prevent removal of political signs from Tribal Property of all tribal tenants and home owners, a directive that had been issued from the Oneida Housing Director on July 14, 2011. Later that same day the Oneida Housing Director retracted the directive and issued an apology for any confusion that may have resulted. The confusion was the material in question was a "Ride to the Polls" flyer and not a campaign sign. A hearing was scheduled and noticed for August 4, 2011 before the Oneida Tribal Judicial System, Trial Court. Ms. Metivier failed to appear. The Respondent entered a Motion to Dismiss based on Ms. Metivier's failure to appear. The Trial Court granted this motion pursuant to Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 16 Default (A)(C)(D) and granted the Oneida Tribe's Legal Departments relief of all costs incurred in the amount of $500.00 and all costs incurred by the Oneida Tribal Judicial System in the amount of $1800.00 for a frivolous appeal defined as "One in which no judiciable question has been presented and appeal is readily recognizable as devoid of merit in that there is little prospect that it can ever succeed." Case dismissed.

Joseph A. Stevens vs. Merlinda Tohannie. Docket No. 11-DI-002, August 17, 2011. Judicial Officers Mary Adams, Jean M. Webster and Leland Wigg-Ninham presiding. On April 14, 2011 Petitioner, Joseph Stevens, filed a Petition for Divorce or Legal Separation. A pre-trial hearing was scheduled for June 14, 2011 at 9:00 a.m. Petitioner claims their marriage is irretrievably broken. The Oneida Tribal Judicial System has jurisdiction. By virtue of the fact the parties have affirmed their marriage is irretrievable broken, the Court finds that the marriage is irretrievably broken in accordance to Chapter 72.8-3. Both parties claim that no division of property is needed and have stipulated by signing the Martial Settlement Agreement. The judgment of divorce is granted effective immediately. Upon this judgment of divorce, the parties may not marry until at least six (6) months have passed.

Complete copy of the decisions can be obtained at the Oneida Tribal Judicial System office and can be viewed from the Oneida Internet. Submitted by Janice L. McLester.

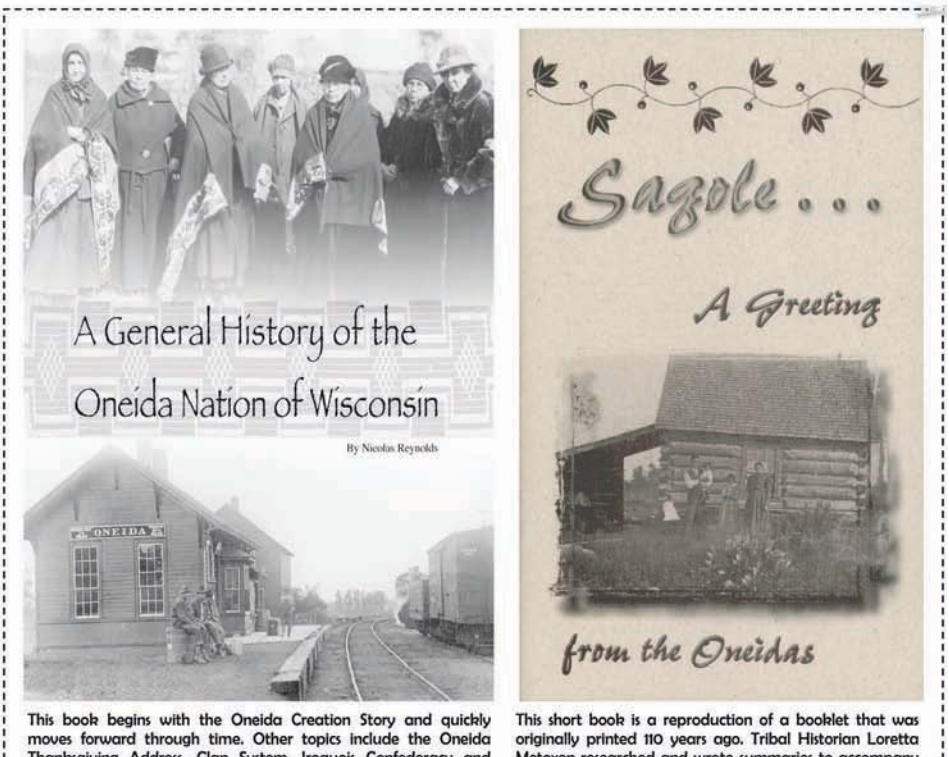
Books for Teen Read Week!



If you read articles about the Oneida libraries in the Kalihwisaks, you may have picked up on that we were awarded this super grant (Institute for Museum and Library Services' Native American Library Services Enhancement Grant 2010 to be exact.) and we have been sharing many of the programs and materials we have accomplished with this grant here in the Kalihwisaks. But we haven't been too specific about the wondrous books we've been getting all year, so many books we're still processing them (getting them ready for checkout), even though the grant ended in September. Many, many of them are teen books. We like teen books. So we thought we'd review a few and tell you about more on the shelves we haven't gotten around to yet. So many books.

A few we've read that we really like and can recommend to teens, and adults that don't care if it says YA (young adult) on the spine because they're such superbly written stories!!

Scott Westerfeld is one of our new favorite authors. He's written the Uglies series, a sci-fi fiction series that rocks! Even if you don't like sci-fi, these are great stories that make you think about society and the ideas behind what is "pretty" in it. We also have Peeps written by him, a vampire story that explains vampirism as a medical condition. Too cool! He also wrote the Leviathan series, a really cool "steampunk" sci-fi, alternate universe setting, taking place in Europe, but with Darwinian genetically modified animals, animals modified to serve humans in greater capacity. We've got both Leviathan and Behemoth, but Goliath just came out and we don't have that one yet, but can get it from a different library for you.

Did you know we can do that—get books from other libraries for you that we don't have on the shelves? Movies, too. You should really check out our catalog at http://www.infosoup.org to see what we do have and what we can get, then we just call or email you to tell you it's right here in Oneida for you.

Also right here in Oneida for you is favorite and popular authors like Ellen Hopkins, Sarah Dessen, Elizabeth Scott, Mary Downing Hahn (ghost series!), Chris Cutcher, James Patterson—we just finished purchasing his entire Maximum Ride series, and have some of the graphic fiction, too! Other series you may be interested in is The Chronicles of Vladmir Tod, Vampire Diaries, How to Train Your Dragon, Forest of Hands and Teeth series by Carrie Ryan (Zombies!), Anna Godbersen's Luxe series, and so much more!! Stop in and see what we've got!!

This book begins with the Oneida Creation Story and quickly moves forward through time. Other topics include the Oneida Thanksgiving Address, Clan System, Iroquois Confederacy and Great Law, European Colonization, the American Revolution and the Oneida migration to Wisconsin and more. Wrapping up with reservation life in Wisconsin and a snap shot into the present, this book offers a great introduction to anyone who wishes to read and learn about the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. (8.5 x 11 inches, 32 pages black and white, © 2010, Oneida Nation of Wisconsin).

This short book is a reproduction of a booklet that was originally printed 110 years ago. Tribal Historian Loretta Metoxen researched and wrote summaries to accompany the 38 black and white photographs depicting the Oneida Reservation and its inhabitants at the beginning of the 20th century. Topics include Churches on the Reservation, Oneida Families, Boarding Schools, Industries on the Reservation and more. (5.5 x 8.5 inches, 32 pages, black and white print, © 2001, Oneida Nation of Wisconsin).

Oneida Veterans Memorial Park

Friday, Nov. 11, 2011
• Hwy. 54

How Veteran's Day 11-11 at 11am began

In 1921, an unknown World War I American soldier was buried in Arlington National Cemetery. This site, on a hillside overlooking the Potomac River and the city of Washington, became the focal point of reverence for America's veterans.

Similar ceremonies occurred earlier in England and France, where an unknown soldier was buried in each nation's highest place of honor (in England, Westminster Abbey; in France, the Arc de Triomphe). These memorial estures all took place on November 11, giving universal recognition to the celebrated ending of World War I fighting at 11am, November 11, 1918 (the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month). The day became known as "Armistice Day."

Activities include:
Honoring WWII Veterans
Amos Christjohn & Louis Webster

Honor Vietnam Veterans
Paul Christjohn, Merlin Cornelius & Clide Ridgeway

~ 10:30AM – Guest Speakers
~ 11:00AM – 21 Gun Salute

Speakers of Families
Closing Prayer
Food & Drink

Armistice Day officially received its name in America in 1926 through a Congressional resolution. It became a national holiday 12 years later by similar Congressional action. If the idealistic hope had been realized that World War I was "the War to end all Wars," November 11 might still be called Armistice Day. But only a few years after the holiday was proclaimed, war broke out in Europe. Sixteen and one-half million Americans took part. Four hundred seven thousand of them died in service, more than 292,000 in battle.

Suri sentenced to 10 years probation

By Dawn Walschinski and Associated Press

Outagamie County Judge John Des Jardins sentenced Deke Suri to 10 years of probation for his aborted attempt to kill himself and his four sons.

"You're basically a good dad, you were involved, you loved your children, and then you did something that was so out of the ordinary that it was just really off the Richter scale," said Judge Des Jardins at the Wednesday, October 12 sentencing.

During the sentencing, Suri apologized to his wife and sons.

"I could never justify my actions, and all I can do is ask for forgiveness," he said. Suri faced up to 104 years in prison, but both the defense and prosecutors agreed treatment was best for the 37-year-old Town of Oneida man. Suri suffers from Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) caused by an improvised explosive device (IED) when he served in the military in Iraq. Suri was deployed three times to Iraq.

Suri will be transferred from the Outagamie County Jail to the Milwaukee Veterans Administration (VA) Medical Center to undergo drug and alcohol treatment until he can be transferred to a treatment center in Tomah for PTSD.

The judge determined that 10 year probationary period was needed to protect the wellbeing of the boys, the youngest now six years old.

"Your conduct resulted in extreme harm to your children. It resulted, really, into extreme harm to you, because something you love, you can't have contact with. You damaged that relationship that you obviously cherished for a long period of time," said Judge Des Jardins to Suri.

Members of Suri's family were in the courtroom to show support. Suri's mother Debbie Melchert and brother Shawn Suri were pleased Deke Suri would be undergoing treatment in Milwaukee and Tomah.

"He's going to get the help he needs," she said.

"That was the goal of the family was to get the treatment he needed," said Shawn Suri.

Back in December, Suri gave his sons, ages 5 to 11, two prescription sleeping pills each and left written instructions for funeral arrangements. Suri then took several pills, but then changed his mind and called 911. The boys were not physically harmed by the medication.

Initially, Suri faced four counts of attempted homicide, but plead no contest to four counts of child abuse and four counts of delivering prescription drugs.

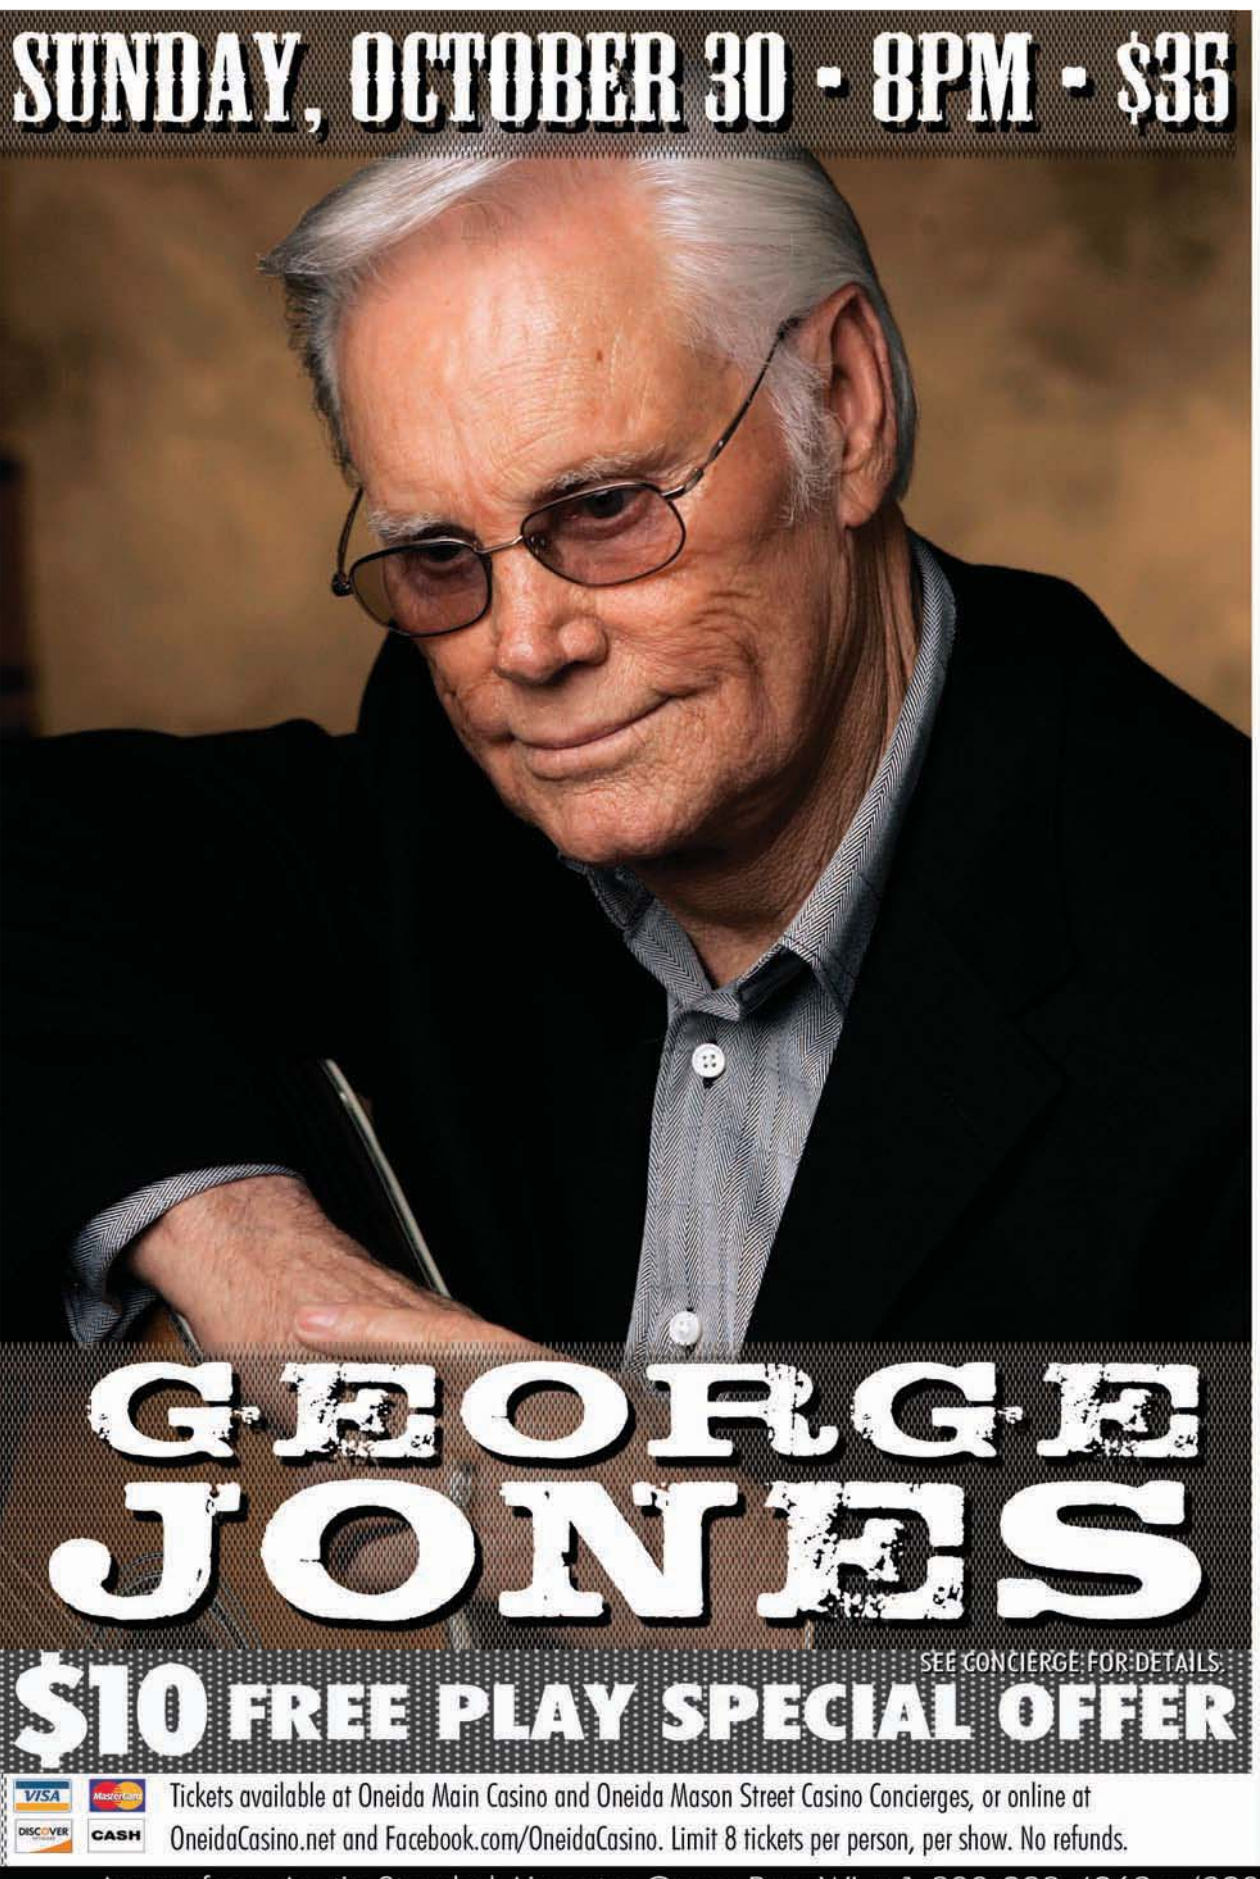
Oneida Filmmaker Chosen to Produce Jim Thorpe Film

Special to Kalihwisaks



Ernest L. Stevens III

Several decades overdue, the true story of Jim Thorpe will come to the big screen for the first time ever. Local Oneida film producer, Ernest L. Stevens III, has been chosen by Jim Thorpe: The World's Greatest Athlete author Bob Wheeler, to bring it to life. "When I first talked to Ernie on the phone, it had nothing to do with the film at all, but his goals and dreams for being a filmmaker really inspired me to want to talk about it," said Wheeler, who is also credited with the reinstatement of Jim Thorpe's 1912 Olympic medals and honors.

Wheeler would soon after visit Green Bay for a presentation on Jim Thorpe at the College of Menominee Nation, and had a chance to meet with Stevens at the Standing Stone Buffet inside the Oneida Casino. "Once I had a chance to hear his point of view on the potential of this film, I knew we had a shared vision," said Wheeler. "Being an up and coming filmmaker and a young energetic man, I saw in him someone who could

Pedestrian safety and the new trails in Oneida

The Oneida Community is changing quickly with the DOT road improvements, the BIA IRR roadway improvements and the Safe Routes to School Grant. Included are trails connecting some of the housing sites to the Turtle School, NHC, the Duck Creek Trail, the ball fields at Site 1, the Holy Apostles Church, the Parish Hall, Elderly Services, and the Health Center.

The new trails will have crosswalks on Old Seymour Rd, Seminary Rd, Hwy 54, Riverside Dr, Elm Street, Freedom Road, and S. Overland Rd.

With the new crosswalks come new rules for people driving on the Reservation.

Drivers must:

- Yield to pedestrians when crossing a sidewalk or entering an alley or driveway
- Yield to pedestrians who have started crossing at an intersection or crosswalk on a "walk" signal or a green light, if there is no walk signal
- Yield to pedestrians who are crossing the highway within a marked or unmarked crosswalk at an intersection where there are no traffic lights or control signals
- Not overtake and pass any vehicle that stops at an intersection or crosswalk to permit a pedestrian or bicyclist to cross the roadway safely

Pedestrians must:

- Yield to drivers when crossing a road where there is no intersection or crosswalk or where the pedestrian does not have a green or "walk" signal and where vehicles have a green signal
- Not suddenly move into the path of a closely approaching vehicle that does not have sufficient time to yield for a pedestrian
- Walk on and along the left side of a highway when not walking on a sidewalk. Note: This law does not apply to bicycles. Bicycles operate under the same laws as other legal vehicles on the road and should always stay on the right side of the road.

So please watch out for each other and try out the new trails as they are completed. The trails are being constructed to improve pedestrian safety and give our non-driving community members a safe way to move about the on the Reservation.

Echo Hawk Swears in James C. Redman as Haskell's Sixth President

WASHINGTON – Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs Larry Echo Hawk today administered the oath of office to James C. Redman at his inauguration as Haskell Indian Nations University's (HINU) sixth president. The ceremony took place today on the Haskell campus in Lawrence, Kan., where Echo Hawk and Bureau of Indian Education (BIE) Director Keith Moore were joined by local dignitaries, tribal leaders, students, staff, faculty and fellow regional academic community members.

"I am pleased to be at Haskell to swear in James Redman as Haskell Indian Nations University's sixth president," Echo Hawk said. "He understands that Haskell is a proud institution with a long history of serving Indian Country. His leadership will ensure that Haskell continues to progress in its mission in the 21st century."

"Chris Redman is a proven leader and dedicated public servant," Moore said. "His commitment to Haskell, its students, staff and faculty, and to American Indian higher education, is unquestioned. Today signifies that a solid foundation is being built at Haskell."

Redman, an enrolled member of the Chickasaw Nation in Oklahoma, was an education specialist with the BIE who had served as Haskell's acting president in times of need. His appointment to the position became effective on July 3, 2011. The swearing-in ceremony was held today at the start of the 2011 Haskell Homecoming celebration.

"I am honored to be sworn in by Assistant Secretary Echo Hawk and to have BIE Director Moore at Haskell," said Redman. "They are as committed as I am to Haskell's future and to continuing the positive changes they have made for the benefit of our students."

The Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs oversees the Bureau of Indian Education which operates the federal school system for American Indian and Alaska Native children from the nation's 565 federally recognized tribes. The BIE implements federal education laws and provides funding to 183 elementary and secondary day and boarding schools and peripheral dormitories located on 63 reservations in 23 states and serving approximately 41,000 students. The BIE also serves post secondary students through higher education scholarships and support funding to 27 tribal colleges and universities and two tribal technical colleges. In addition to HINU, the BIE also directly operates the Southwestern Indian Polytechnic Institute in Albuquerque, N.M.

Haskell Indian Nations University has served the educational needs of American Indian and Alaska Native students for well over a century. Opened on September 1, 1884 as the United States Industrial Training School with a focus on agricultural education in grades one through five, the school was known as Haskell Institute throughout Indian Country until 1970 when it was transformed into a two-year higher education institution and renamed Haskell Indian Junior College. In 1993, the Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs approved changing the school's name to its current form.

Thunderhawk Times

Say Cheese!

By La Kota Martinez and Natasha Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Today is "Picture Retake Day" and we thought we would interview Kim Schmidt of Lifetouch Portrait Studios. Schmidt has been our "Picture Day" photographer here at ONHS for 7 years.

ONHS is not the only school she snaps photos for school pictures. She travels around Northeastern Wisconsin for Lifetouch.

We asked Schmidt what she likes best about going around to different schools and she said, "Seeing different kind of people." She also mentioned that out of all the different photos she takes, some are the student's last photo.

Schmidt is welcomes the thanks that she gets from the parents of students.

She got started by enjoying free landscaping and taking senior pictures on the side. One day, she explained, she saw an ad in the newspaper for the job. Sure enough, she definitely took advantage!

Kim Schmidt

We are thankful for having this talented young woman at our high school.

As she said, "I'm a hard worker!" We certainly cannot disagree.

Thunderhawk Times Staff on Importance of Oneida Language and Culture at ONHS

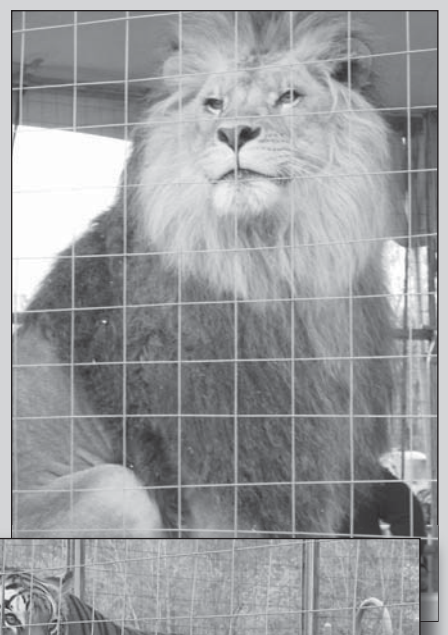
On a chilly Monday, October 17, ONHS staff and students took the short hike to Tsyunhekwa to help with the harvest of white corn, spending the better part of the morning there. Following that, journalism students recorded their thoughts on what makes ONHS special from a language and cultural perspective.

Since I've been attending the Oneida Nation High School, I've learned a lot. I have been able to truly learn the aspects of being Oneida.

"I think it's a good idea for us to have language and culture here at Oneida. It helps me understand it better. I like the classes with Sonny Hill. They are fun, interesting, and we learn a lot. I have learned a lot of traditional stories. I also like the fact that we learn about lacrosse here. The white corn picking on Monday was pretty cool because they don't waste any corn, which is a cultural thing."

– R J Webster

"I believe having to learn our own culture here at Oneida Nation is great. It gives younger people an opportunity to learn more about their history and their traditional ways. Many Native kids don't even have the opportunity to learn such things at schools they go to. So I think Oneida is very lucky to have such opportunities here. The classes that are offered here for Oneida credits, I think are great classes. They're very educational and I learned a lot from them."



– Jaleesa Caldwell

"I am proud to attend this school. We are no ordinary school; just yesterday our school walked over to Tsyunhekwa and helped them pick white corn. Small things like that we do to help out our community helps keep our nation strong. I learn close to it all here, from Iroquois songs, to ceremonies. Attending this school I have a better understanding of who I am, and where our people come from."

– Noelle Metoxen

ONHS Students take in Big Cat show

Submitted photos

Oneida Nation High School students attended a "Big Cat" show held at the Oneida Turtle School on Friday, October 14, 2011.

The show was part of Big Cat Habitat which rescues domestic and exotic big cats. The show featured exotic animals such as lions, tigers, and ligers.

Meet Jaleesa Caldwell

By Shawntel Skenadore
Thunderhawk Times

Jaleesa is a senior at Oneida Nation High School. She's been coming here since the second semester of her sophomore year. She also attended schools in Gresham and Seymour. She went to Gresham when she was in 1st to 4th grade. She went to Seymour 5thto 10th grade.

She lives in Oneida. When asked "how are your grades?" she said "Great."

She thinks her school schedule this year is "Awesome!" Her favorite class is history.

I asked her why she took Journalism, and she said "because it's fun."

In the future she plans to go to college for business or social work. She really enjoys volleyball.

Some of Jaleesa's favorite things are: all kinds of music, A Child Called It for a book, the color pink, hot Cheetos, the TV show "Bad Girls Club", the movie "Selena," and the celebrities Selena Gomez, Rob Kardashian, and Nicki Minaj.

She says her grandparents are her role models because they push her to succeed. She doesn't have words to live by but she thinks President Obama "is the best!" She loves the Packers. Her plans for the future include business management.

Diagrams with Meaning

By Matthew Powless
Thunderhawk Times

People have different personalities. With that in mind, I thought it would be fun to come up with some drawings and ask people to pick one.

I got eleven different drawings from the deviantart website.

I wanted each drawing to symbolize a person, their personality and emotion.

I looked around for different drawings on the internet. I chose shapes that came from what I know. The shapes also came with colors. Each colored shape was given a character trait.

The shapes and colors were for things like courage, friendship, love, sincerity, knowledge, liability, hope, light, kindness, destiny, and miracles.

I redrew the drawings into a sketch book and asked people to choose one shape and color. I called them "crests."

The results have been interesting. You might think that certain things would impact which crest a person chose, but that didn't seem to be the case. The age or gender of the person didn't seem to matter, for example.

Vincent Webster chose miracles. He said he picked that shape and drawing because" _____ ."

Noelle Metoxen picked miracles, too. But she also liked knowledge and light.

Tyler Stevens picked light.

These are just a few examples.

No one shape and color was the favorite of the most people. Every crest was chosen by someone.

Teachers also picked many different crests.

"I thought it was interesting to see which one stuck out to me," said Noelle.

Cowboys & Aliens movie review

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

Cowboys & Aliens is an action thriller; it is a different take on the Wild West. It stars Daniel Craig, Harrison Ford, Olivia Wilde, Noah Ringer, and my personal favorite Adam Beach. Jake Lonergan (Daniel Craig) wakes in a desert and can't remember a thing. All he has is a photo and a weird device locked around his wrist.

The movie captures you early on; you want to know what is happening and how it all started. Throughout the movie Jake Lonergan gets his memory back in pieces.

The movie is a somewhat cheesy idea, yet it is delivered quite well. Woodrow Dolarhyde (Harrison Ford) plays a curmudgeon old man who was in the war. He is now a wealthy man whose son acts like he runs the town. His son Percy Dolarhyde (Paul Dano) gets drunk and constantly harasses the town.

Then the alien ships arrive they start to snatch up people and fly them away. The movie is about the group of survivors trying to rescue their captured neighbors, friends, and family. As they travel through the desert in search of the aliens they get into many quarrels and arguments.

The movie is very well put together; the director is Jon Favreau, the same director of Iron Man. This movie was very interesting with many twists and turns. Also it is quite fun to see how James Bond and Indiana Jones work together.

Truth about Energy Drinks

By Joelle Thomas with Melissa Sanders (ONHS ATODA Counselor)
Thunderhawk Times

Teens often drink energy drinks to help them stay awake or stay alert or because of the colorful cans or cool names. The ingredients in energy drinks, however, are very hazardous.

The high level of caffeine in energy drinks is what keeps students awake. In order to mask the bitter taste of caffeine, energy drink makers add a lot of sugar to the drinks. This adds a lot of calories with no nutrition to the body.

The drinks chemically stop the body from its natural ability to sleep. They also increase your heart rate and blood pressure.

Mixing alcohol and energy drinks sends your body into a state of confusion and can be very deadly. And no one under the age of 21 should be drinking.

Most energy drinks contain 3 times the caffeine of soda. And 5-hour energy also has caffeine.

Energy drinks cause dizziness and, sometimes, death. Drinking energy drinks during games can also cause dehydration.

Employee accrued vacation pay proposals using Oneida gift cards for employees with more than 280 accrued hours and trade back for cash quarterly basis in 2012

Sponsor: Joint Executive Management Team (JET)

Motion by Patty Hoeft to defer the request to use Oneida gift cards for employees with more than 280 accrued hours to the Sept. 28 BC meeting, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with one abstention:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Abstained: Tina Danforth

For the record: Tina Danforth stated she is abstaining because she does not have any questions regarding this item, so she doesn't have a need to hold it up.

Motion by Patty Hoeft to defer the trade back for cash request to the Sept. 28 BC meeting to allow the Business Committee to meet with JET before the meeting to review the trade back for cash benefit, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with two abstentions:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham

Abstained: Tina Danforth, Brandon Stevens

For the record: Tina Danforth stated that she abstained because this is an allowable expense and process and there is always going to be some discussion about the trade back issue as long as we have it, so she really wanted to support the request that was brought forward, but if you need more time, you need more time.

Memorandum of Agreement between Indian Health Services (IHS) and the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin for project BE-11-G54, in the amount of $40,000 for sanitation facilities construction

Oneida Tribal School Board attorney contract – Fredericks, Peebles and Morgan

Sponsor: Melinda J. Danforth

Motion by Melinda J. Danforth to approve the Oneida Tribal School contract, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried with two oppositions:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Opposed: Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated he is support of approving this contract because its paid by outside monies and the nature of services are majorly review analysis of applicable federal and state laws, so it's more of a contract review and technical type support which would not require a whole lot of travel unless requested by the board, so in saying that he thinks because the school board reports to GTC we're just a processing mechanism to approve the contracts.

Business Committee 2011-2014 liaison assignments

Sponsor: Ed Delgado

Motion by Patty Hoeft to approve the Business Committee 2011-2014 liaison assignments with a request from Tina Danforth to be assigned to Native American Bank (NAB), seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried unanimously.

Oneida Casino black jack dealer wages proposal

Sponsor: Vince DelaRosa

Motion by Tina Danforth to clarify GTC action that all employees making under $60,000 shall be given the $.75 increase, seconded by Vince Delarosa. Motion carried unanimously.

Amendment to the main motion by Brandon Stevens to direct the black jack dealer's inclusion in the $.75 wage increase effective Oct. 1, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with one abstention:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Abstained: Tina Danforth

For the record: Tina Danforth stated she is abstaining because she thinks her main motion suffices that it clarifies all employees. She is not going to split hairs over employees; she doesn't think that's reasonable, she doesn't think it's appropriate. She thinks all means all and believes that was also said during the meeting as a side discussion. Regardless, the motion from GTC is now a directive for us to carry out and it said all employees under $60,000. So she doesn't want to weigh in on an amendment to specify one group of employees; she doesn't think that's justifiable.

Second amendment by Vince DelaRosa to clarify to strike the term 'black jack' dealers and replace it with 'casino dealers' with the intent to include all dealers, second by David Jordan. Motion carried with one abstention:

Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Abstained: Tina Danforth

committee in two weeks, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion passes with four opposed, with the support of Chairman Delgado:
Ayes: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan
Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated I'm not looking to oppose the operation I just want to see if there is a way to contain some cost. I'm just going to prepare a memorandum and leave it at that. Thank you.
For record: Brandon Stevens stated he just wanted to make sure that the community knows that the previous Business Committee who is comprised of five of the committee that are presently sitting up here right now, had had three years to look at this and now we're looking at again and now there's new questions, of the same facility all over again. So he wanted to make sure that's clear and known; that we had three years to look and you know we're up here again questioning it after everything has been looked at and stripped down as far as it needs to be right now and he thinks we're at where it needs to be and thinks we need to have no more further delays. Thank you.
For the record: Melinda J. Danforth stated she doesn't oppose the fact that we want to save money either. Her disappointment today was that the BC yesterday had said that we were going to defer this issue for two weeks. So she went to ONCOA and told them that and none of them are present here and she really doesn't think that's fair, but she too believes that the savings is going to go through that construction phase that Greg had talked about and is still unclear about the purpose of the subcommittee and who's going to be participating and hopes that the recommendations, since the motion is through, she means she can support it and we'll see what those recommendations are in two weeks and hopefully it doesn't cost us anymore money.

Motion carried with one opposition:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Opposed: Vince DelaRosa
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated that he opposed, because he has not seen, the open PO correspondence released on June 22, so he is not even familiar of the nature of that particular release.
Approve exception to the Land use regulation policy for Jody and Aleta Cornelius to pay the Hobart Village carport permit of $80 and the barn demolition permit of $200
Motion by David Jordan to approve the exception to the Land use regulation policy, seconded by Paul Ninham. Motion carries with one opposition:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Opposed: Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated she opposes because she doesn't agree with allowing for procedural exception to this policy. She understands there is hardship, but there is a lot of hardship with community members and she is just not in support of making a procedural exception to a policy that is already controversial.
Approve the schedule of fines that accompanies the 2011 amendments to the Zoning and Shoreland Protection Ordinance and Building Code Violations as presented

Abstained: Tina Danforth, Brandon Stevens
For record: Tina Danforth abstained because this is a management call, this is not a Business Committee call. She finds it very appalling and Brandon Stevens concurs. We shouldn't be making decisions on how and when people eat their lunch, we really shouldn't. She's not trying to be facetious or nothing; she just really doesn't understand this.

Opposed: Tina Danforth, Paul Ninham
For the record: Paul Ninham stated he opposed due to we should have made decisions by now, we've had plenty of time. To delay it for another two weeks, the individuals don't know where they are at, the organization; we don't know where we're at. He wishes we would have done this much earlier.

If You are a Native American Who Was Denied a Farm Loan or Loan Servicing by the USDA

You Could Receive Benefits from a Class Action Settlement.

A federal Court authorized this Notice. This is not a solicitation from a lawyer.

- A $760 million Settlement with the United States Department of Agriculture ("USDA") has been reached in the Keepseagle v. Vilsack class action lawsuit. The lawsuit claimed the USDA discriminated against Native Americans by denying them equal access to credit in the USDA Farm Loan Program.
- You may be eligible for a payment of up to $50,000 or more and forgiveness of some or all of your outstanding USDA loans if you applied for or attempted to apply for a farm loan or loan servicing from the USDA between January 1, 1981 and November 24, 1999 (see Question 4).
- The USDA has also agreed to make some changes to its farm loan programs to help make sure that these programs meet the needs of Native American farmers and ranchers
- These rights and options – and the deadlines to exercise them – are explained in this notice.
- The Court in charge of this case still has to decide whether to approve the Settlement. Payments will be made if the Court approves the Settlement and after any appeals have concluded and the claims process is completed. Please be patient.

Object/Comment	Remain in the Settlement and write to the Court about any concerns you have about the Settlement.
Go To a Hearing	Remain in the Settlement and ask to speak in Court about the fairness of the Settlement.
Do Nothing	Get no money or loan forgiveness. Give up rights to sue the USDA about the claims in this lawsuit.

Postal Service sets holiday mailing deadlines

ONEIDA, WI — With the leaves starting to fall and autumn upon us, it's not too early to start thinking about holiday cards, letters and packages destined for service members and their families stationed overseas. The first deadline for the 2011 holiday season is just around the corner.

Friday, November 12, is the deadline for sending holiday packages to troops stationed overseas using Parcel Post to all Air/Army Post Office (APO) or Fleet Post Office (FPO) ZIP Codes.

The large Priority Mail Large Flat Rate Box (12" x 12" x 5 ½") offers a $2 discount to APO/FPO destinations and ships for just $12.95. Customers can access shipping information by adding Delivery Confirmation, which is available for almost all military destinations, including those outside the United States. Delivery Confirmation provides customers with the date, ZIP Code of delivery, and time the package was delivered. This information can be accessed online at www.usps.com.

The Postal Service's popular Military Care Kits also help military families and friends keep free shipping supplies within reach. Each kit contains six Priority Mail Flat Rate boxes (two large and four medium-sized boxes), six customs forms and envelopes, six Priority address labels and one role of military tape. The kit may be ordered by calling the USPS Expedited Package Supply Center at 1-800-610-8734. All packages and mail must be addressed to individual service members, as required by U.S. Department of Defense regulations.

"Nothing lifts the spirit higher than using the mail to communicate with our service members during the holidays," adds Koenig. "Receiving a card, letter or package brings them closer to family and closer to home." The complete list of military mailing deadlines follows:

White honored for investment work

Susan White
Oneida Trust Department Director

Director of the Oneida Trust Department Susan White was honored with a Socially Responsible Investing (SRI) Service Award for her work in bringing Native American issues and concerns to the attention of SRI investor services. The award was given at the SRI in the Rockies Conference held in early October.

Her work in the area started in 2001 when a SRI conference was planned for Olympic Valley – also known as Squaw Valley.

"I called them up, and I said my trust committee wants to know why you're holding this conference at a name that's so derogatory to us as Native Americans, and they said 'I'll call you back,'" said White.

The conference organizers arranged a meeting with the business owners that had Squaw in their title.

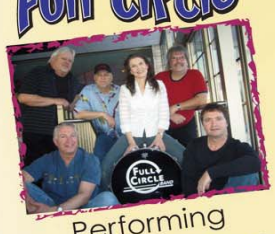
"There was a wealthy woman who owned a lot of territory, she claimed to be the oldest squaw in the valley," said White. "So she had no clue."

While the meeting didn't change any of the owners' minds, the SRI conference organizers became aware of the derogatory nature of that word as well as others words referring to Native Americans.

"We're doing another letter concerning the Washington DC NFL team name," said White. "And we're going to have a lot more Native American signers."

More recently, White has been working to get more tribes involved in SRI through the Social Investment Forum. In November, White will travel to the National Congress of American Indians NCAI Conference to present on implementing SRI for tribes, and get NCAI to act as a clearing house for issues pertaining to Indian Country.

"We can all go to (NCAI) to get the latest information and see what we can do to help or we can go and say I'm having this issue," she said.



Ideally, White would like other tribes to participate in the monthly Social Investment Forum conference calls.

"Help us with ideas, and they have assets and they have leverage. Even if Oneida doesn't own shares in a certain corporation, we can still work in solidarity of those other tribes. We can find clients of our SRI money managers who have shares, and they lend proxies to help us. We have a lot of friends," she said.

Credits to transfer easier

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ The University of Wisconsin System hopes that making it easier for students to transfer to its campuses will boost graduation rates.

About 17,000 students transfer into and within the UW System each year. Sometimes credits and money are wasted when course requirements don't match.

During a meeting Thursday in Green Bay, UW regents will hear about a new online tool to help students plan in advance for a transfer. The tool will help them determine which credits at their campus will apply toward a specific major at UW-Madison. Two or three additional four-year campuses will be added each year.

The Journal Sentinel says a broader online tool called the Transfer Information System helps students determine which credits will transfer among schools.

Wis. mine plans pit jobs against environment

MADISON, Wis. (AP) ~ The idyllic Penokee Range is a hiker's paradise, a thickly forested ridge running 20 miles from Lake Superior's shoreline across far northwestern Wisconsin. It's a kaleidoscope of color in autumn, a postcard perfect snowscape in winter.

Yet as the economy lags, it's an increasingly enticing target for the mining industry, and the much-needed jobs it brings.

Republicans looking to deliver on job promises have decided to help a Palm Beach Gardens, Florida-based mining company extract what it says are billions of tons of iron ore buried beneath the range. The company, Gogebic Taconite, has promised the project will generate millions of dollars in tax revenue and hundreds of well-paying jobs for a region that has little else to offer beyond a chance for outdoor getaways.

But it also could transform the pristine landscape into a noisy, deep-pitted, potentially polluted eyesore, setting up a charged debate over how much a state that prides itself on conservation should sacrifice for paychecks.

``These are hard, gut-wrenching questions. Economic development, environmental damage, how can we have jobs for our kids,'' said Tom Evans, a Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey mining specialist.

Republicans, acutely aware that stirring more anger at the GOP could have re-election consequences, are treading carefully. Gov. Scott Walker, who faces a potential recall next year over his push to curtail public workers' collective bargaining rights, is taking a middle-of-the-road stance on the mine, saying he supports it as long as it doesn't jeopardize farming and tourism.

Republicans in the state Senate, meanwhile, are still stinging after two of their own were ousted from office in recall elections over the union cutbacks. They're talking about working with Democrats on a mine bill designed to speed the permitting process.

Chief of Staff says good-bye

Shekoli Swakweku,

As my contract ends with the Oneida Tribe, I want to leave you with some of my thoughts.

The Oneida Nation is an exceptional nation and I am extremely proud and honored to have been associated with my government for over 30 years. I was fortunate to experience tremendous progress and growth throughout my career with our Nation. I dedicated myself to obtaining the skills to pursue excellence. I honorably served as a U.S. Marine NCO and when I secured my master's degree, it was at Harvard University. I wanted to bring as much as I could to address the needs of our nation. During my tenure with the Tribe, I first worked in Planning. Later I directed the Oneida Language Program, helped develop and then administered the Oneida Tribal Schools, directed Legislative Affairs, served as General Manager and most recently as Chief of Staff. In each post, I accepted the challenges before our Nation at the time. I now look to our young people to similarly engage and dedicate themselves to growing and protecting the Oneida Nation. Never be satisfied with the average. Learn all you can learn and contribute all you can contribute. The future of our Nation will soon rest with your leadership and skills. Among those things necessary for the preservation of our Nation will be continuous protection of our legal rights and exercise of Tribal government.

The new Oneida Business Committee is choosing new goals and directions and I must move on. I have been privileged and honored to work with many outstanding Oneida people like Purcell Powless, Rick Hill, Gerald Danforth and others who instilled confidence and commitment to advancement and growth and who advocated sovereignty, good governance and forward thinking. I thank everyone with whom I have worked over the many years. I learned much from all of them.

For much of my time the Land Claim was a large part of my responsibility. As New York Governor Pataki in December 2004 signed our settlement agreement, we rejoiced, only to be disappointed by political upheaval and betrayal. On October 17, 2011 the United States Supreme Court denied certiorari on our case regarding the existence of our Claim. They relied on tests and not facts to reach their conclusion. In my view this is an incredible miscarriage of justice. In my years of lobbying, negotiating and planning I have experienced the complexity of political and legal challenges that continually face our nation. Positively concluding the Claim was to be the last gift that I hoped to give our nation before the end of my career. The Court has now decided the fate of our claim in the judicial forum, others here will determine how or if to pursue the fight. I acknowledge Justices Sotomayor and Ginsberg for their support, and I think of former Justice Hugo Black's remarks, "Great nations like great men should keep their word." It is interesting that two women Justices showed their greatness as they voted on the side of justice. I pray that we continue our fight.

When I first worked for the Tribe there were only a handful of employees in the old tribal building on H and a few offices in the civic center. I recall that because Chicago Corners was on the Seymour phone line and the civic was on Pulaski's, it was long distance from one end of the reservation to the other. Because the Tribe's budget was less than a thousand dollars per year, the phone bills were depleting our operating budget. We bought Citizen Band radios to communicate. I won't say what the people's "handles" were.

We always had our pride and dedication, but from those humble economic beginnings, we have evolved a strong and vibrant Nation. We developed jobs, brought people home, developed infrastructure, and cultural and service institutions. We provide a broader array of social services than the county. We are recognized nationally as a leader in governance. We are a national model in the exercise of the provisions of the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act and have often testified before Congress on that and other matters of law. I encourage us all to travel to other reservations and compare us to others in Indian Country. It will help give perspective on the quality of our public policy.

I am not certain of my next steps. I would like to work with another nation that is building. I will look to other options. In the past, when not working for the Tribe, I held the positions of Assistant Chancellor at UW-Green Bay, the Senior Planner for the Boston Indian Council, and served as an Educational Consultant for the Department of Public Instruction. Those positions were meaningful to me, but what has always been the most rewarding has been participating in the growth of Oneida.

As I leave my post on October 28, I caution us all to know that there are many whose goals are to diminish our sovereignty and change us forever. Guard our Nation well!

help carry on the legacy of the Jim Thorpe story from the page to the big screen."

Stevens has recently made strides in his film career, co-producing the upcoming feature film Crooked Arrows, an underdog sports comedy about a Native American Lacrosse team similar to The Mighty Ducks. The film was shot this summer and is now in post-production to be released in Spring of 2012 (www.crookedarrows.com). "Being involved in a production of this size (approx. $7M), it became clear to me that I was ready and able to be a feature film producer," said Stevens. "I know, with the support I have from industry professionals, my networks and especially Bob, I can and will make this film a reality."

Alongside the theatrical film will be a "docu-drama," heavily driven by debunking myths and sharing personal stories of the "greatest moments" in Jim's life. These moments in the docu-drama will correlate to what is revealed in the theatrical feature. "The goal is to get people hungry for more of the Jim Thorpe story by giving them inspirational anecdotes, through the docu-drama, which will be released before the theatrical film," says Stevens. "Then, we knock the world off its feet with the feature." The original theatrical film, starring Burt Lancaster, was produced in 1951. Since then, as with most films, it became the basis of many views on the "true story" of Jim Thorpe. Truth is, it was falsified. "The original screenwriters took a paragraph on Jim Thorpe and made up the rest," said Wheeler. "When Mr. Lancaster told me his portrayal of Jim Thorpe was more 'reel life' than 'real life,' I was determined to write a biography that cleared up misinformation and adhered to fact. He challenged me to ensure that the true story was told someday, and I think that Ernie has the credentials and integrity to do it."

> "There are too many myths out there that need to be debunked, and too many amazing stories of Jim's life that need to be told..."
> – Ernest L. Stevens III

Stevens' company, Eagle Eye Enterprises LLC, will be the developing umbrella of the production, yet untitled. The company has already made strides in developing the brand further through working with the NFL. His business partner, Daphne Boyd, has helped established an official partnership with the NFL through the NFL Super Learning Program that will work with statewide high school students in Indiana. This initiative was just announced a couple weeks ago in Indianapolis, the location of this season's Super Bowl. "The goal of this program is to expose these students, and eventually students across the US and other countries, to the story of Jim Thorpe and educate them on wellness, leadership, and the importance of lifelong learning," explained Boyd. Eagle Eye will unveil the Jim Thorpe curriculum next year at the 2012 Super Bowl, alongside the Let's Move initiative and other national programs, and will continue on to the 2012 Olympics where Eagle Eye will further brand the Jim Thorpe story. "Next year is the 100 year anniversary of the 1912 Olympics, where Jim won his historic medals," said Wheeler. "He is the only person to ever win the gold in both the 5-event Pentathlon, and the 10-event Decathlon events." Wheeler and his wife Dr. Florence Ridlon were directly responsible for getting Jim's medals reinstated in 1982.

The goal of the theatrical film, docu-drama, curriculum, and other related efforts, is to tell the true Jim Thorpe story in continuing the legacy that Wheeler, Ridlon and the Thorpe family have fought to sustain for over 4 decades. "There are too many myths out there that need to be debunked, and too many amazing stories of Jim's life that need to be told," said Stevens. "Bob has been developing this story for over half his life, he is the official Jim Thorpe historian and spokesperson." As an Oneida from Wisconsin, Stevens feels it is logical that he is the one to help further inspire this legacy. Chauncey Archiquette, a Wisconsin Oneida, was an inspiration and mentor to Jim Thorpe while at Haskell, having made a football for Jim and thus inspiring him to pursue football more seriously. "This is one of the greatest and most important stories of our time, I just feel blessed to have the opportunity to contribute to this legacy. It is going to be a truly amazing film for the world to experience."

Hitting the Right Notes for Health

The 13th Annual Diabetes Event was held on August 31st, 2011 at the Radisson. It was a sold out event with 400 tickets sold 2 weeks prior to the event. This event is sponsored through the Special Diabetes Grant and the OCHC. Each year this event grows, which is a testimony to the commitment from the community to prevent/control diabetes!

This year's speaker was Darryl Tonemah, PhD, MED from New York. Darryl is a man with a passion and commitment to health and wellness. He is involved in the National Institutes of Health on diabetes prevention and lifestyle change research among Indian populations. He also works with Native groups across the United States and Canada promoting health and wellness. Darryl is also an accomplished musician with four CD's to his credit.

Darryl gave a 45 minute heartfelt presentation on the importance of preventing and controlling diabetes. All who were present felt his compassion and sincerity in his message. Darryl was funny yet serious, and understands how diabetes affects families. For those of you that were there, I hope you are now living by his wise words of wisdom.

Not only did we have the honor of listening to Darryl, but we also had a unique panelist discussion. This year the planning committee was approached by Francis Huntington, AKA Chief Frank Hill.

Mr. Huntington was recently diagnosed with diabetes and wanted to speak at the event. Mr. Huntington along with Charlie Hill had a story to tell. Both panelist have a commitment to fighting diabetes and plan to take their message on the road. It was their idea to produce a video that can be taken and shared with other tribes in order to help spread the word of what can be done. The video was hot off the press when it was premiered at the event, but most understood the message. This perseverance and commitment from both Francis and Charlie is what makes Oneida so successful in the battle of preventing/controlling diabetes. Thank you both for your drive to help others.

The event was wrapped up with give-aways and evaluations. We take evaluations seriously and strive to improve this event every year. I would like to thank all those involved in this event. I would like to not only thank the planning committee (Betty, Sue, Beth, Jill, Maria, Boni, and Mary), but all of those that volunteered, planned booths, and presented. Without the support of the Health Center Administration these types of events could not occur. My thanks to all, who have touched the lives of many by contributing your time and talents. Betty Schwantes RD CDE (OCHC-Diabetes Team)

Don't Lose Sight of Diabetic Eye Disease

Thousands of Native American adults are at risk of losing their vision as a result of complications from diabetes

Diabetes affects nearly 26 million people in the United States. In addition, another 79 million people are estimated to have pre-diabetes, a condition that puts people at increased risk for diabetes. All people with diabetes, both type 1 and type 2, are at risk for diabetic eye disease, a leading cause of vision loss and blindness.

"The longer a person has diabetes the greater is his or her risk of developing diabetic eye disease," said Dr. Suber Huang, chair of the Diabetic Eye Disease Subcommittee for the National Eye Institute's (NEI) National Eye Health Education Program. "If you have diabetes, be sure to have a comprehensive dilated eye exam at least once a year. Diabetic eye disease often has no early warning signs, but can be detected early and treated before noticeable vision loss occurs."

Diabetic eye disease refers to a group of eye problems that people with diabetes may face as a complication of the disease and includes diabetic retinopathy, cataract, and glaucoma. Diabetic retinopathy, the most common diabetic eye disease, is the leading cause of blindness in adults 20–74 years of age. According to NEI, 4.1 million people have diabetic eye disease and its prevalence is projected to increase to 7.2 million by 2020.

While all people with diabetes can develop diabetic eye disease, African Americans, American Indians/Alaska Natives, Hispanics/Latinos, and older adults with diabetes are at higher risk of losing vision or going blind from it. All people with diabetes should have a dilated eye exam at least once a year to detect vision problems early. In fact, with early detection, timely laser surgery, and appropriate follow-up care, people with advanced diabetic retinopathy can reduce their risk of blindness by 90 percent.

Clinical research, supported in part by NEI, has shown that maintaining good control of blood sugar, blood pressure, and cholesterol can slow the development and progression of diabetic eye disease. In addition to regular dilated eye exams, people with diabetes should do the following to keep their health on TRACK:

- Take your medications.
- Reach and maintain a healthy weight.
- Add physical activity to your daily routine.
- Control your blood sugar, blood pressure, and cholesterol.
- Kick the smoking habit.

"Don't lose sight of diabetic eye disease," added Dr. Huang. "Don't wait until you notice an eye problem to have an exam because vision that is lost often cannot be restored."

For more information on diabetic eye disease and tips on finding an eye care professional or financial assistance for eye care, visit www.nei.nih.gov/diabetes or call NEI at 301-496-5248.

Oneida Community Update

Availability:

Telephone triage for the medical is operational from 8 am – 4:30 pm Monday thru Friday. RN staff is available on call during the hours that the medical clinic is closed. There is 24/7 contact with RN staff.

Past Operation:

Mondays and Fridays had 3 staff in triage for either ½ the day or whole day. All other work times had only 2 staff in triage.

Current status after redesign:

There are 3 work stations for the triage area. For 90 – 95% of the open hours all 3 stations are manned. 3 work stations have maximized the office space.

Function:

All incoming phone calls for the medical clinic go through triage. This ensures that all calls are answered. Contract Health Staff and Patient Registration also transfer calls into triage to assist patients.

Triage receives an average of 225 calls per day with an average length of conversation being 3 minutes. We strive to provide the best service to the community. Many times the triage staff must coordinate with providers and other nursing staff to complete the patient's request. This lengthens a phone conversation.

Plan:

The Triage staff strives to answer calls as quickly as possible to shorten hold times and to keep patients from hanging up and having to call back. Reminder: Hanging up and calling back will only delay your call. Call 911 for emergencies.

"The Oneida Experiential Program's activities, such as Kayaking, Canoeing, and Tree Climbing assisted my own healing from abuse in unexpected ways. For example, during the Kayaking I worked on communication and team work with a partner as we had to utilize a tandem kayak; during the Canoeing, I was able to decompress and put my life experiences in perspective; and with the Tree Climbing I was able to reach the top of the tree and overcome my own fears of height and failure while reclaiming my own voice and strength. I have found being in nature and applying experiential activities to be very grounding, spiritual, and healing."

"Do Not Be Afraid"

"I have been on a number of adventures for example kayaking to Apostle Island, to snowshoe retreat and canoe trips. They have had a most wonderful affect on my life. You see I am a thicker/fluffy woman and I have let my body hold me back from exploring the world until I started doing some of the adventure trips. When my body says you are too thick to do something then I look back at my adventures and remember all the positive support I got when I was scared to do something. So do not be afraid to do something because your body is thick. Make yourself move your body so it will be strong. Most of all don't be afraid of failure just keep trying."

Oneida Nation Thunderhawks
Take to the Gridiron

The Oneida Nation Thunderhawk football team dominated Valley Christian on their way to a 50 -24 victory on Friday, October 7 at the Norbert Hill Center in Oneida. The Thunderhawks used big plays on offense and defense build a big lead that Valley Christian couldn't come back from.

Oneida Middle Schoolers took to the gridiron on a chilly Tuesday, October 18, 2011. First downs were hard to come by early on for the Oneida squad but as the game progressed the team began to move the ball down the field. The Oneida defense also got off to a slow start but gained some momentum and confidence late in the game.

Peterson aims for continued football success

Stopping by the Norbert Hill Center on a crisp fall Friday night to take in some Oneida Nation Thunderhawk football you'll notice a glaring change to the game; the teams play eight players at a time as opposed to the traditional eleven. This change has allowed Head Coach Bryan Peterson to build not only a competitive football team, but also instill confidence and character into young Oneida men.

Coach Peterson, who has been coaching football since 2001, has previously served as a coach for the Green Bay Blizzard among other semi-professional teams. Peterson also played high school football at Green Bay Southwest and was a roster player for the Green Bay Bombers.

In his second season as head coach, previously serving two years as assistant coach, Peterson has adapted well to the eight-man game.

"The switch from eleven-man football to the eight-man wasn't that big of a switch for me because I came here from the Green Bay Blizzard and that was eight-man so it worked out," said Peterson.

This change was made due to the small enrollment of the Oneida Nation High School.

"The last year we played eleven we had to cancel the season because we just didn't have enough players to be competitive, even now with eight we play some teams who have forty players on their team."

However with this style of football catching on amongst schools with small enrollments it seems the Thunderhawks will be put on a more level playing field in the near future.

"Right now there are not a lot of eight-man teams out there, there's only fourteen this year. Now they're saying there will be around 40 to 50 next year. So we might be able to play some schools with smaller enrollments, closer to what we are now," Peterson said.

Coach Peterson does not manage the Thunderhawk squad on his own; he directs the team with the help of Assistant Coach Mike King. A handful of volunteer coaches also contribute their time to the team, all of which have either played or coached with Peterson, they include John Bradley, Ty Dennisten, Jake Golden, Chad Naze, and TJ Schouten.

With the future of the football program heading down the eight-man route Peterson intends to continue to build and improve the team not only on the field but also in character.

"I want to keep building on what we're doing now. I'm not sure if they keep record of it but we've got a really high GPA for the team and the guys really took to dressing nice and acting like model citizens when we go on the road. Those were our two main goals for this season, to make better young men, better grades and then a better football team," said Peterson.

Athletic Director Lisa Rauschenbach says on behalf of the Oneida Nation High School Athletic Department, "The department really appreciates all of the time and effort that the coaches put forth in working with our young men. Both Head Coach Peterson and Assistant Head Coach Mike King have put forth a lot of time and energy in instilling positive energy into the boys performing as a team. In addition, many thanks need to be given to our volunteer coaches that take personal time to assist our high school football team. Our belief is that we are on the right track for building a solid football program so that when many of the other schools move to 8 man, Oneida will be competitive. Many of our boys have really taken it up a notch this year and have shown great strides academically and proven that they can be leaders. We are proud of them and are confident it will continue through other sports. It is for this reason, we know that both Coach Peterson and Coach King are doing an excellent job!"

Community Re-Organization Meetings held

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Chairman Ed Delgado and Vice-Chairman Greg Matson attended an Oneida neighborhood meeting held at the Flying Leaf Community Center in Site II. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the recent and future changes to the Oneida Tribe's Organizational Structure, and the reasons for changes, with the Oneida community. Tribal members were invited to attend the meeting and ask the Chairman and Vice-Chairman questions concerning the Oneida Tribe's structural changes.

Chairman Delgado opened the meeting by announcing, "We are here to update the community on recent actions taken by the Business Committee. The Business Committee has adopted a previously proposed plan we have called 'Plan B' and this plan has called for the removal and reorganization of some upper level positions in the Oneida Tribal structure."

The "Plan B" that was recently implemented by the current Oneida Business Committee allowed for the expiration of the Oneida General Manager position, the removal of the Assistant General Manager position. This new restructure also extended the Chief of Staff position for a further 30 days.

"This change was made for a number of reasons like our declining resources, our relationships with neighbors, and our strength as a sovereign nation," said Chairman Delgado.

Community members were given the opportunity to raise their concerns and ask questions about the details of the transition.

"I am concerned about the procedure of this transition because it seems to me that there is no strategic plan in place to take this (transition) into the future. I am also concerned about the lack of communication with the GTC about making these structural changes," said an anonymous community member.

Chairman Delgado acknowledged that these changes would certainly be a highly debated topic at the next GTC Meeting and assured the group that plans are in place.

"I've been a member of the Business Committee for many years and in the past there has always been talk about change and then more talk, but no actions. I want this to be a Business Committee of action because these are crucial times for the Oneida Nation and we need to act now," said Chairman Delgado.

Further meetings were held for the varying communities spread across the Oneida Reservation. Postcards were sent out detailing dates, times, and locations of meetings for other neighborhoods.

Oneida Museum Awarded Prestigious Grant

Oneida – Thanks to a grant from the federal Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS), the Oneida Nation Museum (ONM) can repair a one-of-a-kind Cornhusk Man. The object is made of braided cornhusks and is over six feet tall. The ONM acquired the object in 1995. This was the last major work of art by Irvin Christjohn who passed away in 1985. Mr. Christjohn was a founding member of the Oneida Turtle Museum in New York, which, unfortunately closed.

During the project, the public will be able to observe the on-going progress and ask questions about the project at the museum. A small area within the ONM will be designated as an on-site Conservation Clinic. Informal talks will be conducted regarding the project and progress.

The grant also provides for a series of weekend workshops that will specifically address preserva-tion and conservation issues common to organic objects found in Native American collections. Museum staff from the region will be invited to participate.

The grant includes archival training comprised of five full days of on-site instruction with ONM staff members, employees from the Oneida Cultural Heritage Department and other museum pro-fessionals interested in learning procedures in Archiving Native American Historical Collections.

"We are very excited to receive the IMLS grant. Implementation of this grant will allow us to ad-dress the conservation needs of objects which are historically and culturally important to the Oneida community. Restoration and conservation of the life-size man made of cornhusk will allow the ONM to exhibit this object for the first time. In addition, we received funding to obtain archiv-al training and supplies. We are also very grateful to our Grants Department for all their help," said ONM Director Rita Lara.

"These projects highlight the important work of Native American, Alaskan native and Native Ha-waiian cultural heritage preservation. By enhancing museum programming and staff professional development, these institutions can continue to share knowledge and experiences through art, science and traditions," IMLS Director Susan Hildreth.

The IMLS received thirty-three applications for the grant resulting in twenty-one awards. The amount requested totaled $1,457,837. The amount awarded totaled $984,287. The total recipient match totaled $667,834.

Wis. faces patchwork of concealed carry rules

By Nate Wisneski and the Associated Press

Wisconsin's new concealed carry law finally took effect this week, but packing heat in public won't be easy. Lambeau Field won'' allow guns. Neither will your local high school. And if you plan on drinking alcohol at the local watering hole, leave your piece in the car.

People could start applying to the state Justice Department for concealed carry licenses on November 1. It'll be several weeks, at least, before the agency issues the first permit. But already a confusing patchwork of local ordinances and off-limit areas has emerged, making it difficult to know for certain where concealed weapons are legal. And underneath it all is a vague sense of paranoia as some people start wondering whether the guy in the next booth or the woman in the checkout line is packing.

"On Nov. 1, we're a different state than what we were," said Kerry Kincaid, Eau Claire City Council president, which has adopted a comprehensive ban on concealed weapons. "It makes me more wary and weary. Most of the time you can't go backwards when you pull out that gun. People aren't coming up to me in the grocery store and saying I can hardly wait."

Land claim fight to continue in Congress

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The fight is not over - was the message and consensus at a meeting concerning the U.S. Supreme Court decision not to hear an appeal on the decades old Oneida Land Claim court case. The meetings were held Tuesday, October 25 at 1:00pm and 6:00pm. and hosted by the Oneida Business Committee (OBC).

"Not in my lifetime are we going to give up," said OBC Councilman Brandon Stevens, pausing to hold back tears.

Attorney of Record Arlinda Locklear summarized the history of the land claim that started in the late 1700's when the State of New York began acquiring Oneida lands in violation of federal treaties and the Non-intercourse act of 1793.

"After generations, literally generations of Oneida leaders complaining to New York State and the United States in frustration, the Oneidas finally filed their first law suit in 1970," said Locklear.

In 1985 Oneida won a landmark ruling on a test case in the US Supreme Court stating that land transactions after 1795 were void and that the Oneida were owed trespass damages. The ruling allowed a 1974 suit for the entire 250,000 acres located in central New York State to go forward. The Oneida governments in Wisconsin, New York and Canada then entered into negotiations that stretched for more than a quarter century.

Former Chief of Staff Bill Gollnick explained that Oneida had pursued a negotiated settlement because a court ruling would only find for damages, while community meetings revealed Oneidas wanted something more than money.

"People would talk to things like education, would talk to things like hunting and fishing rights, we talked about having some land in the homelands that would be ours and unalienable forever," said Gollnick.

Meanwhile, changes in the Supreme Court justices and appeals courts led to a more conservative set of judges.

"While Oneidas were trying to settle their claim, other Iroquois claims based on the Oneida precedent were moving forward in court," said Locklear. Also, the New York Oneidas were buying land in the land claim area and refusing to pay taxes saying it was reservation land. The case went to the Supreme Court.

"The Supreme Court said that so much time had passed between the original wrong doing where the Oneidas lost their land and the New York Oneida effort to reestablish sovereignty over that land, that as they put it 'the embers of sovereignty had grown cold," said Locklear.

The decision influenced the Court of Appeals to dismiss a Cayuga land claim.

"We knew at that point

the Court of Appeals to dismiss a Cayuga land claim.

"We knew at that point that there had been a dramatic change in the law in land claims and immediately, the State of New York filed motions to dismiss all of the land claims including Oneida based on that decision," said Locklear.

Eventually, the Oneida land claim went to the Court of Appeals Second Circuit which ruled the Oneida land claim was barred based on the Cayuga case.

"The very remedy that you were awarded by the Supreme Court in the 1985 case decision for the test case was now precluded as to the reservation case because of the passage of time," said Locklear.

Oneida appealed to the Supreme Court, but the court did not take up the case and the Second Circuit ruling stands.

"There's no remedy in the federal court, but that doesn't mean that the claim doesn't exist," said Locklear. "Do you want to continue with the claim if it exists only because your will kept it alive for the 120 years before federal court house doors were open? Do you want to tell the federal government that you will not accept this, that you will look for other avenues for remedy for your claim?"

Locklear explained Oneida could attempt to go to the US Congress to seek a remedy like the settlement reached in Cobell v. Salazar. In that case, the late Elouise Cobell led a legal battle for an accounting of trust funds and mineral rights owed to Native American nations.

OBC Chairman Ed Delgado stated the Oneida intended to pursue a legislative remedy.

"For 176 years Oneidas have been fighting outside of the courts," said Delgado. "And this Business Committee has no intent on being the end of that line."

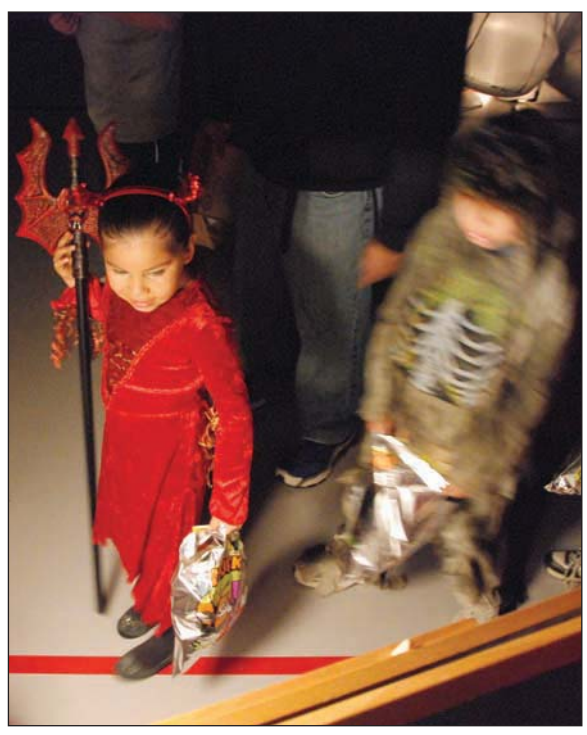
However, Locklear stated a legislated remedy could take several years.

"It will take in my guess maybe two or three congresses to get it done, but we need to start now because if we don't allow people to say the Oneida have accepted the verdict," she said.

"We are going to probably try and organize some kind of movement so we can take this to congress for some kind of congressional remedy. We'll be working with our legislative affairs people, our lobbyist, and we probably need to initiate that sooner rather than later," said Delgado.

Oneida citizen Becky Webster asked how to explain the plan to others not in attendance.

"How do we explain to people that even though we may have lost in the courts that we still have this other option open to us? Why would anyone want to hear us?" she said.



"There's a long record of Oneida saying to New York State that you have wronged us," answered Locklear. "There is that political moral pressure that existed before the lawsuits were filed … That moral claim has been enough in the past for the United States to say 'Because of our responsibilities that we have let you down and behaved dishonorably we're going to pass a statute giving you another remedy. The United States can do that and have done that in other cases."

Purcell Powless Remembrance Day

Saturday • November 5, 2011

On January 26, 2011, the Oneida Business Committee adopted a proclamation setting November 5th as

Purcell Powless Remembrance Day

The community and family and friends of Purcell Powless will be planting a tree in his honor and memory on Saturday morning, November 5th on Takwatehkha Road. This is located immediately behind his historic homestead.

Purcell Powless retained the original allotment of his grandfather, John D. Powless and the land remains in the Powless family today. Purcell applied to have his land placed in trust and it was his wish to have his land preserved for ever for the use of his descendants and never to be sold. He is one of only a few Oneida who had the foresight to preserve his homeland in this manner.

Purcell led the Oneida Nation as Chairman for 23 years, he is the longest serving chairman in our history. Under his leadership the Oneida Nation experienced the highest level of prosperity and success ever in our history. Purcell always gave credit to being surrounded by successful professional forward thinkers and doers.

Please join us as we celebrate the life and achievements of Purcell Powless

Obama on the passing of Elouise Cobell

President Barack Obama shaking hands with Elouise Cobell. Cobell led the fight for an accounting of billions of dollars owed to Native American Nations for leases and mineral rights.

With the passing of Elouise Cobell, a proud member of the Blackfeet Nation of Montana, we have lost a champion of Native American rights. Her persistent and determined leadership in the pursuit of justice for Native Americans will leave an enduring legacy.

As treasurer of the Blackfeet Nation, Elouise spoke out when she saw that the federal government had failed to account for billions of dollars that it owed to hundreds of thousands of her fellow Native Americans. In 1996, she filed suit, and for 15 years, tirelessly led a legal battle, with seven trials, 10 appeals, and dozens of published decisions. She fought her battle not just in the courts, but in the halls of Congress before finally securing justice for more than 300,000 American Indians and Alaska Natives in the form of a $3.4 billion settlement.

The agreement reached in Cobell v. Salazar marked the largest government class-action settlement in our nation's history. The scholarship fund this settlement established will give more Native Americans access to higher education. Tribes will have more control over their own lands. Elouise's tireless efforts strengthened the government-to-government relationship with Indian country, and a generation of Native Americans and all Americans has seen the promise of justice realized.

Last December, I had the privilege to meet with Elouise in the Oval Office prior to signing into law a bill to make things right. The Claims Resolution Act of 2010 is a direct result of the settlement that bears her name. It is proof of an enduring American idea – that change is always possible.

But change is never easy. It doesn't come overnight. In this case, it took 15 years. For 15 long years, despite obstacles and setbacks, Elouise Cobell pressed on with a defiant yet humble refusal to accept the world as it is, and a quiet determination to reach for the world as it ought to be.

"I never started this case with any intentions of being a hero," she said. "I just wanted this case to give justice to people that didn't have it."

In the face of daunting odds, Elouise remained driven by the belief that America is a place where tomorrow can be better than today – and convinced that this is a country where hard work and great resolve can make a difference.

That is what makes this country special. Even when we haven't always lived up to our highest ideals, we know we can right a wrong; even if we enjoy certain rights, we know are not truly equal until everybody enjoys those rights; even if we are doing well, we know we have a responsibility to leave a better future for our children, and the obligation to try.

That is what Elouise Cobell did. We mourn her passing, thank her for the legacy she left behind, and commit ourselves to that same passionate pursuit of a more perfect union.

Oneida community members gathered together on Thursday, October 20, 2011 to walk in support of abuse awareness. The "Break the Silence, End the Violence" Walk began with two groups starting at the Oneida Site I Library or the basketball courts on Cornelius Circle and meeting at the Norbert Hill Center. The group then gathered in the Norbert Hill Center cafeteria where they enjoyed a meal followed by stories, prayer songs, and a concert in the auditorium.

Convening Culture Keepers Gather For Third Conference

Keshena, WI – On October 20th and 21st, Rita Lara, Reginald Doxtater, Nicolas Reynolds, Loretta V. Metoxen, Anita Barber and Sara Summers-Luedtke joined Wisconsin's tribal librarians, archivists, and museum curators for the third gathering of the Convening Culture Keepers (CCK) conference hosted at the College of Menominee Nation. The series of six mini-conferences, which take place twice yearly, provide a rare opportunity for Wisconsin's tribal cultural workers and preservationists (the "Culture Keepers") to meet and connect, share their experiences, and learn from one another.

The third CCK began on Thursday evening with tours of the Menominee Nation's cultural institutions, including the College of Menominee Nation Library / Special Collections with librarian Monique Tyndall and the new Cultural Museum. The evening concluded with dinner, friendly conversation, and games.

On Friday CCK kicked off with two presentations. Librarian Ben Grignon presented his work using Podcasting and other audio / visual technology to help Menominee High School students learn about their culture and native language, and to enable them share their stories. Next, Shannon Martin shared her knowledge and experiences as the director of the nationally recognized and award-winning Ziibiwing Center for Anishinabe Culture and Lifeways. Martin described how one of the most important components of Ziibiwing is youth programming and classes and workshops on traditional language, art, dancing, and storytelling. It was amazing to see the hard work that Grignon and Martin have put into not just preserving their cultural heritage but sharing it with the next generation.

In the late morning and early afternoon attendees participated in two expert-led, hands-on workshops on "Box Making for Museums and Archives" and "Introduction to Archival Best Practices." Workshops at the CCK conferences give attendees the chance to gain valuable skills that they can use to better conserve the important objects housed at their home institutions, whether they be tribal documents and records, photographs, or cultural artifacts.

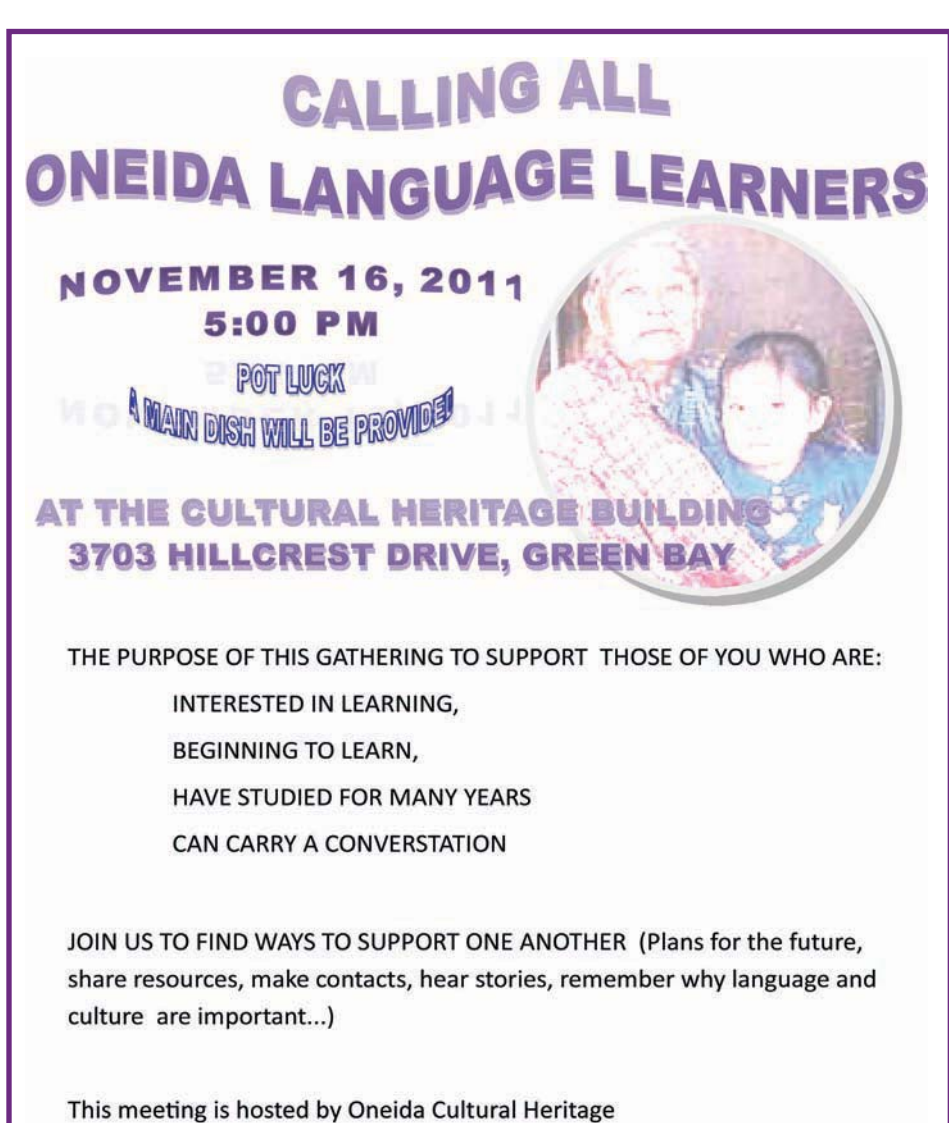
The conference ended on a very positive note, as everyone shared his or her reflections on the day's experiences. Attendees were inspired by Grignon and Martin's presentations, which illustrated how cultural preservation is a truly inter-generational effort and also an inter-disciplinary effort across library, archival, and museum fields. Many were excited to apply what they had learned in the workshops to their own projects. Most importantly, all expressed how meaningful it was for them to have the opportunity to build friendships across tribes to preserve their culture together. Looking to the future, participants hope to see the Convening Culture Keepers continue to grow.

Convening Culture Keepers is produced through the collaborative efforts of UW-Madison's School of Library and Information Studies – Continuing Education Services (SLIS-CES) and Wisconsin's American Indian communities. The biannual gatherings are coordinated by SLIS-CES and hosted by reservation-based partners, which have so far included the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin and the Lac Courte Oreilles Community College. The Forest County Potawatomi Cultural Center, Library and Museum will host the fourth CCK mini-conference in April 2012.

Brown County considers veterans court

Green Bay, WI (AP) ~ Judges in Brown County are working to establish a special court for military veterans.

Judge Kendall Kelley says that in some cases military veteran offenders are more in need of treatment than prison. Kelley says the goal is to find the most effective way of dealing with the mental health issues that can plague veterans, such as post-traumatic stress syndrome.



Police, prosecutors and Veterans Administration officials would help direct the proper offenders to the court.

Judge Donald Zuidmulder tells the Green Bay Press-Gazette the veterans' court could eventually be developed regionally and include other area counties.

Chairman's Corner...

Ed Delgado
Chairman

Shekoli,

It is with a heavy heart that I report that our 30 year struggle to seek legal justice in the courts of the United States of America has ended. On Monday, October 17, 2011, the United States Supreme Court denied our appeal of an earlier 2nd circuit decision which threw out our Land Claim. The effect of the Supreme Court denial to accept our appeal ends our Land Claim efforts to seek justice in the courts of the United States. They justified their decision to decline any further review by saying that we had sat on our Land Claim rights too long and that too much time had passed for an equitable decision to be made. This could not have been further from the truth. The Oneida people did not sit on their rights, not ever.

In reality, the Oneida people for more than two centuries have demonstrated an unwavering determination to regain their New York lands which had been dishonestly taken from them soon after the Revolutionary War. The Oneidas had been granted a large reservation for their fighting and dying to help create the United States, but within one year after being granted our reservation lands, the Americans were already stealing it.

As early as 1795, Good Peter of the Oneidas was already trying to get the newly established United States government to stop the theft, but the government did nothing. Since 1795 our people have carried on a continuous effort to be heard and to have the United States of America keep their word to our people who were in fact America's first allies. And at the same time we sought justice in our efforts to regain our homelands, we continued to go out and fight and bleed to protect America in every war since. Why the American courts would abandon our people's quest for justice after all we have done to create, maintain and protect this country ever since its inception is a question now on the minds of many Oneida people.

But regardless of the court house door being forever closed on our Land Claim, this Business Committee is determined to continue on with our Land Claim. We ask for your continued support as we consider our options and seek alternative remedies to resolve our Land Claim and bring justice to our people.

On another important topic, there will be a General Tribal Council meeting on November 21, 2011, on the reorganization of the tribe. This will be my first opportunity to chair a GTC meeting and I will proceed with the assumption that our membership is coming fully prepared to work with us through the agenda and complete the tasks that need to be addressed. There will be a series of five community meetings that will be held in the next few weeks to garner input into these reorganizational efforts. I hope you will be able to attend these community meetings as I value your input and support as we strive to make changes that we hope will ultimately better serve our membership.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado
Oneida Tribal Chairman

OBC Forum...

Shekólih,

For this article, I want to share with you some information on the recent decisions made by the Business Committee (BC) around reorganization efforts as well as my own position(s) on the recent actions taken by the BC.

As shared with the membership and employees through meetings and direct mail, one primary topic of focus for the BC has been to ensure more dollars are being used on direct services. To me, this means we are spending less money on the administration of the service and more on the actual service itself. In order to reach this goal, the BC has taken several steps, so I will try to lay out what has occurred in a meaningful and easy to understand way because it can be a bit confusing.

First, the General Manager's contract was up for renewal at the end of September, this meant the BC had a choice to make: renew a GM contract (with the current GM or a different one) or take the opportunity to make the first step toward implementing change in the way Oneida does business. The BC chose not to renew a GM contract on an interim basis and totally eliminate the Assistant GM position. I supported this move based on a common theme that emerged from each of the last 3 attempts to restructure the tribe and that theme is the tribe will better function without a GM position. For example, Interactive Design concepts provided a way for the organization to work with one another based on a value system and principles and includes direct interaction of the divisions of the organization; Plan B proposed to branch out our governing systems in a way that in theory, would allow for greater checks and balances and eliminated the GM position to allow direct oversight of the divisions by the BC; and Project PROUD also eliminated the need for a GM and combined like services with the intent to create efficiencies and have the organization work together based on a common vision. This why the BC started looking at our own structure last term and why you know see new subcommittees like the Community Development Planning Committee & the Quality of Life, in addition to the Legislative Operating Committee & Finance Committee.

The second step taken was when the BC reviewed the mission of the tribe identified in the Skanikulut. We then asked ourselves the question, "What can we do in our 3-year term to bring the Nation one step closer to this vision?" To give ourselves guidance, we developed a practical vision for ourselves. This vision was recently adopted and states "In 3 years, this OBC will aggressively grow the Oneida Indian Reservation as a beautiful vibrant community where hundreds of additional Oneida families live." And "This OBC will reallocate resources to better serve the needs of Tribal Members." This practical vision will provide a reference point for both the BC & GTC throughout the 3 year term.

Melinda Danforth
Councilwoman

Third, it was and still is my understanding that the BC has agreed to not take any further action on reorganization until the GTC has been presented the information and provide approval to move forward. To prepare for that presentation to the GTC, the current Division Directors have been engaged to provide an assessment of where their division is at and what ideas around creating efficiencies can be implemented from each of their perspectives.

The next steps in the process are where things are still somewhat unclear and I will preface my upcoming comments by informing you that I have already asked the BC for the following considerations at the September 14, 2011 BC; however, the request I submitted was deferred to later discussions amongst the BC and has not been formally adopted. Essentially, my request to the BC (based on my experience and education) was to develop a comprehensive game plan (strategy) as we started to move forward with overall reorganization effort as large the one we are undertaking. I asked that the Stakeholder(s) be included (meaning GTC, Community, All Employees, etc.) which included a request for communication plan to be developed which would help eliminate the mixed messaging given to the community and employees. I also asked that Budget Reform be included. There is a fundamental shift needed in how we budget; currently the budget drives how we provide services and programming to tribal members, we need to reverse this thinking to first determine the level services and programming needed, then allocate the appropriate dollars. Finally, I requested the BC include Policy Reform in the process. I believe our community and employees understand that simply moving boxes in and organizational chart will not create efficiencies. If we keep the same processes in place, the process still exists no matter how many boxes we move. To get to real change, we need to look at the systems in place and ask ourselves the very basic question "why are we doing this?"

To date I have supported the efforts of the BC because in terms of long-range planning I support the initial changes made. With that said, I also support making sure we have a comprehensive strategy and as of this article; I am not convinced that a strategy on how to move forward yet exists. If you attended more than one of the community and employee meetings about the reorganization efforts, you may have heard varying supporting reasons and in every meeting I attended, the BC members made it clear the status quo for all other employees would remain until GTC had the opportunity to review the BC's proposed changes. However there has already been cause for concern because dollars to positions other than the GM & Assistant GM were taken out of the proposed 2012 budget. While this proposed elimination did not pass, it was disappointing to learn this would have been included in the Budget without proper notice to the employee(s) or to the BC.

I support the interim elimination of the GM & Assistant GM, but I cannot support the further elimination of Oneida jobs without justification. We need to keep in mind these are Oneida people and families that are being affected and the BC has not developed a plan to move forward. It is a disservice to the community, and the Oneida people to move forward on something we have not fully assessed nor set goals to. In this situation, change for the sake of change will be just as irresponsible as not changing. GTC has a significant role in providing direction in any reorganization effort, and needs to be included on the front end.

I urge you to continue asking the difficult questions to each of the elected officials, share your thoughts and ideas on what kinds of changes are needed, and start preparing your ideas around what it means for Oneida to be an employer and a business. For many, many years Oneida has operated on a value of providing jobs for Oneidas. More and more we are hearing from a financial perspective that the tribe can no longer carry the employment capacity it has been and to balance this out, your input will be needed! I cannot stress enough how important your voice is on the current reorganization efforts, and I encourage you to stay informed.

As always, please share your thoughts and ideas by emailing me at mdanforj@oneidanation.org or by calling my office at 920-869-4461. You can also contact my assistant Lisa Summers at lsummer2@oneidanation.org or 920-869-4478.

Feds could rule soon on tribal casino in Kenosha

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) ~ A federal ruling in regard to a proposed Menominee Nation casino in Kenosha could come in the next few months.

The decision by the U.S. Department of the Interior will be the next step in the tribe's long-running efforts to establish a casino in the area.

Eric Olson is the tribe's project director. He says the government's environmental-impact review should take about two months, and the tribe will resubmit its application after that.

Olson says Gov. Scott Walker is scheduled to visit the Menominee reservation next week. A Kenosha News report says Walker has the final authority to approve the casino if it clears the federal review.

The government denied the Kenosha application in 2009. The tribe sued, and the department has agreed to reconsider it.

Letters & Opinions...

Economic Crisis Affects Oneida

The global economic crisis has now hit home here in Oneida. The Gaming revenues are no longer large enough to fund the services that Oneidas rely upon every day, from education, health, housing, social services, employment and public safety.

The way we do business in Oneida is constrained by outdated laws, policies, and procedures, as well as, declining revenues from the Gaming operation and General Tribal Council mandates such as land purchases and per capita that were made during times of growth and a strong economy.

The effects of these laws, policies, and General Tribal Council mandates will continue to hamper the services, employment and economic growth here in Oneida until we change the way we do business.

Both over a period of years and recently, a number of steps have been taken to adjust the Tribes level of funding for programs, services and employment. Adjustments included the usual cost containment cutbacks in limiting travel, continuing education, equipment purchases, consultants, cell phones, personnel, wage increases and coffee.

These short term fixes are nearly exhausted and those decisions are now impacting our ability to provide quality services to the membership and our long term sustainability for the next seven generations.

It is time for membership to re-think what our priorities are and decide if the current mandates and management practices align with today's expectations of how our government and organization operates.

If we look at why our government and organization have adopted the bureaucratic processes that are currently practiced, it boils down to mistrust and misaligned values. Not many people trust each other to do the right thing anymore, which is evidenced by a number of processes that could be more efficient. For example, processes that affect the majority of the government and organization such as hiring, purchasing and accounting, to name a few, could all be made more efficient.

Another concern that keeps coming up over and over again in the past 20 years has been economic diversification and putting more resources into economic development. We need more businesses that would create more jobs that would generate more income for the Tribe.

Finally, the recent community meetings have sparked some interest in increased participation in our government. Let's hope this practice continues so that we can be better informed when we get to General Tribal Council to make decisions that are good for today and good for the next seven generations.

Wanted: Positive Reinforcement

My name is Carmen Hill. I am a recovering drug addict. I am currently sitting at REECC I am getting out of prison February 12, 2012. I'm excited and nervous at the same time. I wrote an article last month about me getting a second chance at life being clean and sober. I would like to form a support system, from now and until I get out. I can really use some positive feedback and some encouraging words to help me get through this and these holidays that are coming up.

Wanted: Positive encouraging, clean, sober people to write me. Just drop a not to say hi. I would really like that, thanks.

Area teens reintroduce wild rice

Kalihwisaks

Oneida Nation High School (ONHS) students cautiously climbed into canoes and paddled out into a marshy pond with plastic containers of damp wild rice. The students tossed handfuls of the seed into the water to try and reintroduce a food crop that was vital to Wisconsin Native American nations such as the Menominee and Anishinaabe.

"It was a really good experience," said ONHS Junior Larissa Lucas.

Wetlands Coordinator Tony Kuchma explained the wetland the students were canoeing on was a cornfield not long ago.

"Duck Creek would have been full of wild rice, Fox River would have been full of wild rice, areas like this would have been full of wild rice in the not too distant past," said Kuchma. "But rice does not like pollution, it doesn't like human disturbance with sediment and farm run off coming in. It will disappear like a lot of native wetland plants."

This area was chosen in part because wild rice stalks had been spotted in the area.

"It's full of native plant communities, and because of that, and then you get all the native wildlife that needs that habitat" said Kuchma.

The three acre pond is host to several muskrat dens as well as avian life such as ducks and eagles.

Kuchma explained that wild rice is an annual grass that reseeds itself every fall. The seeds need to sit under water over the winter in order to germinate in the spring, entering the floating leaf stage. Kuchma will monitor the area for three years to see if the wild rice becomes self-sustaining.

The project is funded by a Great Lakes Restoration Initiative grant via the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

facilities, retail establishments. Weapons would also be prohibited at tribally sponsored events and tribal vehicles. Individuals who are required to carry a weapon within their scope of employment would be exempt from the law.

Forty-eight other states allow concealed weapons. The National Rifle Association and other gun advocates have pushed for concealed carry legislation in Wisconsin for the better part of a decade, arguing the move would give law-abiding people a means to defend themselves against criminals.

The political landscape shifted dramatically after last November's elections, though. Republicans swept to control of the state Assembly and Senate, and the governor's office. In July, Gov. Scott Walker signed a bill into law that allows people who get firearms training to obtain a permit to carry a hidden weapon.

The law bars concealed carry in a number of settings, however, including schools, police stations, court houses and beyond airport security checkpoints. Business owners and government entities who don't want concealed weapons in their buildings can post signs warning people to keep them out, leaving owners to navigate between offending safetyadvocates and gun supporters, as well as dealing with some surprisingly sticky legal issues.

The law absolves anyone who allows weapons in their buildings of liability. But the statutes don't extend that same immunity to people who ban them. In a counterintuitive twist, some attorneys contend that means someone injured in a fight in an establishment that bans concealed weapons could sue on the grounds the business prevented them from defending themselves with a concealed weapon.

The Green Bay City Council defeated a proposal this month to ban concealed weapons in city buildings. That means anyone who shows up at a council meeting might have a gun under his or her coat, but Mayor Jim Schmitt said he didn't think it was a big deal.

"A guy came in with a sledgehammer looking for me one time. That's the world we live in," Schmitt said. "I'm accepting of that."

In Madison, Walker's administration has decided to allow weapons in most state buildings, including parts of the Capitol that aren't controlled by the Legislature and the state Supreme Court.

The justices are expected to flesh out their own policy next month. Republicans who control the Legislature plan to allow weapons on the floor of the Assembly and Senate, in both houses' committee meetings and in the Assembly gallery. Weapons would not be permitted in the Senate gallery. Individual lawmakers would be allowed to decide whether to ban weapons in their offices.

The Legislature's polices have drawn criticism from minority Democrats and at least one high-ranking Republican. Rep. Fred Kessler, D-Milwaukee, raised fears that weapons in the Assembly gallery could lead to spectators shooting representatives, pointing to an incident in 1954 when Puerto Rican nationalists opened fire from the U.S. House of Representatives gallery.

Guns will still be banned at Lambeau Field and Miller Park. The University of Wisconsin System and Marquette University are maintaining weapons bans in buildings, but the law leaves them powerless to bar them anywhere else.

The Eau Claire City Council adopted an ordinance that bans weapons in almost all municipal structures with four walls and a roof, from City Hall to pump houses. The measure also requires establishments that sell alcohol to post a sign warning people carrying concealed weapons won't be served booze. Event organizers must tell the city manager whether they plan to prohibit hidden weapons and what safety steps they'll take if they don't.

Despite all the precautions, Kincaid, the council president, said she's worried about angry permit holders. She still thinks about the assassination attempt on U.S. Rep. Gabrielle Giffords in January, she said.

``Yes, I do have trepidations. I'm a public official," she said. ``We deal with difficult issues. Our meetings are a tense place."

Concealed carry advocates say those fears are overblown.

According to a report by the Minnesota Department of Public Safety, nearly 80,000 people held a permit in that state at the end of 2010. The report found 330 permit holders _ less than a hundredth of a percent _ committed crimes ranging from assault to carrying under the influence last year.

``The people who get permits are people who don't get in bar fights. They don't act out. If they see the sign, they're going to take their business elsewhere," said Joseph Olson, a Hamline University law professor and a lobbyist for the Gun Owners Civil Rights Alliance who helped write Minnesota's concealed carry law.

Still, Wes Skoglund, a former Minneapolis legislator who opposed Minnesota's law, said the state's culture has changed. People are afraid, at least in the back of their minds, he said.

SEOTS Mission…

Our mission is to strengthen our cultural connection and provide services and programs that enhance the well being of Onʌyote?a·ka in southeastern Wisconsin.

SEOTS Welcomes New Board Member

On October 26, 2011, Oneida Tribal Member, Ed Pero was sworn in by the Oneida Business Committee as the newest member of the SEOTS Board. The purpose of the SEOTS Advisory Board is to provide advice and constructive input to the SEOTS Director in order that the SEOTS office can formulate social services programs for the Oneida people residing in Southeastern Wisconsin.

Ed is a very personable individual and enjoys life. His experience shows his dedication to his community. He was enlisted in the Army as an active serviceman for 4 years. After the Army, Ed was a Milwaukee Fire-fighter for 17 years. He also worked for Harley Davidson and then became self-employed selling used appliances and furniture.

Ed Pero

Ed has been attending meetings at the SEOTS office and Oneida Tribal members asked him if he would be interested in serving on the SEOTS Board. Ed felt that he would like to help and serve his fellow Oneida Tribal members and applied to be on the Board. As a Board member he would like to help the Oneida Milwaukee community get their own building and possibly Senior Housing down the road.

Ed is married to Cynthia Ray Pero. His parents are Robert Morrin and Audrey Skenandore-Pero. Some of his fondest memories growing up are going to the farm in Bowler, Wisconsin that his grandparents George Ninham and Jane Wealthy Powless owned. Currently Ed enjoys riding his Silver Cycle and watching the Packers win!

All Oneida Tribal members are invited to attend SEOTS Board meetings. The regularly scheduled meetings take place the second and fourth Tuesday of every month at 6:00pm.

Big Brothers Big Sisters Celebrates Native American Heritage Month with efforts to expand Culturally Relevant Mentoring Services

Professional Basketball Star Tahnee Robinson to be featured in PSA Announcement

PHILADELPHIA, PA, November 1, 2011 – Big Brothers Big Sisters celebrates Native American Heritage Month with a new campaign to enroll more youth and volunteers in its unique, culturally relevant mentoring program developed to help Native American/Alaska native children achieve in school and succeed in life. The program includes a new public service announcement (PSA) featuring professional women's basketball player Tahnee Robinson, who is one of the first Native Americans ever selected in the WNBA draft.

"We are energized by the progress of our local agencies in strengthening relationships in their communities to better serve Native American youth," said Big Brothers Big Sisters of America President and CEO Karen J. Mathis. "We are extremely excited about the passage of a resolution by the Affiliated Tribes of Northwest Indians to support this work. The National Congress of American Indians Youth Commission is reviewing a similar resolution. It is through working closely with families and local communities that we are able to hold ourselves accountable for helping the children we serve overcome adversity to achieve in school; avoid risky and delinquent behaviors and have higher self esteem and aspirations."

With support from the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP), Big Brothers Big Sisters established its Native American Tribal Community Initiative in 2008. The program serves more than 3500 Native American young people, 42 percent of whom are matched with Native American mentors. Continued OJJDP support is bolstering funding in 25 tribal communities and 10 reservations/pueblos across the country, where Native American staff, with the help of advisors and elders, carefully match youth with mentors and provide ongoing support to the adult volunteers, mentees and the children's families.

"The program is already resulting in measurable positive outcomes, most notably improved attitudes toward antisocial behavior; stronger parental and peer relationships; better school attendance and scholastic competence; and higher educational expectations, social competencies and school attendance," said Big Brothers Big Sisters of America Director of Native American Mentoring, Ivy Wright-Bryan, a member of the Pyramid Lake Paiute tribe in Nevada. "Our local affiliates are engaged with local businesses; educational and vocational training institutions; community nonprofit groups; and faith-based institutions that serve Native Americans."

"By providing these specialized mentoring services, Big Brothers Big Sisters is supporting educational and community efforts that help Native American young people develop tribal, national and international leadership skills," Wright-Bryan said. "Ultimately these mentoring services will help improve overall wellness, including the avoidance of substance abuse and suicide."

Starting in January 2012, Big Brothers Big Sisters affiliates serving Native American youth will work local television stations and social media friends to share the PSA featuring Robinson. Robinson, who grew up on Wind River Reservation in Fort Washakie, Wyoming, is one of the only Native American athletes drafted to the WNBA and is now playing abroad in Israel.

"Mentoring is about putting a child on a path to success and giving kids the power to believe that they can achieve their dreams," said Robinson. "While I was fortunate enough to count my parents as my true mentors, I will always do whatever it takes to make sure kids have the mentorship and tools they deserve, and the Big Brothers Big Sisters organization does that better than anyone."

In addition to the PSA, in January, Big Brothers Big Sisters affiliates will begin placing in local print and web media new advertising to engage more families, volunteers, partners and donor support. Designed by Native American marketing firm G&G, the ads feature Native American/Alaska Native mentors and mentees who are already enrolled in Big Brothers Big Sisters' mentoring programs.

The U.S. has recognized November as National American Indian Heritage month since 1990 under variations of the name, including Native American Heritage Month and National American Indian and Alaska Native Heritage Month.

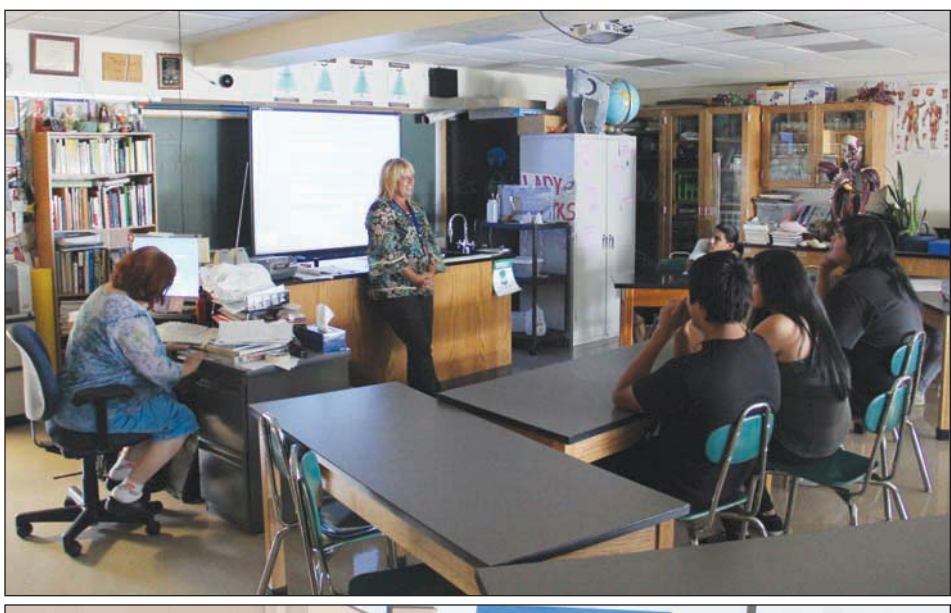
ONHS Environmental Issues Campaign

By Sylvia Cornelius
Environmental Project Manager

This September the Oneida Nation High School students enrolled in both the Environmental Science and Global Issues classes participated in an environmental issues campaign with the Oneida Environmental Health & Safety Division. The purpose of this outreach with the High School was to introduce students to local environmental issues that affect their Oneida community. The outreach provided resources to Oneida youth on environmental issues, showed them how to participate in the issues, and potential career opportunities.



Environmental issue topics covered were: Oneida's Role in Fox River Cleanup; Groundwater; Pollution Prevention; and Storm Water. Much of the discussion surrounded water, whether it was ground, storm or surface water, and how it was impaired or how to keep it from becoming impaired. For four weeks, the students learned background information in class on each topic, had a guest speaker from Oneida Environmental Health & Safety Division to learn what Oneida is doing about the issue and then took a field trip to a local facility to gain hands on experience about each specific issue.

The students were able to tour the Fox River Cleanup Facility in Green Bay, the Oneida One Stop on Highway 54 in Oneida, Tri County Single Stream Recycling Facility in Appleton and the Green Bay Metropolitan Sewage District in Green Bay.

Each week the students answered reflection questions to determine what they learned about each issue. At the end of the Pollution Prevention week one student said they learned "I've been recycling wrong" and it made them feel "like I've been contributing to the problem instead of actually helping". What they can do about the issue is "spread the word" and the action they can take is to "sort my recyclables better."

Becky Nutt, ONHS science teacher stated, "Yawʌ?kó to the staff of the environmental department for sharing their expertise on water quality issues with our students. Water quality is sure to be an issue of increasing importance in the future. The professional presentations coupled with field trips provided a well-rounded learning experience for ONHS students."

EHS plans to continue this partnership with the high school and refine it each year to build youth who are highly engaged and aware of their environment. Many of the teachings of sustainability and environmental responsibility learned in these issues coincide with Oneida cultural teachings of respecting all living things on mother earth. One improvement we can do is to include more language and culture into this program in the future. This program is an outreach component of the Tribal Environmental Response Program. For more information contact Sylvia at 920-869-1600.

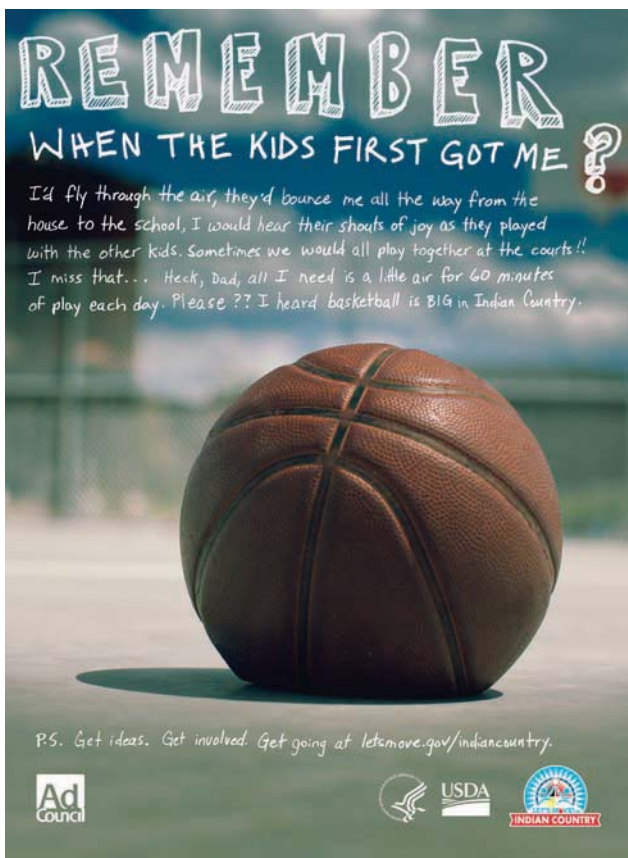
The most memorable hunting experiences seldom include game

Fall is the traditional time for harvesting some of nature's bounty. For hunters, it is a time to go after various types of game from pheasants to waterfowl to deer and bear. Those who do not spend time in the field cannot appreciate that nature's bounty is far greater than the pursuit of game. Memories of communing with the sights and sounds of nature often persist long after memories of the pursued game have diminished. Those who drink in nature's diversity and beauty have a much greater appreciation for their outdoor experience than will those who focus only on a desired game species. Those who keep track of the annual cycle of nature will be rewarded by what they experience every time they are outside.

On October 22, 2011, I had the opportunity to join up with a friend to go ruffed grouse hunting in Nicolet National Forest. Most of the leaves had lost their luster but there were still many trees with color and the tamaracks were at their golden peak among the greens of spruces, pines, balsams, and hemlocks. Seeing deer rubs and scrapes, looking at other animal sign and viewing various fruits and plant communities was worth the trip. Of course the blackberry bushes and stick-tights came with the experience. The scratches and hitchhikers will soon be forgotten.



Our quarry was elusive and we were new to the area. We observed very few grouse but it was an excellent day to be in the woods. One of the day's observations will take a long time to diminish from my memory! While paralleling the trail looking to flush ruffed grouse I had to cross over numerous large fallen trees. Just when nature puts obstacles in one's path she can provide unforgettable experiences. When I stepped up on one of these logs next to a large standing tree, I noticed that there was a large pile of sand next to me. The sand pile appeared out of place. As I stepped around the tree and off the log I looked into the hole where the sand had been removed and saw a black nose and two black eyes staring up at me! Seeing a black bear three feet from your feet will wake you up and make you forget how tired you are! At least it did for me! The bear let me pass then bolted from its den. It was far more frightened than I was. The vision of that black nose and those two black eyes will not be soon forgotten!

When in the outdoors one needs to be ready to drink in what-ever excitement nature might provide. It is the unexpected that makes outings memorable!

Marian University to offer special education master's & certification program

FOND DU LAC, Wis. — Marian University was recently approved by the Wisconsin Department of Public Instruction (DPI) to offer a master's degree and certification program in special education, beginning in January 2012.

The program is designed for educators who seek recertification credits, a master's degree in special education, a certification in special education or both a special education certification and master's degree. The DPI endorsed the degree program for special education/cross categorical with a concentration in specific learning disabilities for grades K-12.

"There has been a significant and steady increase in the number of students requiring special education, and current legislation emphasizes specific training for special education teachers," said Dr. Sue Stoddart, dean of the School of Education at Marian.

The program is designed to offer courses during the evenings, on weekends and during the summer. Some of the courses will be offered face-to-face and online, or in a combined hybrid format. Students who enroll in this program will be able to complete the necessary components for licensure and master's degree in approximately two years.

"There is an increase in the need for special education teachers across the state and country, especially as special education needs will increase for most school districts based on federal mandates that will require all students to receive the same educational opportunities," said Dr. Deborah Watry, department chair for the teacher education program at Marian.

The program will provide professionals with the tools to diagnose and assess students with disabilities, plan for applicable instruction, examine special education law, design effective classroom management programs and accommodate students with disabilities through assistive technology application in the classroom.

"School districts in Wisconsin are seeking teachers who are dual certified, with one of the certifications being in special education cross-categorical. The new special education program at Marian opens up increased employment opportunities for Wisconsin teachers," said Watry.

For additional information on the special education program at Marian, contact the School of Education at soedo@marianuniversity.edu or at 920-923-8100.

Marian University is a Catholic university in the Agnesian tradition. Founded in 1936 by the Congregation of Sisters of St. Agnes and based in Fond du Lac, Wis., the University lives its core values as a community committed to learning, dedicated to service and social justice, and joined together by spiritual traditions. An applied liberal arts institution, Marian offers more than 50 undergraduate and graduate programs at its main campus and a variety of adult accelerated, master's and doctoral degree programs in facilities throughout Wisconsin. The size of the university permits a very favorable student-faculty ratio, one of the lowest among Wisconsin campuses. Marian's programs are designed to meet a full range of pre-professional and professional academic needs, including business, education, the arts, sciences, nursing and criminal justice.

Miss Oneida 2011-12

Ululani Molina Nunies

Shekoli,

Hello everyone! I am your current Miss Oneida 2011-2012. My name is Ululani Molina Nunies. I'm the daughter of Monica and Sterling Nunies, the Granddaughter of the late Purcell and Angeline Powless, and the late Herman and Dolores Nunies. Currently I'm enrolled at Arizona State University majoring in American Indian Studies, hoping to pursue a career in Education one day. I'm enjoying this great warm weather although I'm missing out on my favorite season, fall. I'm happy to inform all of you that I currently hold all A's in all my four classes. My goal for this semester is to maintain all A's. So far since I've been crowned Miss Oneida I've had the privilege to make many appearances and be a part of different events. I've attended the Oneida Fourth of July Pow-Wow I was able to spend the whole weekend with Jr. Miss and Lil' Miss.

I attended the National UNITY (United National Indian Tribal Youth) Conference in July with my Youth Group the On^yote?A.ka Youth Council. I was able to share our social songs during the cultural exchange with over a thousand native youth. I also met a ton of new people as well as other Indian Royalty throughout the United States. I had the honor of reciting one of our traditional stories, about the Corn Husk Doll at the Native Fashion Show put on by Leah Stroobants. In the beginning of September I flew out to Milwaukee to join my Jr. Miss and Lil' Miss to help present the Hip Hop Category at the Indian Summer Music Awards. I've had the opportunity to do so many things, and it's only been a few months! I'm very thankful for everyone's support! And I can't wait to come home for Thanksgiving! Until then I wish everyone a safe and fun Halloween!

Sincerely,
Ululani Nunies Miss Oneida 2011-2012

Jr. Miss Oneida 2011-12

Shekoli,

My name is Katy Bermke. My Oneida name is Wa?yutya?ti·yósta? Which means, she makes herself attractive?

I am Turtle clan and this year I am attending Lombardi Middle School as an 8th grader. My parents are Violet Blake and Vince Bermke. My grandparents are Shirley Thomas and the late Donald Thomas, as well as, Sonja Bigly and Chuck Bermke.

Katy Bermke
Wa?yutya?ti·yósta?

I have learned a lot while being Jr. Miss Oneida. I have gotten to really know my Royalty partners Lil Miss Oneida, LeSette Hill-Waubanascum and Miss Oneida, Ululani Nunies. I feel I was able to teach LeSette a little more about our culture and our ways. She is fun to hang around with. She is a kind person and very funny. Getting to know Ululani is a lot of fun too. She is always smiling and telling jokes. This year she is attending Arizona State University so, it's a little harder getting to know her more.

Some of the events I have been to are; The Oneida Powwow, GTC meetings, Indian summer Powwow, The Indian Summer Music Awards, Education day in the village was crazy, I was at Art Street and the Oneida Husking Bee.

I would like to thank my Mom and Dad for sticking by me and supporting me, no matter what. I would also like to thank my family for supporting me, as well. I also would like to thank the Pageant committee for teaching me things about our culture that I didn't know before. I hope I can learn more and help to spread our culture to the rest of the community.

Yaw^ko (Thank you),
Wa?yutya?ti·yósta?

Getting Healthy means living healthy

By Noelle Metoxen
w/ Denis Gullickson

Eating Healthy

So something random, going on in my life recently is the food chain at my house. My mother is trying this new thing, for exactly a month. We are eating nothing but healthy foods, and seeing how it goes.

Day One, my mother went grocery shopping and bought nothing but nutritious foods. Last night, I had a chicken salad. I do have to admit it was rather delicious, though. My mother has banned adding any salt or butter to food.

Also, if we want milk we are drinking skim milk. I'm not a fan of that but it has less fat. I hope this month is worthwhile, it's my mom's decision and I don't have much of a say. She cooks the meals.

PALA

Along with this attempt to eat healthy in Noelle's family, as an example, came the announcement on Monday, October 31, by phy ed and health instructor Ces Dawson that ONHS would participate in President Obama's "PALA" or the "President's Active Lifestyle Award" program. Straight from the website, President's Challenge, the program goals were as follows:

"Adults (that's anyone aged 18 and older), your goals are:

Physical activity. You need to be active 30 minutes a day, at least 5 days a week, for 6 out of 8 weeks. As an alternative, you can count your daily activity steps using a pedometer (goal: 8,500).

"Healthy eating. Each week, you'll also focus on a healthy eating goal. There are eight to choose from, and each week you will add a new goal while continuing with your previous goals. By the end of the six weeks, you'll be giving your body more of the good stuff it needs.

Kids and teens (that's anyone between 6 and 17 years), your goals are:

"Physical activity. You need to be active 60 minutes a day, at least 5 days a week, for 6 out of 8 weeks. As an alternative, you can count your daily activity steps using a pedometer (girls' goal: 11,000; boys' goal: 13,000).

"Healthy eating. Each week, you'll also focus on a healthy eating goal. There are eight to choose from, and each week you will add a new goal while continuing with your previous goals. By the end of the six weeks, you'll be giving your body more of the good stuff it needs. "

My Scoop

Baby Lisa

By Joelle Thomas
Thunderhawk Times

In journalism class, we have been watching the "Baby Lisa" story. We have been watching it to learn about cases like this and about how the media covers them.

My thoughts on the case so far are:

I think that the situation is messed up, because only messed up people take 10 month old babies.

I think who ever has her should take her back to her REAL mom and dad. She deserves to be with her family that will love her and take care of her.

I find it very hard to believe that Baby Lisa's mom and dad had anything to do with this.

2011 Oneida Nation High School Homecoming

It was a busy stretch as ONHS celebrated Homecoming the week of Monday, October 24. Hall decorating and various dress-up days took place between Monday and Wednesday. On Thursday morning, class competitions were held including scooter races, pyramid building, 3-on-3 basketball, and powderpuff football. That afternoon, ONHS participated in the annual Family Feast.

My Passion? My Family!

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This morning, I took the time to interview myself. I was able to step back and take a second to really ask myself, what is my passion?

It didn't take me long to find an answer. My passion is my family, and friends. My life wouldn't be complete without them.

You don't realize how much of an impact these people have on you until you take a step back. Like if I were to live alone, and have to go to school with no one, and come home to no one, spend holidays with no one, no one would get old really quick.

As a child you don't witness as often how people come and go, so I think it's easier to just let people walk out of your life. This is why I try to take every moment one step at a time. It makes life more worth living.

My passion is spending time, going out to eat, shopping, watching movies, talking, walking, doing things with the people that matter the most to me.

L.F.L. Football

By Anthony Cornelius
Thunderhawk Times

What does the L.F.L stand for? It stands for Lingerie Football League! Don't really think that this can be taken seriously? Do you think that women playing football is a joke? Well you can decide this if you go check out our own Green Bay Chill.

The L.F.L is a 7-on-7 game of football. For the offense the format is 1 quarterback, 2 running backs, 1 center, and 3 wide receivers. As for the defense the format is 2 defensive linewomen, 2 linebackers, 2 cornerbacks, and 1 safety. The game is two 17-minute halves, separated by a 15-minute halftime. If a tie is to occur one or more 8 minute sudden death overtimes are played until a winner is determined. The field is 50 yards between 8 yard end zones.

The Green Bay Chill are coached by Former Green Bay Packer Player Gilbert Brown. Their record as of right now is 0-2. They lost their first game to the Minnesota Valkyrie, the score was 28-25. Their second game was held at the Resch Center on September 30. They lost that contest 42-8.

Elder Financial Scams

By Joyce Johnson
Elder Abuse Prevention Coordinator

Financial Fraud is a form of Elder Abuse.

- Elders living alone are at high risk
- Scams can be perpetrated by a stranger or by someone you know
- Scams can occur by mail, phone, door to door sales or through emails and the internet

Is someone you care for being scammed?

Look for:

- Sudden changes in a person's finances
- Odd withdrawals from a checking, savings, or credit card account
- Abrupt changes to a will, power or attorney, or property title
- A large amount of mail magazines or packages
- Increasing phone calls or e-mails
- Secrecy, shame, or confusion about money issues

Don't make on the spot purchases!

- Investigate before you spend money on big purchases
- Contact the Better Business Bureau to confirm legitimacy
- Ask someone you trust for a second opinion
- Do not give money to someone who shows up at your door
- Be careful purchasing online and ask someone for help before any big purchases
- If you have to act immediately, then it is likely it is a "too good to be true" scam

If you suspect an elder is being scammed, call Oneida Elder Abuse Prevention Coordinator 920- 869-2448

Campaign focused on Native Youth for Native Heritage Month in November

Washington, DC – The future of the almost 1.7 million American Indian and Alaska Native youth will be the main focus of this year's American Indian and Alaska Native Heritage Month, celebrated every year during the month of November. The announcement of this year's theme was made by a group of leading national American Indian and Alaska Native organizations in collaboration with a number of tribal and federal government offices. The group also announced the launch of AIANHeritageMonth.org which serves as a resource for youth, the general public, and organizers of Heritage month events.

"November is an important time for everyone to celebrate and reflect on the contributions of American Indian and Alaska Native peoples. The next generation of tribal leaders and citizens have held and will always hold a revered place in Native culture and society," said Jefferson Keel, President of the National Congress of American Indians, one of the organizations leading Heritage Month efforts. Keel, the Lt. Governor of the Chickasaw Nation, also serves as a member of the board of advisors at the Center for Native American Youth at the Aspen Institute, a Heritage Month organizing partner.

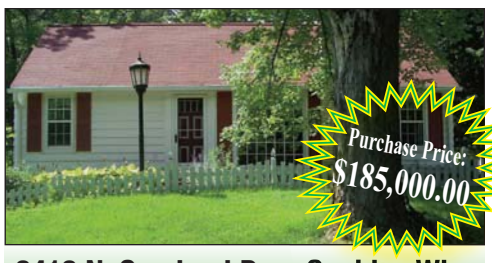
Native youth are a growing population with almost 1.7 million Native youth under the age of 18, representing 31.6 percent of the 5.2 million American Indian and Alaska Natives counted in the 2010 Census*. These numbers indicate a growing Native youth population that will be more active in society, including voting in elections, participating in the work force, and seeking higher education.

Though many statistics related to Native youth underscore various challenges, Heritage Month will highlight the positive stories and opportunities that are inspiring the youth based resurgence of tribal cultures and economic opportunity. The viral online video, "That's My People (watch)," recently produced by Native youth at the National Intertribal Youth Summit, is featured on the newly launched website and tells this story from a youth perspective. In November, the Center for Native American Youth and the National Association of Broadcasters will release a public service announcement featuring Red Sox's star Jacoby Ellsbury (Navajo), former Senator Byron Dorgan, and NCAI President Keel to raise awareness about issues facing Native youth.

"Native youth are our most sacred resource and a focus on youth must start in our homes. The home is the center of our family and it's where teaching begins," said National American Indian Housing Council (NAIHC) Chairwoman Cheryl A. Causley (Bay Mills Tribes of Chippewa). "As Native nations we must share with the world our reverence for Native youth, and continue to educate our youth about our cultures and traditions, and the importance of community involvement."

Heritage Month 2011 will focus on Native youth living in both rural and urban communities. "The National Council of Urban Indian Health believes that it is important for our Native youth to celebrate and share their culture wherever they may be living, furthering their education, or working. We are looking forward to collaborating with our fellow national organizations and agencies during Native American Heritage Month to celebrate Native youth and wellness," said D'Shane Barnett (Mandan/Arikara), Executive Director of the National Council of Urban Indian Health (NCUIH).º

The group of participating Native organizations includes the Center for Native American Youth at the Aspen Institute, National American Indian Housing Council (NAIHC), Native American Contractors Association (NACA), National Congress of American Indians (NCAI), National Council of Urban Indian Health (NCUIH), and the Washington Internships for Native Students (WINS) – American University. The theme has also been adopted by a number of tribal and federal government offices including the Navajo Nation Washington Office, Indian Health Service (a department of the Department of Health and Human Services), National Museum of the American Indian, Census Bureau, Department of Agriculture, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Department of the Interior, Department of Justice, and Department of Labor.



The partners involved coordinate a number of educational events for Washington, DC area residents and government employees. For a list of events being held in the month of November in the Washington, DC region and for a national calendar of events, visit the website: www.AIANHeritageMonth.org. Follow American Indian and Alaska Native Heritage Month on Twitter and Facebook.

How Veteran's Day 11-11 at 11am began

In 1921, an unknown World War I American soldier was buried in Arlington National Cemetery. This site, on a hillside overlooking the Potomac River and the city of Washington, became the focal point of reverence for America's veterans.

Similar ceremonies occurred earlier in England and France, where an unknown soldier was buried in each nation's highest place of honor (in England, Westminster Abbey; in France, the Arc de Triomphe). These memorial estures all took place on November 11, giving universal recognition to the celebrated ending of World War I fighting at 11am, November 11, 1918 (the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month). The day became known as "Armistice Day."

Armistice Day officially received its name in America in 1926 through a Congressional resolution. It became a national holiday 12 years later by similar Congressional action. If the idealistic hope had been realized that World War I was "the War to end all Wars," November 11 might still be called Armistice Day. But only a few years after the holiday was proclaimed, war broke out in Europe. Sixteen and one-half million Americans took part. Four hundred seven thousand of them died in service, more than 292,000 in battle.

An Appreciative Look at the Oneida Veterans Memorial

By Nicolas A. Reynolds
Historical Researcher, Cultural Heritage Department

The Oneida Veterans Memorial commemorates the veterans of the Oneida Nation of Wisconsin. The memorial is located on the Oneida Reservation along the western edge of Green Bay. The construction of the monument took approximately two months to complete and was dedicated on November 10th, 2007. The monument is a simple cement wall with inlaid black granite plaques symbolically spaced according to the length of peace between the wars. In addition, the site includes a small maple grove and a large statue of an eagle.

Since the inception of the United States, the Oneida Nation has been an ally with the U.S and the memorial wall includes a plaque dedicated to the memory of the Oneida men and women who have fought in every U.S war. Although the history of the Oneida begins long before the creation of the United States, the first plaque is in remembrance of the American Revolution in which an unknown number of Oneidas lost their lives. In spite of the fact that the Oneida people did not become U.S. citizens until 1924, the Oneida continued to support the U.S. by fighting in the War of 1812, the U.S. Civil War, the Spanish American War and in WW I. From WW II to present day the Oneida people have gone into war as individuals with dual citizenship, representing both the United States and the Oneida Nation. The last plaque on the monument is a dedication to the youth of the Oneida Nation in hope that they will be able to enjoy a lifetime of peace.

Time has nearly erased all knowledge of individual Oneidas who fought in the colonial and tribal wars prior to contact with Europeans. During the planning phases of the memorial, the Veterans of the Oneida Nation asked that the memorial not include individual names in order to prevent the accidental omission of any individual's name. As a result, the paver stones have been made available for purchase which could be inscribed with a person's name, rank, and branch of service. The paver stones are then laid into the brick walkway in front of the plaque of the corresponding war.

Near the memorial wall there is a large statue of an eagle. The eagle is a very important cultural symbol for the Oneida people. It goes back into the earliest stories of the origin of the Oneida people. The basic understanding is that the eagle is an intermediary between the Oneida people and the Creator and a protector who watches over the community. There is a certain commonality between the Oneida culture and the American culture of keeping the Eagle as an icon or symbol today. It seems very symbolic that both nations revere the Eagle and use it as a cultural symbol. It is almost as if there is something about the Eagle that keeps us bound one to another.

Finally, there is a small grove of maple trees that were planted on the grounds near the memorial. Maple sap, which, of course is used to make maple syrup, is extremely important to the Oneida. In fact, there is a ceremony that is done in the early spring specifically to express thanks for the gift of the Maple Tree and the sustenance that it provides. Maple syrup and sap are considered medicines in the culture of the Oneida. The presence of the Maple trees is symbolic of the healing that takes place by honoring and remembering our veterans. It is a way of healing our nation from the things that have happened; from the hurt and loss caused by war.

Postal Service Mailing Services Prices for 2012

Penny Increase in Price of Forever Stamps First Since May 2009

ONEIDA, WI ~ Beginning early next year, it will cost just a penny more to mail letters to any location in the United States, the first price change for First-Class Mail stamps (Forever stamps) in more than two and a half years. The new 45-cent price for Forever stamps is among price changes filed with the Postal Regulatory Commission recently.

Highlights of the new single-piece First-Class Mail pricing, effective Jan. 22, 2012, include:

- Letters (1 oz.) – 1-cent increase to 45 cents
- Letters additional ounces – unchanged at 20 cents
- Postcards – 3-cent increase to 32 cents
- Letters to Canada or Mexico (1 oz.) – 5-cent increase to 85 cents.
- Letters to other international destinations – 7-cent increase to $1.05

Prices also will change for other mailing services, including Standard Mail, Periodicals, Package Services and Extra Services. More information on the new pricing is available at http://about.usps.com/news/national-releases/2011/pr11_factsht_pricechng_1018.pdf.

"The overall average price increase is small and will help address our current financial crisis without burdening our customers," said Oneida Postmaster Cheryl Koenig. "We will continue to take actions within our control to increase revenue in other ways and to aggressively cut costs."

While actual percentage price increases for various products and services varies, the overall average price increase across all mailing services is capped by law at the rate of inflation calculated based on the Consumer Price Index, which for this period was

Elderly Activity Incentive Program Háo? twatya?tahni·láts

"Come on let's all strengthen our bodies"

By Jennifer Jordan, M.Ed., CHES, Injury Prevention Coordinator and Michelle Cottrell, Activity Specialist

Environmental Health and Safety

Preventing falls on the Oneida Reservation has been a goal of the Injury Prevention Program since 2009. In order to do this, the Injury Prevention Program, in partnership with the Oneida Elderly Services Program, developed the Elderly Incentive Program. The Elderly Incentive Program is a fall prevention program which encourages elders to engage in physical activity, attend community events and outings, and enjoys fellowship time with other elders through playing games such as bingo and Wii games such as bowling.

Participation in the program is free and open to all elders ages 55 and over. There are a few program guidelines:

1. You need to be present for the duration of the presentation/outing in order to have your activity card signed.
2. Every time you participate in one of the activities listed, have your card signed by any staff member. Keep this card with you.
3. At the end of each month, drop off your card any of the participating locations. Participating locations include: Environmental, Elderly Services, Recreation, Fitness Center, Library, and Oneida Community Health Center.
4. Points will then be tallied, and the top 10 point winners of the month will win an Oneida retail gift card.
5. Cards must be submitted by the 15th of the following month.

Activities will be separated out into 5 point categories-10, 20, 30, 40, and 75 points. The activities that are bigger and take more effort will be worth more points. There is no limit on how many times you can win, so keep racking up those points all year!

If you are not interested in participating in the program, here are a few things that you can do on your own:

- Exercise regularly. It is important that the exercises focus on increasing leg strength and improving balance, and that they get more challenging over time.
- Ask your doctor or pharmacist to review you medicines—both prescription and over-the counter—to identify medicines that may cause side effects or interactions such as dizziness or drowsiness.
- Have your eyes checked by an eye doctor at least once a year and update eyeglasses to maximize your vision. Consider getting a pair of glasses with single vision distance lenses for some activities such as walking outside.
- Make your homes safer by reducing tripping hazards, adding grab bars inside and outside the tub or shower and next to the toilet, adding stair railings and improving the lighting in your home.

For more information on the Elderly Incentive Program, please contact Jennifer Jordan, Injury Prevention Coordinator, 920-869-4520 or Michelle Cottrell, Activity Specialist 920-869-2448

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Food and Health: eat local and eat healthy

Health eating probably means spending more money on food. But you can spend that extra money on food now, or spend a lot more money later, treating heart disease and diabetes.

- The Center for Disease Control and Prevention estimates that one-third of all American children, and one out of two minority children, born in the year 2000 will develop diabetes as a result of poor diet and lack of exercise.
- No culture in the world pays less for food, per capita, and more on medicine. You can pay the doctor or pay the farmer.
- For the first time in American history this generation will have a shorter life expectancy than their parents.
- 5,200 deaths each year in America are due to food born illnesses. (Center for Disease Control, 2009)
- The last 30 years the average American has increased their sugar intake by 30% and most of this is in beverages.
- Local foods are fresher, tastier and more nutritious.
- A store bought tomato today has 46% less vitamin A, 29% less iron and 58% less calcium than the tomatoes of 50 years ago. (USDA data, 2009)
- It takes the typical food item 1,500 to 2,400 miles to travel from farm to plate. A head of California lettuce shipped to Wisconsin requires 36 times more fuel energy just to transport than the caloric food energy it provides.
- Due to the distance our food travels, each person consumes about 1 gallon of gasoline every day, simply by eating.
- Less petroleum used for shipping and reduced CO2 emissions.
- $1 invested locally creates a $4 multiplier for the local economy, and in these times of economic turmoil, it is even more important!
- By buying locally you get competitive prices while helping to create new jobs.
- Increased demand for local fruit and produce helps to preserve valuable farmland.
- Of every $100 spent on locally owned business, $45 makes it back into the community, compared to $14 back into the community from every $100 spent at big-box stores.

Oneida Nation Farm update: get the scoop on manure

If one of Oneida Nation Farms employees came up to you and asked you to explain your understanding of manure, how would you answer? At the Oneida Nations Farm, we have a huge appreciation for this; however, home owners have a different perspective. I hope to provide you with an explanation as to why the Oneida Nation Farm utilizes the use of liquid manure.

Liquid manure provides an excellent natural source of plant nutrients, and because it is natural it is also good for the soil. It helps with soil tilth (texture) by providing a slow release form of nutrients. Although you will not get all the available nutrients right away, the micro-organisms within the manure will live and prosper, providing plants with the vigor needed to cultivate into healthy end products. Nutrients from the soil are needed for plants to grow. The nutrients can be found in both natural and commercial fertilizers, but in different forms. The Oneida Nation Farm is currently receiving dairy manure. Before we begin the process of utilizing liquid manure, the manure is tested to see exactly what's in it. We also test the soil to see what the soil needs. The amount of liquid manure that is applied varies anywhere between 4,000 and 16,000 gallons. At 16,000 gallons this equates to 2.6 loads per acre, hence the number of loads can be large on any particular field. The amount of liquid manure placed on fields depends on the soil test results, and precise application is needed.

Currently the Oneida Tribe, as well as all Federal Agencies, closely monitors the phosphate levels to ensure we are not contaminating surface water or ground water. Surface spreading is environmentally friendly if done properly. Nitrogen levels are strictly monitored too. When the spreading process is occurring, the odor/smell is from the nitrogen escaping into the air. When the spreading process has been completed, we are required, per regulation, to incorporate the manure into the soil within 48 hours after having spread the manure. This is simply a process of working the manure into the soil. For the Oneida Nations Farm it's our goal to have this operation done within one hour after the spreading process has been completed. Liquid manure is spread onto the corn fields and hayfields. These types of fields need nitrogen to aid next year's planting season.

Now that we have provided you with an overview as to why the Oneida Farm uses natural liquid manure, you are probably wondering what is the cost associated with the number of acres the Oneida Nation Farm has. Basically we have gotten the manure at no cost to the Farm. Each tanker load you see on the road and in the fields holds approximately 6,000 gallons and is valued at about $63.90 per load. What we are accounting for is the nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. We are not including the trace elements and organic matter. The cost associated with this is based on the current price of fertilizer and the value will change as the market changes. This year 2011, by using liquid manure the Farm lowered the amount of commercial fertilizer purchased, which provided the Farm with a savings of approximately $122,000.00. Even though one of the side effects of liquid manure is the smell, the cost savings and soil improvements from this natural product provide multiple benefits.

As we approach the new planting/harvesting seasons, we are going to keep the community/neighborhood informed when it comes to applying liquid manure. Our plans include notifying neighborhoods by providing signage that liquid manure will be applied on this date and to what farm land. We will also incorporate the manure into the ground as soon as possible. As mentioned earlier, the Farm's goal is to have this completed within one hour after the spreading of manure is completed. We will be keeping all roads clean by sweeping at the end of the process.

The Oneida Nation Farms will continue to provide informational articles about the manure process, and the newest technology and methods for handling this product via Kalihwisaks and email notices. We will continue to work and protect the Oneida natural resources by working with Oneida Environmental Division and keeping in compliance with all federal regulations.

If you ever have any questions, please feel free to contact the Oneida Nation Farm by calling (920) 833-7952.

Waste to energy plant gets the green light

An artist rendering of the waste to energy facility by the Oneida Seven Generations Corporation. The U.S. Department of Energy issued a Finding of No Significant Impact for the plant which clears the path for construction to begin.

(Oneida, WI) The U.S. Department of Energy (DOE) has issued a Finding of No Significant Impact (FONSI) for Oneida Seven Generation Corporation's proposed waste to energy facility in Green Bay, WI. It is the last ruling needed to move forward with the plant. The DOE conducted an environmental assessment earlier this year, considered public input and, in August, issued a preliminary determination that the project will not cause significant adverse environmental effects. The final ruling (FONSI) was issued on Thursday, November 10, 2011.

In late September, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources issued final air and waste permits after determining the project will meet air and waste pollution control requirements and will not cause significant adverse environmental impacts. This followed a nine month application process, which included public meetings and comment periods.

"We are obviously very happy with the DOE and WDNR findings," stated Seven Generation's C.E.O. Kevin Cornelius. "We have said all along that this facility will be in compliance with all applicable state and federal regulations, or we would not build it. We take our commitment to the environment and future generations very seriously, so we are pleased the very agencies entrusted with protecting public health and safety have confirmed we are doing things the right way."

The waste to energy facility, to be located in an industrial area of Green Bay's west side, will take municipal solid waste that would otherwise be placed into a

Sgt. House recognized for heroic actions

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) Police Officer Sergeant Yuma House was named Officer of the Year by the Indian Country Section of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at their annual convention held in Chicago this past October.

"It's shocking because I know quite a few other officers that are well deserving more than I … I'm receiving on their behalf," said House. "It's an honor."

The son of Oneida citizen Sharon House, Sgt. House patrols the Lower Brule Reservation in South Dakota. Sgt. House was recognized for his actions on two dates. On June 21 two vehicles were swept off a highway during a flash flood. Sgt. House tethered himself with a rope and entered the flood waters to search the vehicles for occupants. Later that summer on August 2 Sgt. House responded to a head on collision where both vehicles were engulfed in flames. Sgt. House attempted to save the lives of the individuals in the burning cars with a fire extinguisher.

Sgt. House stated that patrolling the rural community can be difficult.

"We have all the same crimes most other reservations have, he said. "You're by yourself out

King sentenced to 1 year in state prison

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Brown County Judge Mark Warpinski sentenced Edwin King Jr. to a year in state prison and seven years of extended supervision for three separate felony charges. King was found guilty by way of no contest pleas to the three charges; Exposing a Child to Harmful Material, Causing a Child age 13-18 to View Sexual Activity, and Using a Computer to Facilitate a Child Sex Crime.

The courtroom was filled with the family and close friends of King who were there for support.

King's Attorney, David Christian, opened his defense by acknowledging how challenging this particular case has been due to the conflicts between King's reputation and the nature of his crime. "For me this has been a difficult and puzzling case. Mr. King has never been in any trouble in his life, he has no criminal record, no juvenile record. He comes from an extremely stable background, he's been married 39 years, has four children and seven grandchildren. He is a respected member of the community. I have to say that Mr. King is a low risk offender," Christian said.

A visually somber King was then given the opportunity to address the court.

"I want to say how sorry I am, sorry about all the pain I have caused to my family. It has been hard to live with that pain, it's been hard to live with myself. I'm not really sure how I got to this point. I lost the connection to my spirituality and now I'm returning to my spirituality. I will accept responsibility for my actions," King said.

King has also been attending counseling regularly on his own prior to being sentenced.

Judge Warpinski closed the proceeding by stating, "Aside from the condition of the crimes you have been accused of here I don't believe you are a bad person. But I have to look after the safety of the people. There has to be a way to make sure this doesn't happen again, that is why I believe state prison to be appropriate. I also believe that counseling needs will be better addressed in a prison setting rather than a jail setting."

King was not immediately taken into custody because Judge Warpinski believed there was no risk by releasing King into the public. A date was scheduled for King to arrive and be taken into custody.

Beverly Denny, 52, of Green Bay, died unexpectedly on Wednesday November 9, 2011 as a result of a traffic accident. The daughter of Curtis and Beverly Jean (Klevene) Denny Jr. was born July 31, 1959 in Milwaukee. She was a fun-loving woman with a great sense of humor who loved wearing crazy hats and going to the Casino. Bev loved spending time with her son and family.

Metoxen Noble, Hazel
October 20, 1918 – November 4, 2011

Hazel (Smith) Metoxen Noble, 93, passed away peacefully Friday morning, November 4, 2011 at the home of her son Roger in the loving care of her son Daryle. Hazel was a good Christian woman who cared for many in need and was an inspiration to her family and friends. Family meant the world to Hazel; she was the glue that kept us all together.

Hazel was born to Joseph and Rose (Cornelius) Smith on October 20, 1918 on the Oneida Reservation. She was united in marriage to Freeman Metoxen Sr in 1934. Out of their union Hazel gave birth to 14 children: Dewey (Dorothy) Metoxen, Chicago, Gary (Pat) Metoxen, Surprise, AZ, Michael Metoxen, MO, Allen (Toni) Metoxen, TX, Roger Metoxen, Daryle Metoxen, De Pere, Rosemary Metoxen, Kaukauna, and Patti Metoxen, San Leandro, TX; two daughters-in law Carole Metoxen, Little Chute and Deloria Skenandore, NV. Hazel is also survived by numerous grandchildren, great grandchildren, great great grandchildren, nieces, nephews, and cousins. One dear sister survives her, Rosalie La Mere. Three sons preceded her in death: Gordon, Freeman, Jr, and Ronald Metoxen; one daughter Janice Metoxen; one granddaughter Janice, and two sons who died in infancy: Joseph and Kenneth.

In 1971 Hazel and her youngest children moved to Hayward, CA for a fresh start and just because she always wanted to live in California. While in California she met and wed George Noble who has preceded her in death. She was a devoted caregiver and worked in several nursing homes while living in Wisconsin and California. She also spent time in Virginia, privately caring for a retired official of the Bureau of Indian Affairs. In 1987, she retired and Hazel longed for her home and moved back to Oneida to be close to her family and longtime friends. She wasn't retired for long and began volunteering for the Oneida Senior Companion Program where she visited many Oneida Elders for over ten years. Hazel was so very proud of all her sons for volunteering to serve in the Armed Forces.

In Loving Memory of...

Tami Jo (Sam) Cornelius

3/25/1969 – 11/18/2006

It's been five long years and with this month comes sad regret that brings a day we will never forget. The tears in our eyes we can wipe away, the ache in our hearts will always stay.

So many things have happened since you were called away, so many things to share with you- you are a grandma now to little Brody. Things we wish to say like we miss you so much and I wish you could call me just one more time for our noon phone calls.

Life goes on, we know that's true, but nothing has been the same since we lost you.

Victims IDed in Wis. crash that killed 3

TOWN OF LESSOR, Wis. (AP) ~ Authorities have released the names of victims in a two-vehicle crash that killed three people and injured four others in Shawano County.

The sheriff's office identifies the three who died as 52-year-old Beverly Denny and 17-year-old Jacob Johns, both of Green Bay, and 19-year-old Sebastian Scharenbroch of Oconto.

All three were passengers in a van that went into a skid on a snowy highway, collided with an oncoming truck and caught on fire Wednesday.

The driver and two other people in the van were injured. The truck's driver, a 56-year-old Appleton man, was taken to a hospital with non-life-threatening injuries.

The crash remains under investigation.

Gun rights advocate convicted in shootings

MILWAUKEE (AP) ~ A Milwaukee man who has advocated on behalf of open-carry gun rights has been convicted of killing one man and paralyzing another.

WISN-TV reports the verdict against Jesus Gonzalez came down late Thursday afternoon. He was accused of shooting Jered Corn and Danny John in May 2010 outside a bar on Milwaukee's south side.

Gonzalez told police they were trying to rob him and the shooting was self-defense. The survivor, Jered Corn, disputed that.

Gonzalez was found guilty of lesser charges of first-degree reckless homicide and first-degree reckless injury. He'll be sentenced next month.

In 2009, Gonzalez filed a federal lawsuit alleging his constitutional rights were violated on two separate occasions when police took him into custody because he was carrying a handgun in a holster.

ACLU to probe if SD breaks child-protection laws

By Amber Hunt
Associated Press

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) ~ The American Civil Liberties Union is investigating whether the South Dakota Department of Social Services violated federal law by removing Native American children from their homes and placing them in foster care instead of with relatives.

Tate Walker, an ACLU spokeswoman in Sioux Falls, said the civil rights organization has fielded individual complaints for years from families who said the state violated the federal Indian Child Welfare Act. The law directs officials to place Native American children removed from homes with their relatives or tribes except in unusual situations.

But the cases had been too scattered and disparate to tackle, Walker said, until a recent National Public Radio series accused the state of routinely breaking the law and disrupting the lives of hundreds of Native Americans each year.

"That aired and then boom: We're getting calls left and right," Walker told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "The outcry was phenomenal, not only from people demanding that something be done, but also from several potential plaintiffs."

The ACLU investigation could lead to a potential lawsuit that would unite complainants as plaintiffs against the state.

The three-part NPR report described Native American children as being placed in South Dakota's foster care system at a disproportionate rate: More than half of all children in foster care are Native American, despite them accounting for just 15 percent of the state's child population.

The series suggested that the motive might be money, since the state gets federal financial assistance for each child removed from his or her home. It also suggested a conflict of interest in Gov. Dennis Daugaard's work for Children's Home Society of South Dakota when he was a lieutenant governor. That organization received millions of dollars for housing Native American

Unclaimed vets money

(MADISON) – The Wisconsin State Treasury and the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs (WDVA) are teaming up to help veterans claim money they may have lost or forgotten.

The agreement between WDVA Secretary John Scocos and State Treasurer Kurt Schuller permits the Unclaimed Property Unit in the State Treasury to begin matching social security numbers from the Treasury database with those in a Department of Veterans Affairs database. Veterans who have unclaimed assets will receive checks from the State Treasury.

"It is our hope that we can make it easier for veterans to claim their own cash…money they might not even know they are missing," State Treasurer Kurt Schuller said. "These heroes who have fought for our freedoms deserve a little extra help from the State."

"Sharing information to match unclaimed assets with the rightful owner just makes sense," Secretary Scocos added. "This partnership with the Treasury is just one more small way we can help those who have served and sacrificed for our country."

The State Treasury is holding more than $400 million in unclaimed funds. The State Treasurer and his staff of claims examiners are working to return as much of that as possible every day.

Anyone can search for unclaimed money on the Wisconsin State Treasury website, www.statetreasury.wi.gov. Just click on the magnifying glass on the homepage.

Removal of Seneca Nation president voided by clerk

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) ~ A power struggle within the Seneca Indian Nation in western New York has taken another turn.

On Saturday, the Seneca Tribal Council voted 10-6 to remove Robert Odawi (oh-DAH'-wee) Porter as chief executive officer.

But on Sunday, the Seneca clerk voided that vote on a procedural technicality.

The clerk says the nation's ethics laws prohibit nation officials from acting upon matters in which their family members have a personal interest. But in the action to replace Porter with Councilor Michael "Spike" John, John's brother, Donald John, seconded the motion and participated in the vote.

Porter, who was elected to a two-year term as president last November, says the council's vote Saturday reflects political discontent over his administration's crackdown on corrupt insider deals.

here, we don't have backup except the next officer that's either just went off duty or is coming on to duty."

Sgt. House was influenced by his grandfather Roy House – an Army veteran who survived the Bataan Death March - to join the military and by his older brothers to go into law enforcement.

"I'm trying to fill the shoes of my grandfather Roy House who's still missed to this day. That's a big thing with us boys," said Sgt. House. "Our reflection is upon the way he raised us."

Sgt. House credits his success as a police officer to his wife Leah.

"Thanks to my wife putting up with me and all the time the government took away and her staying strong. They all say behind a good officer is a good wife.

children under contracts the state awarded without competitive bid.

The governor's office criticized the report and went on the defensive even before the series began airing last week, releasing a memo titled "Setting the Record Straight" that accused NPR's reporter of being unfair and biased. According to the memo, Children's Home Society has had contracts with the state since 1978, long before Daugaard became its chief operating officer in 2002.

While Walker commended the NPR report, she said the ACLU isn't out to attack the governor.

"It's not about the governor. It's about these kids," she said. "They deserve someone to check into this."

At the center of the conflict, she said, is a merging of state, federal and tribal jurisdiction that is difficult to navigate. The ACLU hopes the spotlight on the issue will prompt new legislation to make it easier for child-protective services workers to do their jobs.

On its website, NPR describes the three-part series as the culmination of a yearlong investigation.

"Some children are removed from their homes for legitimate reasons," the series' introduction reads. "But in South Dakota very few are taken because they've been physically or sexually abused. Most are taken under a far more subjective set of circumstances."

After the series began airing, two members of Congress - U.S. Reps. Ed Markey, D-Mass, and Dan Boren, D-Okla. - sent a letter to the Interior Department of Indian Affairs calling for an investigation.

"If the information on the NPR article is accurate, it would appear that the state of South Dakota has failed not only to abide by the mandates of federal law but also failed its Indian children, their families and their tribes by violating the letter and spirit" of the Indian Child Welfare Act, the congressmen wrote to Larry Echo Hawk, Indian Affairs' assistant secretary.

The federal law was passed in 1978 to help ensure that Native American children weren't separated from their families and tribes through involuntary removal.

Gubernatorial aide Tony Venhuizen told the Rapid City Journal it was unfortunate that two members of Congress representing other states didn't contact South Dakota officials before seeking an investigation into allegations about the state.

"These congressmen based their letter on an NPR report that was deeply flawed," he said. "It's really too bad that they took this step without even asking the Department of Social Services or anyone in South Dakota for the facts."

Walker, the ACLU spokeswoman, said the NPR piece highlighted an important and overlooked issue affecting Native American families.

"I have much respect for the (Department of Social Services) workers. I have to imagine that meeting all of the requirements they have to meet can get tricky," she said. "I think that some statutory legislative could potentially ease some of the burden."

Former Oneida teacher creates diabetic calendar

2012 Calendar offers healthy lifestyle for diabetics and those looking to lose weight

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Diabetes is a life altering disease in which high levels of sugar are present in the bloodstream; the number of diabetics in the United States is rapidly growing. The disease affects the types of food one can eat, making the task of eating healthy an essential part of day-to-day life.

Now imagine a calendar that informs, motivates, and guides a diabetic person to a healthy lifestyle. Such a calendar does exist and former Oneida Tribal School teacher Gwen Tatera created it.

Tatera, who has lived with diabetes for 15 years, was searching for a diabetic calendar to aid her overall health. "I went online to buy myself a diabetic calendar and I couldn't find anything I liked. I had written a book in the past and I thought if I could do that why couldn't I create a diabetic calendar," said Tatera.

Tatera hired an illustrator to execute the calendar's imagery as she began to research for her calendar, working on the project for nine months.

"I did a ton of research. I researched, researched, and triple researched. My oldest daughter, Mindy Tatera, is a Physician in Internal Medicine and I had her review my material," said Tatera.

While following the healthy life choices she put together in her calendar, Tatera began to see improvements in her blood sugar levels and she began to lose a significant amount of weight.

"So far while following this diet I have lost 80 pounds and that has played a major role in my blood sugar improving. My blood sugar has gone from an 8.1 to a 5.8. Most of my life my weight has been a yo-yo, but staying on this diet I have kept the weight off and I feel terrific," Tatera said.

The calendar, titled The Diabetic Calendar 2012 (Not Just for Diabetics) is also ideal for those looking to lose weight in a healthy manner. Filled with illustrations, suggestions, and monthly tips about diabetes the calendar can be used as a sort health handbook.

"I've been diabetic for 15 years and the results I got out of this plan have been remarkable. If I can get the calendar out to other people, then they can extend their lives too. Having spent time on the Oneida Reservation as a teacher I know that the number of diabetic people are high and I hope they can find a healthier life," said Tatera.

The Diabetic Calendar 2012 can be purchased for $15 and is available on the product's website, www.diabetic-calendar.com.

For those without computer access the calendar can be purchased from Tatera directly by calling her at (920) 364-9422.

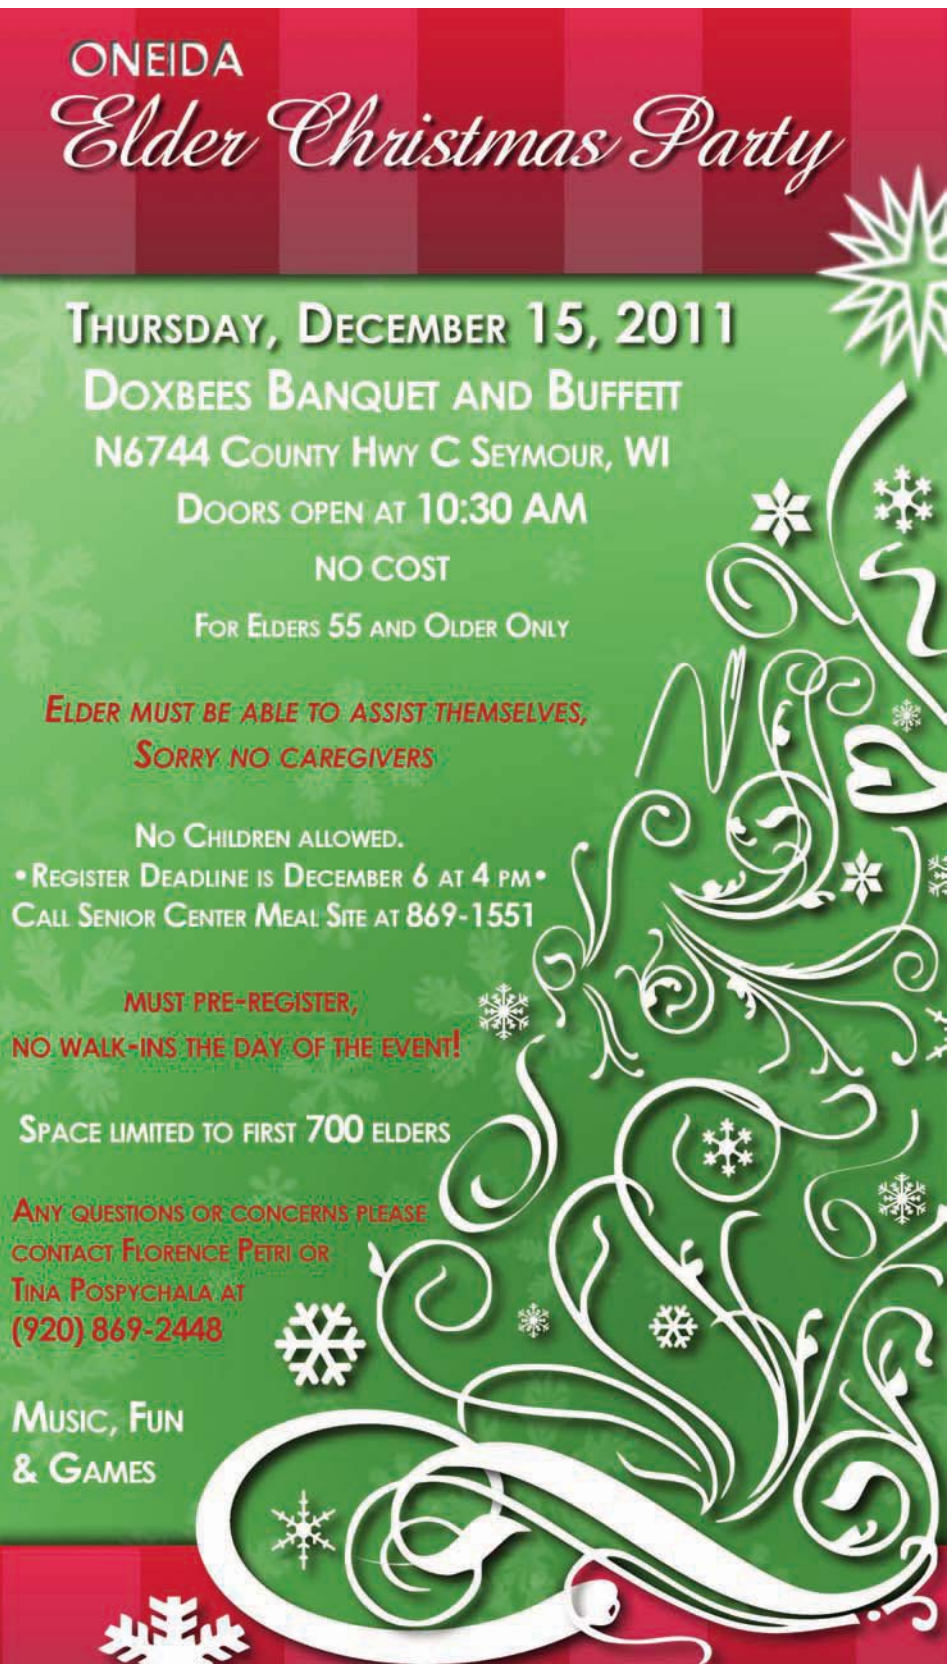
landfill, sort it, and put non-hazardous, non-recyclable materials through a Pyrolysis / gasification process; generating five megawatts of power hourly, which will be sold to Wisconsin Public Service.

Site preparation work for the facility was completed in October under a WDNR early start permit. It is anticipated that full construction will begin in 30 to 60 days, with the plant operational by December 2012.



"We are excited about what this will do to help the environment as well as the community," said Cornelius. "We'll reduce the volume of garbage going into landfills, increase recycling, create jobs and provide electricity," said Cornelius. "It really is a model for the future."

"Seven Generations would like to thank the Oneida Nation, the City of Green Bay, their elected leaders and staff, and the Perkins Park Neighborhood Association, for their support and assistance during this process," said Cornelius. "We value the positive working relationship with them and look forward to working with them in the future."

Vice-Chairman's Corner...

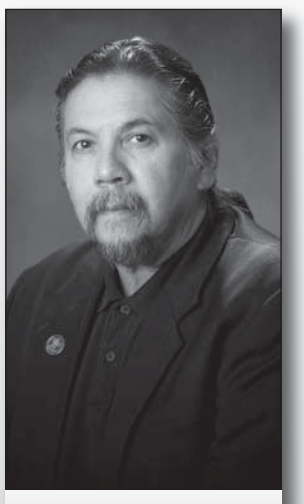
Greg Matson
Vice-Chairman

Shekólih,

I hear a lot of people saying that we are facing some very difficult times financially. I personally have a hard time accepting that because I think we just need to find our balance again. Over the years I have seen many things from within our organization that has taken away our ability to recognize our potential to bring all the people of the Oneida tribe up in a way that ensures we can all stand side by side and move forward. The passion to be the best we can be has slowly diminished and has been replaced in many ways with "I got mine, "now "you get your own." This is sad to me, but I know it is only temporary. I say that because I am confident that as we move forward, we will again "get it right."

This will take all of us; and I mean all of us that are proud to be Oneida, Haudensaunee and people of Turtle Island. For those of you that may not feel the need to contribute to the well-being of all Oneidas, I ask you to step aside and allow those with good intention for the people to move forward with the opportunity given to us. And once again join the effort at a later date. I thank you for this and look forward to your rejoining the effort for the community.

We as Oneida people have been through many struggles and have always made it through. I know we will continue this because of the belief in our ways. If you are wondering what I mean by that, then it's time for you to discover your ancestry and history. Once again, I ask you to step aside if you're not willing to do this because it is time people … it is time for us to realize what we have and take care of it. We have not lost our ways we have simply lost our way. Our families of the past would be ashamed of how far away from our ways we have stumbled. We need to become a family again. A family that takes care of each other and mother earth as well as give thanks for what we have.



During the proposed reorganization, I hope we can all realize the need to include all the people of the Standing Stone as equal and organize our membership to do what's right. We all have a title in this tribe whether it's manager, director, front line or brother, sister and mother, and hope we can all honor these titles with the best intentions. These titles all have roles and responsibilities that have to be maintained in the best way we can and I ask you all to do that. In the past some of these titles have been used to take advantage of an opportunity and I hope we can come together and make positive changes regarding these roles.

In closing I would just like to say we have the opportunity to really do what is right, but we have to let our common sense lead us and support each other in our future endeavors.

Oneida Tribal Vice Chairman

Chairman's Corner...

Ed Delgado
Chairman

On Monday, November 21st, the General Tribal Council will consider approval of nine resolutions. As Chairman it will be my responsibility to complete the Agenda. I hope to complete the Agenda by utilizing Robert's Rules of Order in a manner which will maximize the use of YOUR time. No one wants spend hours on each agenda item. I would hope to have the meeting done by 9:30 p.m.

Accordingly, I will assume that we will all come to the meeting informed. That will require us all to read the packets mailed to us. Also, the Business Committee will schedule community meetings prior to the meeting. My Office will also schedule meetings with Tribal members. You may contact Kitty Melchert at 920-869-4026 to schedule an individual review of the Agenda with either of my Senior Policy Advisors Diane House, Linda Dallas or with myself. You may contact my Office directly at 920-562-1750. In addition at the GTC meeting, I will recommend that we spend any specific time discussing any of the resolutions. I will support the use of "calling for the question" at any time after a motion is made. The use of "calling for the question" will allow the membership to decide when they have heard enough discussion and when they are ready to vote.

Probably the most important Resolution on the Agenda is first on the Agenda. The Resolution calls that "…there shall be no 2/3 vote requirement in the Ten Day Notice Policy. Given Notice in accordance with this law, action to overrule previous passed motions or resolutions shall require a simple majority vote."

Under our current Ten Day Notice Policy, a typical quorum of 1400 Tribal members at a GTC meeting requires a 2/3 majority vote to amend of repeal laws approved by the General Tribal Council. Therefore, under the 1400 member quorum scenario, if 900 Tribal members voted for change or repeal of a law and 500 wanted the status quo, the 500 minority would win the vote and wishes of the vast majority would be dismissed. It is no doubt the current Ten Day Notice Policy is unfair. But there is more. The Policy is a result of a mistake made when it was passed in 1991 and the Resolution being presented at the November 21st meeting will correct that mistake. In 1991, all the discussion at the GTC meeting contained discussion on the need for Notice (a very important component in any democracy). However, the 2/3 majority requirement was not discussed and according to the Oneida Law Office, there are those who attended the 1991 GTC meeting who admit that the 2/3 requirement was a mistake. We will have a chance to correct that mistake on November 21st. I ask that you the membership support this Resolution. Today's world requires that we be progressive and applicable to change. The Resolution being presented will allow our Tribe to better adapt and compete in today's and tomorrow's world. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado
Oneida Tribal Chairman

OBC Forum...

Over the last few months I have issued memos and urged us to think ahead. I have lost some quests to contain costs, but I have not lost faith that we can forge ahead with a good budget. My goal here is to help start the transformation of our tribe and to begin the process and retooling of the way our resources are allocated. We have to begin the process of delivering a more advanced level of services to the Oneida people; anything less will make us look like we're unequipped to properly handle the leadership helm here.

We are in a disastrous state here and this is why restructuring is needed. We are stepping into our footprint of GTC action. As we move through a restructuring process we need to look at how we can:

- Reallocate resources to better fit our organization,
- Increase efficiencies and create efficiencies where there are none, and
- Govern properly into the future.

I want people to understand that as the OBC, we are setting up opportunities through restructuring. There are many great opportunities to the set the Tribe on a path of success if we continue to put forth the effort to realign the organization to be in line with our vision. We are taking a new approach to reaching out to the people and the response has been positive. My office welcomes any ideas the membership may have on cost savings and welcomes any ideas you may have on areas where more investment should be required.

Liaison and Office Update

Oneida Total Integrated Enterprise's (OTIE) mission is to preserve, restore, and enhance the natural and constructed environment for future generations through successful customer-focused project delivery. As one of the liaisons to OTIE, I am working diligently toward creating job opportunities for the Oneida people within OTIE's mission.

Vince DelaRosa
Councilman

In October, Tribal Secretary Hoeft, Councilman Jordan and I attended the Organizational Structure Update at SEOTS. I also gave a briefing from my office on policy issues and pending legislation. As always, it is a great pleasure to meet with the Oneida constituents and discuss what is going on in the Tribe and in the Milwaukee community. Thank you to the SEOTS staff for assisting in communicating and organizing another successful community meeting.

I applaud the OBC for supporting housing. I am continuing to look at housing initiatives both here in Oneida and in Milwaukee and am actively working on a housing proposal as the housing liaison. Aside from this project, my office is also working on the following legislation:

- Amendments to the Election Law to include addressing issues raised from the last election and a referendum process.
- Amendments to the Comprehensive Policy Governing Boards, Committees and Commissions which would only allow non-employees to sit on boards, committees and commissions.
- Budget Management Act as directed by the General Tribal Council.

I have supported the addition of the dealers in the .75 cent wage increase and have supported the removal of the cap on dealer wages. I am pleased to report that the dealer wage cap was successfully removed at the last BC meeting. However, work still needs to be done in the area of wage issues. We may still have employees who are behind in the pay grade levels across the organization.

This fall the Oneida Apple Orchard hosted the Big Apple Fest which was a family event featuring Oneida products. The event was a success and I would like to see more events in the community like this event which brought the community together and supported a tribal entity.

On October 31st, I attended a Federal/State Indian Policy Briefing "Workshop" hosted by the Town of Hobart. The meeting was held in at the Capitol in Madison and video recorded. I encourage all of you to listen to the rhetoric being espoused by our neighbors, it is quite disheartening. Around 57 minutes into the video you will see Chairman Delgado address the Hobart panel followed by my questioning of the panel around 1 hour and 2 minutes. Several others also spoke out against this "workshop" and the presentation put forward by Hobart. The video can be viewed at http://www.wiseye.org/Programming/VideoArchive/EventDetail.aspx?evhdid=5420

In closing, I encourage you to join my email list at Oneida2011@yahoo.com. Through this email I will send out updates and other forms of policy information.

Thank you for your time and I will continue to provide updates in the next few months about how things are progressing. If you need any assistance or are interested in any released memos or reports, please feel free to contact my office at 920-869-4426 or email me at vdelaros@oneidanation.org.

Have a good day!

GTC 10-day notice policy-Approve forwarding the attached memo, resolution, statement of effect and draft laws to the GTC for consideration at the Nov. 21, 2011 meeting

Motion by Vince DelaRosa to advance the resolution with the amendment to the last whereas in the resolution, which should read "It has been determined that a simple majority vote to overrule previous past motions or resolutions, is more consistent with the Tribe's traditions of weighing the rights and responsibilities of all Tribal members equally" and to strike the word desirable, seconded by David Jordan. Motion failed with one abstention and four oppositions:

Ayes: Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan

Abstained: Greg Matson

Opposed: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

For the record: Vince Delarosa stated it's clearly obvious we have been misapplying a two-thirds majority for many, many years in GTC and others locations, mostly GTC. Chief council House actually kind of outlined at the LOC meeting how there was just an error in how we have been applying Robert's Rules of order as it relates to two-thirds majority. There was an oversight, there was a misunderstanding and this got advanced somehow and we've been doing it for a long time and it's just not an appropriate standard. For amending a constitution? Yes. But for amending simple policy work that impacts the lives of folks in positive manners, it's not a standard that we need to bear. I support this majority movement, which is the appropriate movement towards advancing policy on behalf of the people.

For the record: Brandon Stevens stated I'm in agreement with the resolution, but I know the discussion will come up on what pieces of legislation need more protection than others, like the constitution. Perhaps the judiciary, that's another discussion but to require changing those documents, I would feel would be two-thirds vote to change and the judiciary is up for discussion, but I think constitution is definitely one of those ones we need to protect.

Current judiciary status

Motion by Patty Hoeft to accept the report on the current judiciary status as FYI, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with one abstention:

Desktop Support Specialist Trainee, MIS Department
Full-time Desktop Support Specialist I, MIS Department
Client Server Computer Programmer, MIS Department
Motion by Tina Danforth to allow for a transfer for Tribal member only posting for the three positions and that a report be brought back in thirty days as a status of the hiring process; relative to those considerations, seconded by Melinda J. Danforth. Motion carried with a vote from Chairman Delgado breaking the tie:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Tina Danforth, Paul Ninham, Ed Delgado
Opposed: Patty Hoeft, Vince DelaRosa Greg Matson
Abstained: David Jordan, Brandon Stevens
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated my concerns are many, I look forward to talking to you; I hope we can get some written reports. I am really interested in the evolution of technology-based platforms such as even cloud computing. I've done a little bit of research on that and I just see that there are fundamental changes that we have to have here now. So instead of adding staff I would like to have that type of dialogue first until we figure out where we are going. So hopefully you have that type of vision and you're going to bring reports forward that will look into those types of platforms and other things that we can utilize to better reach out to our Tribal members and service the employee base here. Hopefully you got some sort of report along those lines that the council can look at, but I'll make a formal request.
For the record: Brandon stated I abstained only because these requests are becoming more and more apparent that these are day-to-day decisions and we, as we go through reorganization we really need to start pushing that a little further, since that is our direction and pushing these back on to the division directors to make that decision and for the committee to just receive the reports, accept it and then if we disagree on their decisions then that's how we act appropriately. Rather than making these decisions.
For the record: Tina Danforth stated these are procedural exceptions and that is the only reason why they are being addressed. We are not addressing them because they are day-to-day. Thank you.
Motion by Tina Danforth to recess for lunch until 1:30 p.m., seconded by David Jordan. Motion approved with one opposition:
Ayes: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens

Motion by David Jordan to approve the request, seconded by Brandon Stevens. Motion carried with one opposition:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Opposed: Tina Danforth
For the record: Tina Danforth stated she is opposing because our budgetary considerations are to reduce the labor pool and I think even though it would be something that you want to have, it's not a necessity to the extent that service would be discontinued.

New Business/Requests

Additions
Approval of the Budget for Nov. 21 GTC meeting
Motion by Tina Danforth to approve the budget to be forwarded to the General Tribal Council as presented in the draft that was provided today, seconded by Vince DelaRosa. Motion carried with two abstentions:
Ayes: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, Patty Hoeft, David Jordan, Greg Matson, Paul Ninham
Abstained: Melinda J. Danforth, Brandon Stevens
For the record: Vince DelaRosa stated I am in support of moving the budget forward and I am in agreement with advancing a basic budget forward until such time as we hear from the Division Directors (DD) and formulate our final restructuring plans after review of the DD's plans and reports.
I would note, the finance personnel of the tribe and all of management have worked hard over the last few months, along with the new Oneida Business Committee (OBC) to get to a balanced budget to the General Tribal Council (GTC) and I want to move the budget forward.
If we look at where we were at in the beginning of this budget cycle, over the last few years we as a tribe have had an extreme difficulty in keeping operational costs in line with fiscal year FY 2011 through 2013 revenue projections. However, over the last few months and during this budget cycle we have come a long way. In fact, it was reported by the Tribal Treasurer her September 2010 Executive Summary, that "both the 2012 and FY2013 [budgets] had projected to have deficit balances of -$34,680,688 and -$12,900,899 respectively", and today we have largely arrested these projected spending deficits. Likewise, the Treasurer and her staff, along with the OBC and management have done a good job of getting to a balanced budget. It is for all those foregoing reasons that I support moving the budget forward while acknowledging that moving forward we have financial risks and challenges that we still have to address. I am confident we can meet some of those challenges while also creating room in future budgets for a higher level of programmatic activity as we move forward, with housing being one of the biggest initiatives which we need to address.
For the record: Tina would just like to thank the committee and the finance department staff for their diligence, their patience and their hard work on putting together this budget; especially during a transition period. Every time the BC made a decision on the budget, my staff went back and reworked the budget. So they were almost daily for three weeks changing the numbers of this budget and I appreciate all of their hard work. Thank you.
Amendment to the motion to strike Native American Bank contribution from the budget, seconded by PaulNinham.
Amendment fails with four oppositions and one abstentions:
Ayes: Melinda J. Danforth, Paul Ninham, Brandon Stevens
Opposed: Tina Danforth, Vince DelaRosa, David Jordan, Patty Hoeft
For the record: Greg wants to state why abstained on the amendment and it was based upon, I feel the GTC has a right to make that decision based upon information given at the regular budget meeting. The vote of support to move the budget forward to reflect the same, this is a GTC action that needs to be approved.

Letters & Opinions...

Ya wáko

On behalf of the family of Purcell Powless we wish to extend a great deal of appreciation to all who came to honor his memory at the first annual Purcell Powless Remembrance Day tree planting ceremony. Thank you especially to the Oneida Business Committee for the action they took to recognize the memory of retired Chairman Purcell Powless as a Tribal holiday and for coming to the ceremony.

We chose to plant a white pine as a symbol of peace for our community. We also wanted to commemorate Purcy's extraordinary example of his commitment to the seven generation philosophy to our homeland here in Wisconsin. His land is forever in trust and will never be sold. He made that commitment to his family and community and for that we are grateful.

Thank you to family and community for the food donations. There was so much food that we took the remainder to the homeless shelter later in the day, we are sure they were grateful.

Thank you to those who contributed the prayers, good stories, picnic tables, the tent, firewood, the photographs, and also cash donations to the Purcell Powless Scholarship.

Ya wáko,
The Family of Purcell Powless

Museum Request

Hunting season is once again here, and I remember my father in law Zachariah Skenandore! A World War I veteran used to loan out some World War I weapons to his brother in law Edward Metoxen, his friend Philip and Orvil Cornelius and a few others to the Skenandore family.

If their descendants would like to return any of them, please make arrangements with the "Frank & Nancy Marine Corps Museum" by calling 920-869-2709 or call 928-305-6532(His Yuma telephone). We would very much like to display it so all the public could see these World War I artifacts.

The weapon was a Springfield 30.06 Long Barrel Rifle, with a side load feature that held five rounds. It was used for deer hunting.

Thank you in advance and may God Bless You and your family.

Yours Truly,
F.L. Cornelius

Finding Freedom

I am writing to find spiritual people, Native brothers and sisters who walk the Red Road.

I am a Native brother who is on the path. I have been locked up for the last seven years of my life. I'm thankful to be getting out soon. This time has shaped and polished me. I went from a wild youngster who dealt drugs, got shot, got stabbed multiple times (once in the heart), hit by cars, got in fights with everyone, overdosed, died legally twice; to a person who when he wiped out the drugs and alcohol for six months was a completely different person. I went through a lot of trial and error of finding the things I love to do. I now am a writer, I am a mixed martial artist, I am an entrepreneur (from prison!), I am a singer. I love to learn, love knowledge and love my Native culture. But if I can do this from here, you can surely do it out there.

Whoever, wherever we are, in or out of prison, we are all doing hard time until we find the freedom inside ourselves.

Though we may seem an unlikely bunch, filled with doubts, fears and many forms of self-hatred, we also happen to be the keepers of the precious flame of Truth; it survives solely because we keep it flickering in our hearts. We're loaded with spiritual power. We just have to unblock our access to it. And it takes a lot of self-honesty and hard work, no matter where we live, or how we spend our days, or what we've done in the past.

Every one of us has the starring role in this movie of life. We're all heroes, adventurers, who have a lot of ups and downs, who may stumble and fall a million times, but we can all become strong, wise and free by the end.

About the highest compliment in prison is "He knows how to do his own time." How many of us do? How many of us use every moment of our lives to get a little bit stronger, a little bit freer, no matter what's going on around us, no matter how crazy or violent it all seems to be? This is a constant opportunity we all share. People with wisdom have known this forever.

With kindness, humor, patience, courage and self-honesty, we can find that inner peace deep within ourselves. Most of the time we don't use but a fraction of our spiritual power that would make life feel infinitely more natural and more worth living. Wisdom and joy come only from learning how to see a wider much more wondrous world, and power comes only from the spirit within. If you need to talk to someone, write me. Bless all of your family hoops. Be well. Be safe. Be happy. Be yourself and take care. We are all related.

November 21 GTC Meeting

November 21, 2011 GTC Meeting

On this date I will be presenting nine resolutions for the GTC to consider. I turned these in January and April. Jo Anne House is stating that some of them cannot be voted on because there have been no public hearings or other reasons of her own. The Administrative Procedures Acts calls for public hearings when the Business Committee wants to change a law, but not for the GTC. I call upon the GTC to hold onto its right to make decisions that affect the lives of Oneida people.

I am also asking the GTC to change the order of the agenda. Resolution 8 orders the medical management team to restore the specialists positions of urology, ear/nose/throat and allergy/asthma to the Oneida Health Center. Please move this to the second resolution and place the one that is second to the end of the agenda. The management removed these positions. Now Oneidas who live out of Brown and Outagamie will need permission to be referred. The Health Center has what is called a priority list. I know one woman who had heart symptoms. Debbie Danforth told her she had to sign a paper stating she would be responsible for all charges if she didn't have a heart condition, because she was a low priority. I advised her to sign. Her heart was so bad part of it was dead already. I know this to be true because I was with her when it happened. She was my sister Winifred Skenandore.

With regard to the urologist, Dr. Joseph Binard offered his services free of charge. They never even acknowledged his offer.

The Oneida Legislative Operating Committee stated that there are not legal bars to adopting this resolution. Jo Anne House says it is out of order. I'm asking the GTC to overrule her opinion.

Resolution 6 and 7 deal with the farms. I'm calling for a doubling of the grass fed beef herd and also I'm calling for a generous Oneida Tribal discount for beef for the Oneida people. One of the reasons why the farms can't make a profit is that the Land Commission charges the Oneida Nation farm $100 per acre to use our Oneida Land! It is strange that the Land Commission charges Land Commission member Pat Cornelius' husband Merlin $20 an acre for 99 acres. Over a three year period that is a loss to the tribe of $23,760 and double that if they take the three year additional option. Good deal for a private business! I don't care how old you are, I'm 70 but I wouldn't have the nerve.

Oneida land should be there for four purposes; to provide health food and home sites for the Oneida people and to protect our sovereignty and for recreation.

Please read all the resolutions and come prepared to vote so we can get these done in one night.

Sincerely,
Madelyn Genskow

Concerned son

I am Enrique R. Caravantes and I am currently incarcerated in GBCI. I get the monthly tribal paper. I was looking through the paper and I saw the advertisement for a women's support group. It stuck out to me because I was looking for something along the lines for my mom. Needless to say my mother has been going through some of her own problems. I brought up the support group to her and she was against it because there was no confidentiality principle expressed. I attend alcoholics anonymous and narcotics anonymous here at GBCI and our biggest principle is what's said in the group, stays in the group period. My mother said to me that when she went to the support group the tribe hosts and the confidentiality principle wasn't practiced. Now this is a concern to me because I have to attend some tribal support groups to help readjust back into the community. If I can't trust that what I say will stay within the group then we, as Native people aren't exercising our love, unity, and support for each other. There are way too many issues within our people and we all need safe places to get our problems off our chest. I've become very passionate about my NA and AA. The thought of me hosting my own AA groups did come across. I don't want drugs and alcohol to ruin the sacredness of our people. I am a very proud Oneida man and my culture runs deep in me. I was disappointed to hear what I heard from my mom so I hope I'm giving a voice, or being a voice for and with other people who may share my same concern and ambition. I am looking to help and try to better our people.

Sincerely,
Enrique Caravantes

Oneida Elder Named Purpose Prize Fellow

Purpose Prizes Honor Americans Over Age 60 for making an Extraordinary Impact in their Encore Careers

Jerry Hill

ONEIDA, Wisc., Nov. 3 — Civic Ventures announced that Jerry L. Hill, from Oneida, is a 2011 Purpose Prize fellow. Hill was recognized as a social entrepreneur over 60 who, in his encore career, is using his experience and passion to make an extraordinary impact on society's biggest challenges. Now in its sixth year, the $17 million Purpose Prize program is the nation's only large-scale investment in social innovators in the second half of life.

Hill was named a fellow because of his consistent dedication to his Oneida culture and language. He was a language apprentice to Oneida Elder, Amos Christjohn, for 10 years, who inspired and encouraged other Oneidas to revitalize their language, participate in their cultural practices and to become educated as a path toward survival and good citizenship.

"While Purpose Prize fellows are helping to solve a wide range of pressing social problems, they have one thing in common," said Marc Freedman, CEO and founder of Civic Ventures and author of The Big Shift (PublicAffairs Books). "They – and millions of others in encore careers – are turning personal passions and decades of experience into invaluable contributions across sectors, continents and generations, often through entrepreneurship."

The approximately 300 attendees of the invitation-only Purpose Prize awards ceremony will hear from Prize judges, including NBC's Jane Pauley and Sherry Lansing, CEO of The Sherry Lansing Foundation and former chair of Paramount Motion Picture Group. The 28 judges – leaders in business, politics, journalism and the nonprofit sector – chose the five winners from a pool of more than 1,000 nominees.

"I believe my training as an attorney laid a groundwork for the discipline needed to pursue Native language revitalization efforts with other tribal members and Native people throughout North America," said Hill.

Funded by The Atlantic Philanthropies and the John Templeton Foundation, The Purpose Prize is a program of Civic Ventures' Encore Careers campaign (www.encore.org), which aims to engage millions of boomers in encore careers combining personal meaning, continued income and social impact in the second half of life.

For more information about The Purpose Prize, visit: www.encore.org/prize.

Northeast WI Veterans Treatment Court to begin hearing cases

Green Bay radio personality John Maino opened a press conference held at the Brown County Courthouse to announce the start of the Northeast Wisconsin Veterans Treatment Court.

Green Bay – Military veterans involved in the criminal justice system soon will have the opportunity to request enrollment in a court-monitored treatment and accountability program when Brown County launches northeast Wisconsin's first Veterans Treatment Court.

The Northeast Wisconsin Veterans Treatment Court (NEWVTC) will be joining more than twenty other Veterans Treatment Courts across the nation that focus on the unique circumstances that can impact the lives of men and women who have served in uniform. The courts, similar in principal to drug and mental health courts, link justice-involved veterans with treatment, recovery, and rehabilitative services to address the invisible wounds of post-traumatic stress disorder and mild to moderate traumatic brain injury; mental illness; and substance abuse that, left unaddressed, may become underlying causes of criminal behavior. The Northeast Wisconsin Veterans Treatment Court will offer eligible veterans a supervised and coordinated program of treatment, services, and mentoring designed to help justice-involved veterans overcome service-related problems and once again become contributing members of the community.

Court partners and stakeholders include the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Wisconsin Department of Veterans Affairs, representatives from Brown County's District Attorney's and Public Defender's offices; Law Enforcement and Department of Corrections professionals; the Human Services Department; local Veterans Service Organizations including a representative from the veterans of the Oneida Tribe of Indians; and volunteer veteran mentors. With a clear focus on public safety and improving the success of veterans in their translation into civilian life, the court is designed to rely on available resources and community support without requiring new taxpayer dollars. Although the court seeks to assist veterans, they are held accountable for their conduct before and during the program: the obligation to conform to the court's rules and expectations is stringent and compliance is mandatory.

Judge Robert Russell in Buffalo, NY established the nation's first Veterans Treatment Court in 2008. Judge Russell has addressed the Wisconsin State Bar to report that the Buffalo court has been successful in helping veterans since its inception and has saved his state an estimated $12 million in social services costs. Wisconsin established its first Veterans Treatment Court in September 2009 in Rock County, with other courts established in Wisconsin since that time.

Law signed letting UND drop Fighting Sioux name

By Dale Wetzel and Amber Hunt
Associated Press

BISMARCK, N.D. ~ Like many of her classmates and University of North Dakota students who came before her, senior Annie Hessinger says it doesn't matter that the school is shedding its 81-year-old nickname after a drawn-out dispute with the NCAA. She's Fighting Sioux and always will be, no matter what new nickname the school eventually picks.

She'll still wear clothing bearing the Fighting Sioux logo, a colorful profile of an American Indian warrior's head. And she'll carry on school traditions that started long before she arrived, such as ending the national anthem with "home of the Sioux" instead of "home of the brave" before games.

"I've grown up going to Sioux games. My whole family has gone here," said the 21-year-old graphic design major, whose parents and three siblings attended UND. "It's not just the hockey team or the athletic teams. All the students here are Fighting Sioux."

Gov. Jack Dalrymple signed a law Wednesday overturning a last-ditch attempt in March by the Legislature - which counts many UND alumni among its members - to mandate that UND keep the Fighting Sioux name. That maneuvering caused scheduling headaches for UND teams and threatened its bid to join the Big Sky Conference as it transitions from Division II to Division I sports.

Since August, the NCAA has banned UND from hosting postseason tournaments and said the school's athletes may not wear uniforms with the nickname or logo during postseason play.

"Being forced to change what you're called doesn't mean changing who you are," said Democratic Sen. Mac Schneider of Grand Forks, a former UND offensive lineman. "We are the University of North Dakota, and we'll always be fighting."

The NCAA in 2005 placed UND on a list of schools with American Indian nicknames, logos and mascots that it found objectionable, and UND was the last holdout on that list. Some schools were able to keep their nicknames by getting permission from the tribes. But while the Spirit Lake Sioux tribe endorsed the Fighting Sioux nickname, the Standing Rock Sioux's tribal council refused.

UND teams have been known as the Fighting Sioux since 1930. Those who support the name echo the argument made by fans of other teams with American Indian mascots - that it is part of the school's heritage and is a sign of respect that honors proud American Indian traditions.

But critics say that naming sports teams after Indians, a historically disenfranchised race of people, is demeaning and even racist.

"It's all about athletics. That's the only reason they're going along with the change," said B.J. Rainbow, 31, a UND graduate who was among a group of students in April who filed a federal lawsuit to bar the further use of Fighting Sioux imagery.

"There isn't anything about the hurt," he said.

The university has to change a lot more than mindsets. The Fighting Sioux logo and moniker appear on everything, from merchandise to the privately financed arena where the hockey teams play. The school estimates it will cost almost $750,000 to paint over, scrub out or otherwise remove old logos, order new uniforms and gear for its teams, change its stationery and update its websites.

Some remnants are likely to remain. Inside the privately owned Ralph Engelstad Arena are thousands of granite and metal Indian head logos, including one huge logo inlaid into the floor inside the building's main entrance. Jody Hodgson, the arena's manager, previously has estimated it would cost about $1 million to have most of them removed. He declined to comment when reached Wednesday.

Under the law signed Wednesday, UND can't adopt a new nickname or logo until January 2015 - a provision intended to allow the furor over the change to quiet before the university re-brands itself, officials said.

"I think we can agree that the NCAA has been frustratingly obstinate on this issue," said state Rep. Stacey Dahl, who wrote the provision. "But I assure you that it's not the NCAA who will be hurt if we do not repeal this law. It's going to be our student athletes and Division I sports at UND."

Dean Blais, who led UND to two national championships during a long tenure coaching men's hockey at the school, said UND students and alumni treat the Fighting Sioux name with reverence, and that he doesn't think they should be forced to abandon it.

"It means the world. The Fighting Sioux were exactly that. They were a proud tribe," said Blais, who now coaches at the University of Nebraska-Omaha.

He said the debate over the name was just gaining steam when he left the school in 2004.

"That was very upsetting to me, being the head coach there, knowing what the Fighting Sioux name meant to all our alumni and anyone who put on that jersey," he said. "That was a big thorn in my side when I was head coach."

Senecas want arbitrator to settle dispute with NY

By Carolyn Thompson
Associated Press

BUFFALO, N.Y. ~ The Seneca Indian Nation will seek expedited arbitration to settle a dispute with New York that has held up payment of $330 million in gambling profits to the state and three cities where the tribe has casinos.

Seneca President Robert Odawi Porter said Thursday that Gov. Andrew Cuomo had failed to make a good faith effort to resolve the nearly 3-year-old impasse over whether the state's expansion of gambling violates its 2002 casino compact with the Senecas.

"The passage of time has deteriorated the nation's willingness to trust the state to work out these disputes," Porter told The Associated Press. "The clearest way to resolve it at this point is to arbitrate."

A letter from the administration to Porter this week suggests the frustration runs both ways.

In January 2009, the Senecas stopped sharing casino profits with the state as called for by the compact, saying New York's approval of slot machines at racetracks and the video game Moxie Mania in bars violated a clause in the compact promising the tribe gambling exclusivity in western New York.

The compact requires the state to split its casino proceeds with Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Salamanca, where the Seneca casinos are located. The revenue loss has hurt all three cities. In July, Salamanca obtained a $5 million emergency loan from the state to maintain services threatened by a budget shortfall.

In a letter to Porter this week, the Cuomo administration faulted the Senecas for dragging out the issue, saying the state sought arbitration nearly 11 months ago at the end of Gov. David Paterson's administration, but the tribe had been unresponsive.

"This action has resulted in significant hardships for a number of communities in the state which had specific line item expenditures associated with these revenue payments," wrote Howard Glaser, director of state operations.

Porter called the letter "inflammatory." The tribe, he said, had given the new administration time to pursue good faith negotiations before continuing with arbitration, only to find out this week that it wasn't interested.

"This is a very frustrating scenario, 10 months later, to finally hear that arbitration is the official position for resolving the dispute," Porter said. "It's wasted an awful lot of time for our nation and for the local governments who've been hanging out there without getting paid."

In Albany, Cuomo laughed at the idea that his administration has moved at a glacial pace.

"Yes, that's us, we're known for glacial-type movement," he told reporters. "We're looking and have been looking to resolve the differences as quickly as possible."

UWGB designing new Oneida language website

By Jamison King
ANA Multi-Media Specialist

From left to right: Dr. Cliff Abbott, Jeff Benzow, Ben Buhr and Drew Hanson-Larson. The staff were presented with Oneida Pendelton blankets provided by the ANA Language Grant, and both students were presented with Packer tickets for the November 20th game vs. the Tampa Bay Buccaneers. The tickets were provided by Oneida Tourism.

Volunteers from The University of Wisconsin Green Bay are in the process of designing a new Oneida Language website. Students, Drew Hanson Larson and Ben Buhr have been instrumental in making this website user-friendly and accessibly for users of all ages. Hanson-Larson and Buhr are currently in the graphic and web design program at UWGB.

The staff is Jeff Benzow and Dr. Cliff Abbott. Benzow is the Associate Professor of Arts in Visual and Graphic design. Dr. Abbott is a Professor of Information and Computing Sciences in the American and First Nations Studies and has been involved in the Oneida language for over 30 years. He helped develop an Oneida dictionary along with Maria Hinton and Amos Christjohn and has advanced that in to an online dictionary which will be incorporated onto the new website.

The professors as well as the students have been volunteering their time to make this project possible. Oneida cultural heritage staff has been meeting with the University giving input on how they wanted the website to be laid out. The design and layout of the page are nearly completed. This will be very beneficial to Oneida community members looking to have access to Oneida language and Oneida language materials anytime via the internet.

The project is on pace to be finished sometime this winter, if not early spring and will be at the same web address at the current language website oneidanation.org/language. This new website will make it easier for us to add our language materials and edit content as well as incorporate the Oneida font with in the web page, which is very challenging because of the unique font system with our language.

On October 20th, Oneida Cultural Heritage staff along with Oneida tourism presented the two students and staff with some gifts to show our appreciation for the hard work, dedication and volunteering their time to helping make this new website possible.

We would like to encourage everyone to go to the current website and practice the Oneida language oneidanation.org/language.

Oneida Nation High School honors area veterans

More than a dozen veterans joined students and staff at Oneida Nation High School on Thursday, November 10, in honor of Veterans Day. ONHS Student Council members and other students socialized with the vets as they ate lunch together. Afterward, the students heard from some of the vets and their experiences in the military and afterward before a social dance was held in their honor. Senior Mason Powless served as MC for the event and Senior Jaleesa Caldwell and Junior Heather Stevens introduced the veterans and gave them certificates in recognition of their service to their country and to the Oneida community.

Thunderhawk Times

ONHS honored the veterans in our community on Thursday, November 10.

Student Council invited veterans to come and join us for lunch and social dances.

As we ate, the veterans shared their experiences that make them our heroes today. One of our community veterans, Dan King, gave us a speech that all of us here at ONHS will remember and be thankful for our veterans.

Melvin Fish, a freshman, said, "It was pretty cool. Dan King's talk was really cool. He said a lot of stuff I didn't know."

Noelle Metoxen, a junior, said, "Dan King's talk was very educational The numbers and statistics about the names on the Vietnam Wall, for instance, had a lot of impact."

Our first social dance was the Friendship Dance. Following that, were the Alligator and Robin. The dances are usually sung when you invite people in and accompany them by showing care and respect. The students and teachers invited the veterans to dance with them. It was an enjoyable experience for ONHS.

ONHS students study niacin in corn

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

ONHS students in Becky Nutt's classes are hard at work on their science projects for the 2011-2012 school year.

The project I have chosen relates a lot to the way Native Americans process their corn. There is a disparity between the Europeans and Native Americans. There was an increasingly huge difference in the result of the corn the Europeans, and the corn Native Americans were processing. The Europeans were developing a disease; they then began to point the finger at the corn. Eventually, they witnessed the Native Americans eating corn, with no fatal results. The Europeans began to realize that it was not the corn, but maybe the way they prepared the corn that caused such an extravagant difference.

Europeans were processing their corn by boiling it and then grinding it. From there, they would make it into bread and food. A common result to European corn processing was pellagra. Pellagra is a vitamin deficiency disease. This is caused by the lack of niacin in the body (Dittaeva, 2002). On the other hand, the Native Americans would boil their corn, but along with this, they would put in wood ash to boil along with it. This was the only different factor between the Europeans and the Native Americans, yet it made a remarkable difference. When I heard this section in history, I became curious as to why the difference in the way the corn was processed made an incredible difference in the outcome of the corn.

The natives of Mexico and Central America had always used an efficient technique of soaking the corn in alkali before cooking. Alkali is a basic, ionic salt. Having the corn soaked in this helps to unlock the niacin in the corn. Niacin is vitamin B, an organic compound with the formula C6H5NO2 (Farmer, M. 2002). Your body needs this, otherwise you can become very sick and diseased with cases such as or related to, pellagra.

I am excited to experience and work with the different forms of corn processing. I will test which unlocks more niacin and why. Then I will be able to put a better understanding on the reason for the result in the processing of corn. It obviously does make a huge difference, and I am about to see why.

Child Brides

By Cody Cornelius
Thunderhawk Times

In social studies class, we studied the issue of "child brides." This is a bigger problem than many people think. Here are some facts:

Over the next decade, another 100 million girls will become child brides.

Risk factors for young teen girls who give birth are greatly increased.

Sexual disparity in child marriages increases risk of AIDS.

The majority of child marriages occur in West and East Africa and South Asia.

Senior Plans After High School

Jaleesa Caldwell
Thunderhawk Times

With about 20 seniors here at ONHS, each and every one of them are on track for graduation this, 2011-2012 School Year.

After talking with many of them, most plan on going to college and obtaining many different degrees. Some of them are still clueless on what they want to do, but with the school year almost half way done they are now starting to make their decisions. Some of them plan on going out of state just to try something new. But most of them are staying close.

My plan is to go somewhere small like Haskell for the first two years so I can get a feel for the college life, then, after I do that, I want to transfer to a big university like UW-Oshkosh or UW-Green Bay to finish off college for however long it will take to obtain a masters in social work or psychotherapy. I want to go into the social work field because I like helping people.

After a master's degree, I want to go for a doctorate because I want to be just like my grandfather, Ken Ninham who is a doctorate in philosophy and works part-time as a psychotherapist and works with many different reservations in Wisconsin and runs a private practice.

I also would like to do this because I grew up in a family of counselors, psychotherapists, and doctors I think It would only be right to keep up the little 'family tradition' of going into the social work field like most of my family.

College to me is very important. Later in life it will definitely pay off because you'll be successful in whatever job you choose. Even if your plan is to take a break after high school and start college maybe a year later, that's cool but I think going to college will probably be one of the best decisions you'll ever make, and you'll be forever thankful for it in the long run.

The facts on artificial sweeteners

By Brady Goldschmidt
UWGB Dietetic Intern

People may wonder "What is the frequency of use for artificial sweeteners?" "Is one artificial sweetener safer than another?" These are understandable questions as some artificial sweeteners have reported to possibly cause cancer, migraine headaches and depression. Consumers are researching and continuously acquiring new information on the topic of artificial sweeteners. Artificial sweeteners can be correlated into individualized diet plans in many ways. Some of these ways are safety, weight loss, and consumption.

Are Sweeteners SAFE? Yes, all sweeteners are approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and generally recognized as safe (GRAS). However, in 1974, critics believed that quality of initial research supporting aspartame safety was inadequate and that consuming large amounts could be the cause of numerous health risks such as migraine headaches, nausea and depression. The Government Accountability Office concluded that the food additive approval process had been followed properly and described aspartame as one of the most thoroughly tested and studied food additives the FDA has ever approved. The number of Americans who consume sugar-free, artificially sweetened products has grown from less than 70 million in 1987 to more than 160 million in 2000. The FDA works to ensure products are safe before they hit grocery shelves. All artificial sweeteners are classified as safe. A range of products is available as food manufacturers look for shelf stability and taste. There is a variety of artificial sweeteners to choose from for future use.

Artificial sweeteners can be substituted into individualized diet plans to help aide in weight loss. Out of all the artificial sweeteners, only Splenda contains four calories per gram. All other artificial sweeteners are "calorie free" which allows consumers to maintain a healthier weight since no extra calories are being added to their diet when using these products. Artificial sweeteners for a Diabetic Diet are considered "Free Foods" as they do not count as a carbohydrate choice or increase blood glucose levels like regular table sugar would. People consuming artificial sweeteners on a regular basis must understand that these products taste sweeter than regular sugar. Therefore, through the use of artificial sweeteners in baked goods or daily usage when sprinkling it on your cereal in the morning, it allows you to cut back on calories by decreasing the consumption of refined sugars.

The chart below depicts several types of artificial sweeteners and demonstrates additional information on the products such as general use and sweetness factors.

This leads to the next question of "What frequency should these products be consumed?" Artificial Sweeteners are attractive to the eye of the consumer but we must remember we only need a fraction of the sweetener compared to the regular sugared item used because of its sweeter taste. Artificial Sweeteners are also used in many products we buy everyday such as: soft drinks, candy, dairy products and jams which means people should read labels to see what items already contain these sweeteners. While the FDA has not passed a daily intake recommendation for consumption of artificial sweeteners, they do appear to be safe for diabetes and weight loss. They should continue to be used with discretion.

Fatal overdoses from painkillers triple in decade

By Stephanie Nano
Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) ~ The number of overdose deaths from powerful painkillers more than tripled over a decade, the U.S. government reported Tuesday - a trend that one health official called an epidemic, but one that can be stopped.

Prescription painkillers such as OxyContin, Vicodin and methadone led to the deaths of almost 15,000 people in 2008, including actor Heath Ledger. That's more than three times the 4,000 deaths from narcotics in 1999.

Such painkillers "are meant to help people who have severe pain," said Dr. Thomas Frieden, director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which issued the report. "They are, however, highly addictive."

The report shows nearly 5 percent of Americans ages 12 and older said they've abused painkillers in the past year - using them without a prescription or just for the high.

The overdose deaths reflect the spike in the number of narcotic painkillers prescribed every year - enough to give every American a one-month supply, Frieden said.

Prescriptions rose as doctors aimed to better treat pain and as new painkillers hit the market.

Frieden and White House drug czar Gil Kerlikowske said states need to take sharp actions to reverse the long-running trend.

States oversee prescription practices and can rigorously monitor prescriptions and crack down on "pill mills" and "doctor shopping" by patients, Frieden said.

Doctors should limit prescriptions - giving only a three-day supply for acute pain, for example - and look for alternative treatments, he said.

"For chronic pain, narcotics should be the last resort," he added.

A federal drug plan announced this year calls for state programs to track prescriptions. All but two states - Missouri and New Hampshire - have approved them, said Kerlikowske. But a number of states don't have them in place yet or doctors aren't using them enough to check on their patients' past prescriptions, he said.

"America's prescription drug abuse epidemic is not a problem that's going to be solved overnight, but at the same time, we're not powerless," said Kerlikowske, who urged parents to get rid of unneeded or expired painkillers so they aren't misused.

Some states are taking action. Earlier this month, a doctor in California was sentenced to prison for illegally selling tens of thousands of prescriptions for painkillers and sedatives. Ohio now requires pain clinics to be licensed by the state, and limits the amount of pills that can be dispensed at clinics. Florida also has cracked down on so-called "pill mills."

Overall, there were 36,450 fatal overdoses in 2008, including accidental cases and suicides involving illegal drugs like heroin and cocaine along with prescription medicines. About three-quarters of the deaths from prescriptions involved narcotic painkillers.

That's the year Ledger died from an accidental overdose of painkillers and sedatives. A few months later, a 12-year-old girl from suburban New York overdosed on methadone she bought from a 15-year-old boy.

Narcotics also played a role in the recent deaths of a 27-year-old model at the mansion of an Anheuser-Busch heir and of former hockey player Derek Boogaard.

Other findings of the CDC report:

- New Mexico had the highest overdose death rate (27 per 100,000) and Nebraska had the lowest (5.5). The national rate was 11.9.
- Fatal overdoses were more likely in men, middle-aged adults and whites and American Indians.

Events at the Oneida Nation Museum

Did you know that the Oneida Nation Museum hosts a variety of events for people of all ages? This past year, the museum organized a traditional clothing making class, held in conjunction with the Flying Leaves Community Center, We also continued our Super Saturday Activities during the summer, our music series featuring local artists, and a storytelling series.

Still to come this year, will be a screening of the movie "Reel Injun: On the Trail of the Hollywood Indian." The screening will be hosted by Richie Plass on November 19th from 10am-6pm. The movie will be played at 10am and 2pm. Local musical artists, the Flying Feather Band will perform at 12pm and 4pm...

Also, starting the week of November 21, the museum will host its annual Youth Art Exhibition and Silent Auction. Oneida students at the high school level submit art to be displayed at the museum. While on display, community members have the opportunity to bid on the art. All of the proceeds go back to the artists.

As 2011 is beginning to wind down, we are busy planning the many events that we will host next year.

On June 8-9, 2012, the museum will be unveiling a traveling temporary exhibit, entitled "Power of Place – Strength of Being." This exhibit will feature the artwork of Iroquois artist, Sam Thomas. Mr. Thomas is a member of the Lower Cayuga Band of the Iroquois Nation and is world-renowned for his beadwork. In conjunction with the exhibit, Sam will be conducting a series of beadwork classes at the museum and at Bear Paw Keepsakes. A schedule of classes will be posted in a future edition.

In late 2011, the museum will begin activities related to the recent award of a grant from the IMLS. A large portion of the grant covers the repair and stabilization of a one-of-a-kind man made from braided and stitched cornhusks. First, "Corn husk Man" will undergo a CAT scan at a local hospital so that we can see what is inside of him. Then, a professional conservator, Anton Rajer, will formulate a plan to support and stabilize "Corn husk Man" so that he can be displayed at the museum. The conservation work will take place at the museum, beginning in March 2012. The general public is invited to take part in and track this unique journey to repair this rare object. The museum will be hosting several events throughout this project.

The Oneida Nation Museum may be a small place, but we have BIG plans and hope to see you soon. For information on these or any other future event contact the Oneida Nation Museum at (920) 869-6539. The Museum is located at W892 County Road EE, near the intersection of County Road E and EE, next to the Redstone Elderly Complex and by the Anna John Nursing Home.

GTC works through agenda for special meeting

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

A prepared General Tribal Council (GTC) worked quickly through a nine-item agenda during a special GTC meeting on Monday, November 21 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center. Of the nine proposed motions, one passed, one was ruled out of order, one was deleted and the remaining six were voted down.

Proposed Resolution: A simple majority will be the rule in GTC voting to change a law, effective immediately.

The proposed resolution would amend the tribe's current 10-day notice policy that requires two-thirds majority vote to overrule prior GTC motions or resolutions.

"A small group of people could block the majority from overturning a past decision of the GTC," said Genskow in a letter to the GTC. "A two-thirds rule does not lead to democracy. In my opinion, a small group of people should not be able to block the wisdom of the majority of people."

Many GTC members argued that overwhelming support is a necessity in order to overturn prior GTC actions. The resolution failed falling roughly 300 votes short of the needed 919.

Proposed Resolution: Adopt the resolution that restores the specialist positions at the Health Center.

The motion requested that action be taken to reinstate a urology position, ear, nose, and throat specialist, and an allergy/asthma specialist.

"The reason for the discontinuation of specialty services was based upon a revision of our strategic plan from the Comprehensive Health Division. Our direction, in terms of where the health division needed to go, was to improve access to services and to improve the quality care that was provided," said Debbie Danforth, Oneida Community Health Center Director.

"One of the ways that we felt that was necessary for us to take that action was to allow specialty services be received through Contract Health service referral."

According to Danforth, patients utilizing specialist care at the Health Center would have to wait another month for follow up treatment due to scheduling.

"We thought that wasn't good, quality care," Danforth said.

The motion failed by a hand vote.

Proposed Resolution: Funding for electronic hand held voting devices in the 2012 budget.

The motion was designed to protect voter's privacy along with assuring accuracy of vote calculations during meetings. Genskow also lauded the time that will be saved by utilizing electronic devices instead of a manual hand count.

Though funding of the $117,000 project was already built into the next fiscal year's budget the GTC rejected the motion citing the funds could be utilized more effectively.

Proposed Resolution: Notices of GTC meetings and agenda items must be sent to all Oneida tribal members' households.

Current policy requires GTC members to request

GTC approves fiscal year 2012 budget

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The General Tribal Council (GTC) passed the Financial Year (FY) 2012 budget after jettisoning a $250,000 investment in Native American Bank at a budget meeting held Monday evening, November 28 at the Radisson Hotel and Conference Center.

Most of the debate concerning the budget focused on the Native American Bank funds. A presentation coordinated by Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Treasurer Tina Danforth extolled the virtues of the bank, but couldn't overcome GTC concerns over financial matters at home.

Former OBC Councilman Ron Tehassi Hill asked for an amendment to remove the Native American Bank investment.

"I don't feel it's appropriate to be investing in other communities when we need the help and the support for our own people right now," said Hill. "We need to invest in ourselves first so we can make ourselves fiscally sound so we can help other tribes."

Madelyn Genskow attempted to add a second amendment to restore funding for handheld voting devices, but the GTC rejected that amendment. The FY2012 Budget along with Hill's amendment was passed by the GTC through a show of hands.

While the 2012 budget is $30 million less than FY2011, it includes spending to expand gaming and retail, and support some tribal enterprises that are struggling in this downturned economy. Gaming Assistant General Manager Chad Fuss explained the need for investment for gaming expansion.

"Our major competitors expanded, and the reason they expanded was to do one thing, and that's to take away Oneida Casino's customers," said Fuss.

The gaming expansion plans include expanding the main casino and Packerland casino, adding more slot machines and putting in a sports themed restaurant.

Retail expansion includes a new store at the intersection of Packerland Drive and Larsen Road that will house a new Tsyunhehkwa store as well as a convenience store.

Chief Financial Officer Larry Barton did a presentation that explained what effect the world and US economies are having on the Oneida economy.

"It's been tough; this economy has affected all of us. We had to make cuts, we had to give council to leadership to make some very hard decisions," said Barton.

Previous to the budget presentations, OBC Vice-Chairman Greg Matson did a presentation on current attempts to restructure the tribe's organization. This included developing mission and vision statements.

"In two to three years, we will aggressively grow the Oneida Indian Reservation as a beautiful, vibrant community where hundreds of additional Oneida families live," he said.

Matson summarized the ending of contracts with the Chief of Staff Bill Gollnick and General Manager (GM) Debbie Thundercloud, and meetings with eight division directors and community members.

"The first opportunity we seen to move forward was the expiration of the General Manager and Chief of Staff contracts," he said. Matson explained that the GTC mandated the hiring of a GM in 1982, but later okayed "Plan B" in 2000 which does not include a GM. However, "Plan B" was not implemented 11 years ago because the OBC at that time ruled it out of order. GTC member Don McLester questioned the seemingly arbitrary nature of the change.

"It seems whoever's in control, or whoever's in power, our attorneys say they can do this and they can't do that. I'm still feeling that General Tribal Council should have a legal system of their own so that when we question your authority, our attorney's authority, if you're giving us a line of bull," said McLester.

Discussion also focused on the need to shrink the tribe's workforce from 2900 employees to 2500 due to reductions in revenues and increases in GTC mandates such as per capita payments. Councilmember Vince DelaRosa explained Oneida's situation.

"Honestly, we are at a point where we are broaching the situation where we are drastically overstaffed in a lot of areas," said DelaRosa. "We have some very serious issues to deal with, and we have been very reserved in terms of layoffs."

Chairman Ed Delgado reiterated that there are no layoffs planned.

"The 2500 number has been mentioned, it has not been accepted by the Business Committee. We are not looking to reduce our tribal employment base to 2500. What we are doing is looking at the departments, looking at our divisions, and seeing what he best structure might be," said Delgado.

Councilman Matson's report was accepted as information and a progress report will be given at the January 2, 2012 GTC meeting.

1,946 GTC members registered for the meeting.

reports and agendas for GTC meetings by sending notification cards back to the tribe. This requirement was adopted to offset the rising costs of printing and mailing packets.

The GTC voted against the motion by a hand vote.

Proposed Resolution: Double the size of the grass fed beef heard at Tsyunhehkwa to meet the request to purchase.

Citing the health benefits of grass fed beef the resolution requested funding to accomplish the motion be included in the fiscal year 2013 budget.

The GTC voted against the motion saying cost concerns were too much to overcome. The GTC also discussed the opportunity to utilize the existing bison herd as an alternative for people looking to purchase healthier meat.

Proposed Resolution: Grass fed beef must be sold in cuts to make it more available to Oneida people. The meat must sell for high market prices but there must be a large discount to Oneida tribal members.

Citing many points in why the prior motion was defeated, this proposed resolution failed by a hand vote.

Proposed Resolution: Tribal members must stay in GTC meetings to receive the $100 stipend.

The motion would require tribal members to stay in the meeting area along with designated bathroom facilities in order to be eligible for the $100 meeting stipend.

With most attendance numbers significantly higher than vote totals, the GTC recognized the need to have requirements in place to receive the meeting stipend.

The motion was passed overwhelmingly to maximize GTC participation.

Proposed Resolution: Findings of Phase I and II of Initiative One be made known to the GTC in executive session.

Shortly after the petitioner's presentation Chairman Ed Delgado ruled the motion out of order for discussing personnel issues.

USDA urges voters to vote in committee elections

(Appleton, Wisconsin), November 21, 2011 – Vicki Wiese, Outagamie County Director of USDA's Farm Service Agency urge Wisconsin farmers and other agricultural producers to vote in FSA county committee elections by December 5, 2011, the deadline for casting ballots.

"FSA county committees provide producers with the opportunity to help implement federal farm programs in their communities," said Wiese. Producers must return ballots to their local FSA offices by the close of business on FSA county committees consist of three to five elected members who help administer federal farm programs at the local level. Committees make decisions on conservation programs; commodity price support loans and payments; disaster assistance payments; and other agricultural issues.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

Wigg-Ninham is taking on conflict with new business Consensus Development, LLC

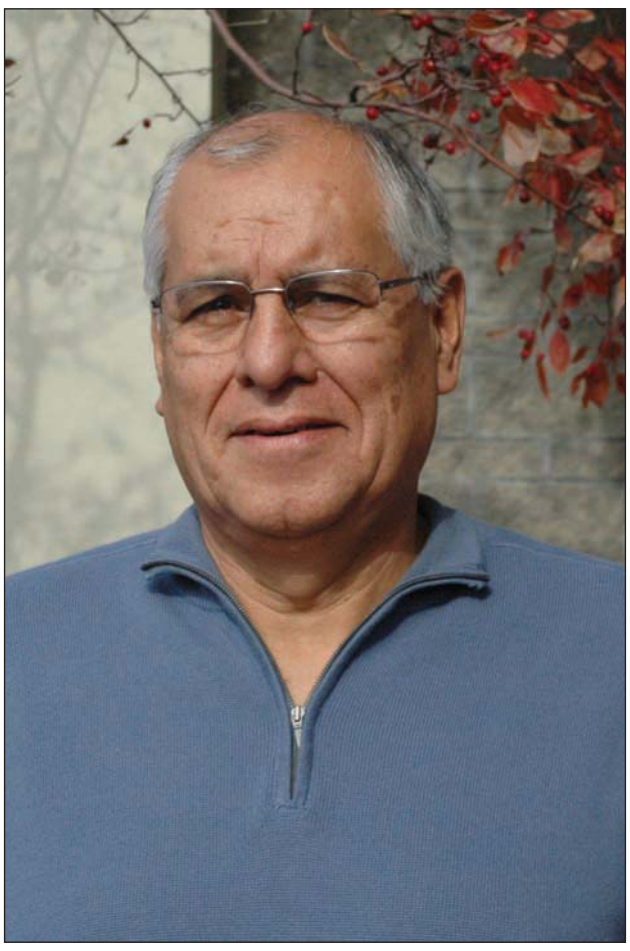
By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Leland Wigg-Ninham is making his expertise as a mediator available to area businesses and communities through his new business Consensus Development, LLC.

"I believe that organizations, tribes, government need this type of service … to help people become leaders and be respectful of each other," he said.

Wigg-Ninham is a part-time Oneida Appeals Commissioner and a certified mediator. He often facilitates peace keeping for the Appeals Commission. He plans to offer his services to businesses or communities that may be experiencing conflict.

"What we'll do is go in there, we'll do an assessment of the organization and just get the view of the situation from the requester," he said. "What we have them do is go in there and identify conflict and then what we do is look at the worst outcomes if the conflict continues and the best outcomes if they can get it resolved."



Along with his wife Rebecca, Wigg-Ninham offers a variety of services ranging from a one hour in-service to multi-day conferences. In longer programs, Rebecca will lead the group in post- lunch meditation.

"We facilitate meetings using the talking circle," Wigg-Ninham explained. "You look for consensus, and just a whole way the talking circle is designed it develops an environment to listen and speak to each other with respect."

Wigg-Ninham is ambitiously attempting to mitigate conflict between citizens of the Oneida Tribe and residents of the Village of Hobart.

"I'm in the process of working with Oneida citizens and Hobart citizens in developing community meetings so that we can get to know each other better, instead of through the legal way," he said. The next meeting is open to the public and will take place on Wednesday, December 7 from 12:00pm to 1:00pm at Ridgeview Suite 4, 3759 West Mason Street. The meeting will be followed by a short social dance.

"I'm going to start with Oneida, and then I'm going to expand to 11 tribes in Wis. and then go external. Maybe retire in NM and do that there," he said.

Bay Bank encourages consumers to prevent a Holiday spending hangover

Black Friday doesn't have to lead to black marks on your credit report

BAY BANK is kicking off the 2012 holiday shopping season with tips to manage holiday spending and avoid a post-holiday credit hangover.

"Consumers spreading holiday cheer should keep in mind that January bills are only a couple of months away," says Dianne Zubella, VP. "If consumers are not budgeting for their holiday purchases, people will find themselves bringing in the New Year with last year's debt."

Bay Bank recommends that customers manage their finances this holiday season with the following spending tips:

- Create a budget and stick to it. Set a dollar amount based on what you can afford this holiday season considering your current savings, income and other expenses. Be sure to include a $20 to $100 cushion for unexpected expenses.
- Make a list. Write down the names of the people you plan to buy gifts for and how much you can afford to spend on each person. Don't forget to save some of your budget for expenses other than gifts including wrapping paper, cards and postage.
- Bakes some cookies. That's right, if you can't afford to buy gifts for everyone on your list, bake some holiday goodies and wrap them in cellophane with a holiday bow. Handmade gifts are a special way to say 'Happy Holidays' without overspending. Be sure to include these costs in your budget.
- Use credit wisely. Your credit card balance shouldn't be a complete surprise when you open your statement in January. Take only the credit cards you need when holiday shopping and try to use the card with the lowest interest rate.
- Save your receipts. Keep track of your expenses and add them up weekly to be sure you're sticking to your budget. If you're getting close to your spending limit, reevaluate your list and bake more cookies!
- Shop around. Start your holiday shopping early to give yourself time to comparison shop. Take time to do some research before you hit the stores by going online or looking at your local newspaper circulars.

"Holding true to one's budget during the busy holiday season is an excellent jumpstart to healthy year-long budgeting habits," said Zubella.

Anyone who falls deep in debt and is late on their payments should inform creditors so they can work on a resolution plan with you. Banks and other lenders are often willing to help extend payment periods, consolidate debts or assist in refinancing.

A pattern of late payments in a credit report could make attaining future loans or credit difficult. Consumers in need of help with debt problems should contact the National Foundation for Credit Counseling at www.nfcc.org or 1-800-388-2227.

Shekoli',

I want to start off by saying these past three months have been very fast paced and enlightening for me. There is a lot of behind the scenes activity that has transpired since taking office and at times my days have been stretched thin.

I continue to move forward on reorganizational structure as well as informing the front line employees on how this operation will be streamlined in the future.

We had our first Quality of Life meeting last week. Officers were selected for our future meetings along with the dates. Right now we are tasked with coming up with how and what we will accept as issues.

I also attended the Oneida Total Integrated Enterprises (OTIE) shareholders meeting recently and had the opportunity to discuss some of the upcoming projects they have planned or have bids placed.

The ORCC is progressing nicely as the groundwork is nearly completed and future construction will continue. Look for further updates.

Regarding the GTC meeting on November 21st, it was great to see an overwhelming presence and how the meeting progressed. People were informed and ready to discuss the items that were on the agenda so an informed decision could be made.

Two weeks ago I attended a "Poverty Matters" conference in Wisconsin Dells at the Chula Vista Resort and the knowledge that I gained from this event was very helpful. The conference was well attended and the workshops that were presented were very informative and I left knowing some of the problems our people are experiencing. At times it is hard to realize the circumstances individuals encounter in their day-to-day lives, but seeing the information first hand shows me we need to look more closely at those around us and give a helping hand when we can.

One of those ways you can help this year is to go to Social Services and take an ornament from the "Giving Tree". Ornaments were available starting November 22nd and must be returned by December 13th. Given the hard times we have all suffered now and then, let's help our fellow neighbors with a little something this holiday season and take pride in knowing the child less fortunate will have a smile on their face come Christmas morning.

On December 15th there will be an Elders Christmas Party at Doxbee's in Seymour. I know over the past few years there has been some turmoil over this event, but I felt this is something that should be done to honor the elders and with the help of many of our departments, this event will be a success. If you are at least 55 years of age, you are welcome to attend. Pre-registration is required prior to 4:00 p.m. on December 6th. You may call the Senior Center Meal Site at 920-869-1551 to register.

GTC Amendments

Dear GTC Members,

The time has come for me to speak up and speak out. I was booed quite loudly and by a great number of persons at the General Tribal Council meeting on Monday evening, November 21. That isn't the first time that happened, nor do I think it will be the last inasmuch as any position I take on an issue is in terms of the greater good of the whole Oneida Nation and not just a select few of a special interest group. I am the Oneida Tribal Historian, I was raised on Second Ridge (now Seminary Road) and I have been involved on the Oneida Business Committee or other employment for 44 years since I was elected Secretary of the Oneida Tribe in 1967. I had offered an amendment to a motion by Madeline Genskow to the following effect: I move to amend the main motion so that the one hundred dollar stipend for attending GTC meetings be a gift card that could be used at Oneida Tribal businesses. The people in attendance booed that motion. Chairman Ed Delgado called my motion out of order. I believe he was in error for doing so. He previously, on another motion, recognized not two, but three amendments on one main motion by Madeline. I also believe that the parliamentarian should have stepped up to address his error in terms of Robert's Rules of Order. The amendment I offered was not discussed. I will discuss it now. That particular meeting cost at least $175,000.00. If the stipends for this meeting were gift cards to be used at Oneida Nation businesses on the reservation, the positive economic impact would have been four times $175,000.00 or $700,000.00. What Tribal member would not be satisfied and have taken pride to have contributed to the welfare of the entire Nation in that way while, at the same time, purchasing something necessary to themselves? Such $100 gift cards could be used to purchase tax exempt gas or other products at Oneida Nation One Stops, buy very nice Indian made gifts at the Museum gift shop or purchase Grass fed beef or bison or other products at the Apple Orchard store or products at Tsyunhe'hkw^ Retail. The action to pass on only one item out of ten cost $175,000.00. That amount could have funded a very nice home for an Oneida family. I think the lesson to be learned is that we must be more discriminating in our choice of resolutions to bring to GTC by petition. We must also be patient enough to listen to the debate on an issue, so that all the facts are made known to the membership.

Ska na ko,
Loretta V. Metoxen

Cage/Vault Still Needing an Investigation

From a concerned Tribal Member,

Why is there three (3) Managers in this department, whom all work 1st shift and whom all have secretary's, if this department is needing three Managers why aren't they working different shifts? Why are we paying cage cashiers an extra $2.00 an hour to be leads when we have 3 working supervisors per shift in this department for nine (9) employees? If we were to put these leads in windows to be cage cashiers we hired them for we wouldn't need to keep hiring cashiers when we already have enough. There is a manager who works at 6am and leaves by 2pm when the Casino doesn't open until 8am. Why is she working these hours? Shouldn't the Manager be there when the Casino is in operation, business needs should come first not personal needs. Why are the supervisors being asked to do what the secretary's should be doing? How long will this continue, the wasting of our tribal funds for jobs that are not needed? How much is this department funded in order to have three (3) Managers, nearly twenty-five (25) supervisors and ten (10 to 12) leads of which don't include the leads in the vault areas? Couldn't this money be used for raises for the employees or put to use for the children/elders in our community?

Why do we have leads whom are not tribal members or of another entity and making just as much as a supervisor? Isn't being a part of the chain of command, (Indian Preference)? These leads get differential pay; they receive 40 hours per week, working 4 days with three days off with every other weekend off and the front-line employee's tips! The cashiers at IMAC work five (5) days and hardly ever see a weekend and get very little tips because they are sharing with the supervisors/leads and who knows maybe the managers also.

Also, in the department we pay two (2) tribal employees to be trainers, what are their actual job duties for 40 hours a week? After these trainers, train new employees for two weeks these new employees come on the floor for a week or two to be shadowed trained by the front-line employees. Not the supervisors or the leads but the cashiers and then they are being paid another $1.00 an hour.

Why aren't the Managers/Supervisors rotated to other locations, so there is less favoritism?

I think this department still needs an investigation/audit; where and who are these people that are allowing all this to happen, who is allowing the hiring in this department? Does anyone stop and look at the numbers I have shown and please tell me WHY we have so many management positions?

Some of the things I mentioned above goes for all departments not just the cage/vault, what are the people upstairs really thinking or ignoring? Who is willing to make the first step to stop this overspending?

Gladys Dallas

Correcting a Kalihwisaks Error

I'm writing to inform you that the Kalihwisaks did not report my letter in the November 17, 2011, issue as I wrote it. Regarding healthcare at the Oneida Health Center, I wrote about the management removing several specialists from the Health Center. I wrote, "Now Oneidas who live out of Brown and Outagamie County will not be covered." The paper wrote something different. I wish they would proof read before going to print.

Sincerely,
Madelyn Genskow

Claim Filing Deadline Approaching in Keepseagle Legal Settlement for American Indian Farmers and Ranchers

Minneapolis, MN ~ The claims filing deadline is rapidly approaching on December 27, 2011 for the historic Keepseagle legal settlement that provides up to between $50,000-250,000 for tribal farmers and ranchers who unsuccessfully sought USDA farm loans in the 1980s and 1990s.

Class members include American Indian farmers or ranchers:

1) Farmed or ranched or attempted to farm or ranch between January 1, 1981 and November 24, 1999; and
2) Sought, or attempted to seek, a farm loan from USDA during that period; and
3) Complained about discrimination to the USDA orally or through a representative, such as a tribal government, during the same period.

There is an exclusion for discrimination that took place between January 1 and November 23, 1997, and for complaints that came between July 1 and November 23, 1997.

Potential claimants have two possible routes to submit a claim. Most claimants will follow Track A, which is a much lower burden of proof, and provides up to $50,000 in relief, not including tax payments or USDA debt forgiveness. Track B provides up to $250,000 in relief, but requires much greater evidence of the claim and proof of the harm. Most Track B claimants will need to hire an attorney to represent their claim.

More information is available at www.indianfarmclass.com and by calling the toll free settlement hotline at 888-233-5506. The absolute filing deadline is December 27, 2011. Claims may be filed over the hotline phone number, and the Intertribal Agriculture Council's (IAC) Technical Assistance Network staff are able to personally travel to meet with potential claimants over the coming weeks to assist in completing claims forms.

More information on the IAC Technical Assistance Network and how it can help facilitate better access to USDA resources and overall promotion of tribal agriculture is available on the program's website at www.iactechhelp.com.

Adams to give FVTC student address

Oneida tribal member Jalanna Adams will provide the student address during this year's Fox Valley Technical College commencement ceremony on Saturday, December 3 at the Fox Cities Performing Arts Center in Appleton.

Jalanna Adams

Adams, a graduate of FVTC's Business Management program, is making history on Saturday as a commencement speaker during the college's year-long centennial celebration. FVTC is commemorating 100 years of service this 2011-12 academic year, along with the state's other technical colleges.

During her time at FVTC, Adams was involved as both a peer advisor and student expert in the college's Student Life department, providing advice and guidance to new and current students. She also gained valuable work experience by serving an intern in FVTC's Human Resources department.

Another noteworthy experience at FVTC for Ms. Adams was her selection as a finalist for Student Ambassador for the Wisconsin Technical College System (WTCS). Adams was one of 12 finalists at FVTC to represent the college and the WTCS in 2011 in advocacy efforts to raise greater public awareness for the quality and employability of technical education.

"The Fox Valley Tech experience has served as an incredible investment in shaping my future," says Adams. "I am honored to deliver the student commencement address on behalf of so many graduates who represent a broad range of backgrounds, professional goals, and levels of achievement."

Adams is currently pursuing career opportunities in the retail and research fields. She also plans to continue her education by pursuing a bachelor's degree and then a master's degree. She would eventually like to earn a career working with either the Oneida or Menominee Indian tribes.

Each year, about 2,000 students graduate from FVTC, the state's largest technical college in terms of total number of people served annually. For more information, call (920) 735-5738.

Groundbreaking for new food-pantry is December 1

DE PERE — Hunger is a growing suburban problem, too.

De Pere Christian Outreach — a coalition of De Pere-area churches — is planning a ceremonial groundbreaking at 10 a.m. this Thursday for a new food-distribution facility to be built in response to rising demand from a growing list of client families.

The building will be constructed on the grounds of St. Anne's Episcopal Church, one of the organization's member parishes. St. Anne's is located at 347 Libal St.

De Pere Christian Outreach has operated a food pantry for many years, says Jim Stupka, a De Pere resident and volunteer coordinator of the project, but with community needs continuing to rise with no signs of abating, the operation has outgrown its present home.

"Four years ago, in 2007, the De Pere Christian Outreach food pantry served 44 families, about 130 people, on a regular basis," Stupka says.

Food donations come from member churches, the U.S. Postal Service's annual food drive, and interested individuals across the region. In prior years, a converted storage room at St. Anne's provided sufficient space to sort donations, store items and prepare weekly food baskets for families in need. With the expanding scope of the De Pere pantry, cans and boxes are spilling over to fill classrooms and other public areas of the church.

Officials of De Pere Christian Outreach say their mission, which reaches out specifically to De Pere residents, is in keeping with the Bible's command to serve others and feed the hungry. Additionally, they say the pantry complements the work of larger organizations such as Paul's Pantry by serving a sizeable population outside the city of Green Bay.

In addition to non-perishable food, the De Pere program also distributes refrigerated fresh foods including meat, milk and cheese for children. Acceptance into the program is based on demonstrated financial need. Food is delivered to clients who do not have transportation.

Arrest in Hawaii Pacific University hit-run that killed Oneida tribal member KANEOHE, Hawaii (AP) ~ A man has turned himself in to Honolulu police in connection with a hit-and-run crash that killed a 19-year-old college student from Wisconsin.

The 29-year-old was booked Tuesday for negligent homicide and failure to render aid. He was released pending an investigation.

Police say Mariah Danforth-Moore of Oneida, Wis. was crossing Kamehameha (kah-MAY'-ha-MAY'-ha) Highway near Hawaii Pacific University's Windward Oahu campus Sunday night when she was struck by a car that fled the scene.

Her father tells KHON he moved to Waikiki to be close to her. Stephen Danforth says he hopes something will be done to make the area safer for pedestrians.

He says his daughter was coming home from her third day of work at the Victoria's Secret store at Ala Moana (AH'-la-moh-AH'-na) Center.

Fort Sill Apaches win reservation in New Mexico

By Jeri Clausing
Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, New Mexico ~ The Fort Sill Apache have won the right to establish a reservation on homelands in southern New Mexico, more than 125 years after the surrender of renowned Apache leader Geronimo scattered tribal members across the U.S. Southwest.

"This is what I see as the start of a long journey home," said Jeff Houser, chairman of the tribe whose headquarters are currently based in southwest Oklahoma.

The U.S. Interior Department earlier this month approved a proclamation that awards the Fort Sill Apache 30 acres (12 hectares) to establish a reservation near Deming, he said. It comes four years after the federal government put the land on the Akela Flats in trust to settle a dispute between the tribe and the Comanche Nation in Oklahoma over the Fort Sill Apache's plans to expand their casino in Lawton, Oklahoma.

The Fort Sill have a 10-acre (4-hectare) headquarters in Oklahoma and 120 acres (50 hectares) of farmland, Houser said, but no reservation.

The tribe's attorney, Phillip Thompson of Thompson Associates in Washington, said he was unsure when the Bureau of Indian Affairs last created a new reservation.

Tribes across the country have faced long, sometimes deadly, fights to regain their ancestral lands, from the Guidiville Band of Indians and other tribes in California to the Fort Sills. The creation of new reservations is not unheard of but it's far from common, experts said.

Cate Stetson, a New Mexico attorney who specializes in Indian law, said it has been decades since a new reservation has been created in the state.

"It's major," she said of the development. "To be a tribe without land, it's very frustrating but to finally get land means a lot of things can happen. There can be wonderful repercussions for a tribe."

In a telephone interview Wednesday, Houser, who also uses the Apache spelling of his name, said the goal is to return the tribe to its ancestral homelands in New Mexico. And, ultimately, the tribe hopes to be able to build a casino on the site, he said.

"Given that the ultimate goal would be to return, that really requires a lot of resources," Houser said. "We could probably house all the tribal members that want to move there, but that would increase the unemployment rates in the county. If we build a casino, that could provide jobs."

The tribe's efforts to establish gaming on the land in the past were blocked. The Indian Gaming Regulatory Act prohibits gambling on most tribal trust land acquired after 1988, but it contains an exemption for tribes who are being granted a reservation for the first time.

Thompson said the tribe is appealing the National Indian Gaming Commissions rejection of its past effort to build a casino on the site.

"We already argued this was our de facto reservation. This just solidifies what we already argued," he said. "We will probably just send a letter to the commission asked them to take notice."

Thompson said the tribe is also talking with state and federal officials about getting the necessary endorsements for the building a casino.

The reservation designation, he said, ``solidifies our position that we are a New Mexico tribe and that as a New Mexico tribe we should have the same abilities as the tribes in the rest of the state to be able to game on our land."

The tribe, Houser said, has 685 members, about a quarter of whom live near tribal headquarters, another quarter live elsewhere and about half of whom live outside Oklahoma.

Houser said that while the proclamation gives the tribe just 30 acres, "hopefully we can expand our presence."

Members of the Fort Sill Apache Tribe are descended from the Chiricahua and Warm Springs Apaches, who lived in parts of New Mexico, Arizona and northern Mexico. They were removed from the area in the 1880s and sent first to Florida, then Oklahoma.

Houser said his ancestors would be proud of the tribe's efforts to return to New Mexico. His grandfather was born on the Ojo Caliente Reservation near Truth or Consequences in the 1800s, he said.

Kansas apologizes to tribes for past misdeeds

By John Milburn
Associated Press

TOPEKA, Kan. ~ Kansas Gov. Sam Brownback issued a proclamation Wednesday apologizing to the American Indian tribes who previously occupied lands within what are now the state's borders, saying "a spirit of deception" too often marked dealings with them.

The Republican governor signed the apology as part of Kansas' ongoing commemoration of its 150 years of statehood. Brownback said the yearlong events were a time to remember the heritage and culture that shaped the state's landscape since 1861.

"It's a ceremony of repentance, a ceremony where we acknowledge wrongs done to native peoples and repent for those acts," Brownback said. "It's a ceremony of reconciliation, where we ask for the forgiveness of these past wrongs and seek to forge a new relationship of mutual trust and recognition."

Kansas takes its name from the Kanza tribe, one of 19 tribes once located in the state before they were relocated by the U.S. government. The proclamation referenced the contributions of those tribes and the acts perpetrated against them by the United States, including forcibly removing children from their families and making them learn new languages and cultures.

Brownback, a former U.S. senator, was behind a similar federal apology that was signed in 2010 by President Barack Obama that recounted the nation's "deception and neglect on native peoples."

The governor presented each tribe with an American bison from the state herd.

Officials from the Iowa, Prairie Band Potawatomi, Kickapoo, Kaw and Sac and Fox were represented at the ceremony. Their leaders said they accept the apology and hope it leads to greater cooperation between them and the state. The Kaw Nation is located in Oklahoma; the other four tribes have lands in northeast Kansas.

Prairie Band Potawatomi Chairman Steve Ortiz said the proclamation was important because it recognized the tribes' rights as sovereign nations and the state's desire to strengthen relations.

"We have to look at the man who was willing to take up the banner at the federal level who is now willing to do it again," Ortiz said. "I think it's significant. Some may like it; some may not. But we're headed in the right direction."

One tribe, the Kickapoo, is suing the state in federal court over water rights they say predate those claimed by Kansas.

Steve Cadue, chairman of the tribe, said the apology was a nice gesture that could lead to resolving the water issues. The tribe is seeking the rights to build a reservoir on the Delaware River to provide a stable water supply for the reservation.

"We're not all about history. We've got a life today and we're looking for a brighter future," Cadue said. "The governor's promised to work with us on any differences that we have.

"We have to take the governor's word. A man's word is his honor."

Brownback has held meetings with the leaders of the four Kansas tribes, his spokeswoman Sherriene Jones Sontag said.

SEOTS Mission…

Our mission is to strengthen our cultural connection and provide services and programs that enhance the well being of Onʌyoteʔa·ka in southeastern Wisconsin.

SEOTS to offer GED Funding

In January 2012, Southeastern Oneida Tribal Services (SEOTS) will add GED (General Education Development) funding to its direct services offerings. The mission of SEOTS is strengthening our cultural connection and providing services and programs to enhance the well-being of On^yote?a-ka in southeastern Wisconsin. Education as a tool can not only help enhance an individual's employability, but can also prove helpful in overcoming all of life's challenges. In short, it can directly impact the well-being of our Oneida people.

American philosopher, psychologist, and educational reformer John Dewey declared, "Education is not preparation for life; education is life itself." We are all in a constant state of learning, whether it is through formal education, or the school of hard knocks. SEOTS connects Tribal members to the Oneida Higher Education Grant for post-secondary funding as well as culture, craft, and Oneida language classes. Youth and elder programs also feature educational components on everything from nutrition to the environment.

The funding for this new direct service is due largely in part to the fundraising efforts of the SEOTS Board. There is no impact to the Oneida budget to provide this service. The SEOTS Board wanted to help raise money that would help Tribal membership of southeast Wisconsin improve their education and overall well-being. Yaw^ko to the SEOTS Board for their noble efforts and upholding the Oneida core value of kahletsyalusla (heart felt encouragement of the best in each of us)!

Individuals interested in receiving funding for their GED should contact the SEOTS office. A small application will need to be completed. All GED testing and prep work will take place at Milwaukee Area Technical College. Funding is limited, and will be offered on a first come, first serve basis.

The Oneida family tree

On Friday, November 18th nine Oneida tribal members met with Historian Loretta Metoxen at Cultural Heritage to do research on their family tree.

The day started out with Loretta explaining with much enthusiasm about the history of the Oneida people and many families living in New York and our arrival to Wisconsin. Eagerly the Skenandore's, Metoxen's, Steffes, Huff's & Doxtator's began filling out their family genealogy sheets and researching census books back as far as the 1800's. It was just the beginning of seeing actual records handwritten that made us all want to know more. Loretta helped us fill in some of the unknown's by getting us to the next place of research. Before we knew it lunchtime was here and we were back at it again, with the same enthusiasm that we had started with when we arrived.

The day was full of excitement, laughter and much discussion about people, places and events. This is just the beginning and we have already booked Loretta for another exciting day.

Thank You Loretta!

Menominee Cultural Museum officially opened its doors

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

It's been a long time coming for the Historic Preservation staff and members of the Menominee community to enjoy a facility that would house ancient artifacts of ancestors of the Menominee tribe without leaving the reservation. That day has finally arrived – nearly 20 years later.

Dave "Nahwahquaw" Grignon, Director of the Historic Preservation Department on the Menominee Reservation along with staff members, Rebecca Alegria and Jean Cox, welcomed those who attended the grand opening of the Menominee Cultural Museum on November 17, 2011.

The official opening of the Cultural Museum, marked the longstanding determination to one day have a facility to showcase Menominee artifacts that have been housed at the Wisconsin State Historical Society Museum as well as other museums throughout the United States. The Menominee Tribe and cultural museum recently entered into a partnership agreement with the Wisconsin State Historical Society to feature Menominee artifacts that will be on loan at the museum. The Museum, which is a "state of the art" environmentally controlled facility, was built in the shape and form of the Menominee Grand Medicine Lodge.

The staff felt it would be fitting to have the structure built in that fashion because the Menominee tribe will be repatriating sacred and ceremonial artifacts from other museums throughout the United States. This was made possible by way of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (NAGPRA).

The Indian Community block grant was matched by the Menominee Tribe for the construction of the museum to get underway.

Honor songs and flag raising ceremonies were done by the Wolf River Singers and Menominee Veterans respectively.

Contractors, local dignitaries as well as state Historical Society reps witnessed the opening.

The Cultural museum is located at 3426 CTH VV West, in Keshena, WI.

The cutting of the ribbon at the Menominee Cultural Museum grand opening marked the official opening. Menominee Tribal reps were on hand to witness the milestone. Judge OKs state permit for Kennecott nickel mine

By John Flesher
AP Environmental Writer

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. ~ Michigan environmental regulators acted lawfully by issuing Kennecott Eagle Minerals Co. a permit to build and operate a nickel and copper mine in the Upper Peninsula, a judge has ruled.

Circuit Judge Paula Manderfield rejected contentions by opposition groups that the Department of Environmental Quality should have denied the company's application because the mine is likely to damage water quality, plants and wildlife. She also sided with the DEQ in its finding that the mine's roof would not subside or collapse, as opponents have warned.

The Ingham County judge's ruling this week was the latest in a series of legal victories for Kennecott, which already has cleared land and constructed surface facilities for the mine in northwestern Marquette County. It began blasting and drilling bedrock for the entrance to the underground tunnel in September. Company officials say production of nickel and copper is scheduled to begin in 2013.

"We are not surprised ... but of course it is disappointing," Michelle Halley, an attorney for the National Wildlife Federation, said Wednesday. "We certainly believe that we should have prevailed."

Halley said opponents had not decided whether to take the case to the Michigan Court of Appeals. Other groups fighting the mine include the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community, the Huron Mountain Club and the Yellow Dog Watershed Preserve.

Adam Burley, president of Kennecott Eagle Minerals, said the ruling demonstrates the legal integrity of Michigan's environmental regulatory system.

"We are confident that we can operate in an environmentally safe and responsible manner, while contributing to job creation and the economic vitality of the area and state," Burley said.

Kennecott Eagle Minerals, a subsidiary of the Anglo-Australian mining company Rio Tinto PLC, is targeting an underground ore deposit expected to yield up to 300 million pounds of nickel and about 200 million pounds of copper, plus smaller amounts of other metals. It would be the only U.S. mine where nickel is the primary target, not just a byproduct from extraction of other minerals.

Nickel is used to make corrosion-resistant alloys including stainless steel. It's an ingredient in products such as batteries, magnets and ceramics.

Kennecott applied for its mining permit in 2006. The DEQ approved it the following year, a decision upheld by an administrative law judge after 40 days of testimony. Opponents then appealed to Manderfield.

"The DEQ issued this permit after lengthy, thorough review and careful consideration," agency spokesman Brad Wurfel said. "We were confident it would withstand a court challenge, and we are pleased to see that it has."

The mine site is in a remote area known as the Yellow Dog Plains prized by hunters, anglers and hikers. The underground chamber would be drilled beneath the headwaters of the Salmon Trout River, a tributary of Lake Superior and spawning grounds for the rare coaster brook trout.

The Huron Mountain Club, an exclusive retreat and wildlife preserve, owns property within four miles of the mine site, including an 11-mile stretch of the riverbank. The Keweenaw Bay tribe also owns property on the river and has treaty-guaranteed hunting, fishing and gathering rights in the countryside. Tribal members say Eagle Rock, a 60-foot-high outcrop near the planned entrance to the mine tunnel, is a sacred area of worship.

In their appeal, opponents contended Kennecott had miscalculated the stability of the bedrock that will form the underground mine's roof, or "crown pillar." Several experts testified it would be unstable and likely would collapse. But others retained by the DEQ and the company said studies and testing showed the 96-yard-thick roof would hold fast, and Manderfield said there was enough evidence to support their judgment.

Manderfield also accepted the company's assurances that it would take steps to prevent acid rock drainage, which happens when sulfide ores undergo a chemical reaction to create sulrific acid after exposure to air and water.

Seymour Reality Day Times Two

From the October issue of High School Highlights

By Mike Hanke
ONHS Math Instructor

On October 25, 2011, the Oneida Nation High School Economic Diversity Club made its second trip to Seymour High School for Reality Day.

Reality Day is a day that provides students a chance to experience the real world decisions needed to make in order to maintain a monthly budget.

This year the "realists" included 29 students from ONHS and three teachers, Tony Romandine, Melissa Sanders, and Mike Hanke. The students, who chose diverse careers ranging from restaurant manager to insurance agent, from city manager to veterinarian, and everything in between, spent two hours going from station to station, buying or renting a place to live, buying a car or a bus pass, or even buying a pet. Whether or not they were married was decided by chance. Those who drew the "married" card might receive from one to four children to add to their monthly budget expenses.

Some unpredictable situations included the "Fate Table," where students might receive an unexpected windfall of cash or an unexpected expense. Another "unpredictable" was caused by the police officer who mingled among the participants and might give a ticket or a nurse who might assess an unexpecting participant with medical expense: woe to the person who hadn't already purchased medical insurance. Jordan and Anthony were unusually unfortunate in receiving quite a few visits from both the police officer and the nurse.

All the participants found the day to be an enjoyable and educational experience.

Things to be Thankful for...

B-Ball

By La Kota Martinez
Thunderhawk Times

My teacher asked me what I am most thankful for. I`d have to say that I am thankful for basketball. I don't know how I would be without the game. There is no better feeling than being on a court with my teammates Lady T-hawks or even if I am just shooting around by myself. Basketball is like my paradise because I can get away from things by playing the game I love.

Family

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

This thanksgiving the plan is to go to my brother's house to share the meal. I'm excited for this because this year I am trying a new dish. I am going to try to concur not cheese curds, but ham and cheese curds. This thanksgiving should be a good one, since all my close family will be able to attend. Usually someone has always got work, or something going on, but this year we will all be there. I'm very much excited. It will also be the first thanksgiving for my baby niece Pauline. So it shall be a great one.

Trying Out for the Iroquois Nationals

By Eddie Powless
Thunderhawk Times

The Iroquois Nationals is one of the greatest teams in the International Lacrosse Federation.

The Nationals average a lot of goals. They're all on the team as Iroquois and they play as one. They work as team which makes them win a majority of their games.

They have both a field lacrosse team similar to what is played in Oneida and a box team which plays in an arena with a smaller number of players and smaller goals.

Their colors are purple and black gold and white. Their logo is an eagle on a person—it's really nice.

They go to international matches in other countries and they are the only team that doesn't have a country name—they are the Iroquois Nationals.

They used to use wooden sticks but then opponents started complaining of how it hurt so they put it against the rules. But in box lacrosse they can use them, and they win in box games, too.

Iroquois Nationals tryouts were held in Rochester, New York on November 20 and 27. Now I don't know how the tryouts went on the 20th, I couldn't make it. But I did get to the tryouts on the 27th and they were hard.

We started off with stretches, then ran the 40 yard dash. Then it started getting harder with one-on-one Defense, that's when the offside player goes up against a one defender and tries to make it in the goal.

Then we went into scrimmage. I made it once, but got bullied around the rest of the time. Most of the players are around 19, and I'm 15. But I think not one person should limit their skills and play with their hearts not their heads. And that's why I didn't let myself down and played with all I had and did the best I could against them!

Visitor stops by ONHS

By Jaleesa Caldwell
Thunderhawk Times

Last Week, on Wednesday the 23rd of November, I invited my friend to come visit ONHS from Shawano High school. Her name is Eden Huntington from Shawano/Gresham area in northern Wisconsin.

Eden has been my best friend since Head Start. We went to school together all the way up to 5th grade but we never lost contact so we're still as close as we were when we were in elementary school.

Eden came just to see what our school is all about and to just pretty much visit.

When I asked if she liked her visit at the end she said, "Yea, it's different but it's cool."

I know she really enjoyed how much we focus on the culture here with the Iroquois Music class and the closing we do every Friday.

When I asked what's different about our school she said that we have shorter class periods than her school and we have more classes, where at Shawano they only have 4 classes for 80 minutes at a time.

BEATS BY DRE

Beats by Dre are headphones with amazing sound. They allow you to hear the bass that the producers work on as a part of their unique style. Beats are studio headphones, but they are popular with teens because of their amazing sound.

"Artists and producers work hard in the studio perfecting their sound. But people can't really hear it with normal headphones. Most headphones can't handle the bass, the detail, the dynamics. Bottom line, the music doesn't move you. With Beats, people are going to hear what the artists hear, and listen to the music the way they should: the way I do."-Dre.

Monster Beats are going to cost you at least $75 and up to $200. The top of the line, Studio Beats run about $350 on Dre's official website. You can also get in-ear models that run up to $180 on the site.

2012... Is Coming!

By Jaleesa Caldwell
Thunderhawk Times

It's "T-Minus 30 Days and Counting" to next year, 2012, when some people believe that the world will end on December 22, though that's almost a year from now.

Following the release of the movie 2012 and related stories in the media, many people think the world is going to end in 2012, and many think it won't. I am one of those people that don't believe it will happen.

There are so many stories people have said on how the world is going to end. Many of the stories are based on the idea that the Mayan calendar ended at 2012.

I don't think the world will end in 2012. Other civilizations, just as advanced as that of the Mayans, also made predictions regarding the end of the world. Those predictions did not come to pass, and life went on as normal.

While the Mayans were good at observing the seasons and could predict eclipses based on what had regularly happened in the past, they really had no way of predicting the future.

If I were a betting person, I would wager all of my money that we will still be here in 2012 and beyond.

It's the basketball time of the year

Thunderhawks Basketball Tips-Off

By Anthony Cornelius
Thunderhawk Times

If you're a T-Hawk fan you might want to take a look at the team's outlook for this season. With the team having had mismatches against bigger teams from bigger schools in the past, they are sure to overcome the obstacles of last season.

They have six returning players from last year including two seniors—Anthony Cornelius and Jo Jo Santiago, three juniors—Devonte Pointer, Diego Metoxen, and Freddy Miller, and one sophomore—T.J. McNaughtan.

But they have four new additions with freshman Mitchel Cornelius, junior Mike Mills, and the two seniors Kommanche Jordan and Oscar Schuyler. Head coach Scott Murray has also brought in a new assistant coach Mike King. Mike played at Seymour High School where he was a part of a successful state team.

The Thunderhawks have numbers this year. Last year it wasn't to their advantage to only have seven players at the end of the season. But this year they have 10 players—enough to have some experience coming off the bench. Last year's leading scorer was point guard Eddie Santiago, but his younger brother, Jo Jo, is sure to fill his place.

The Thunderhawks' first game was November 28th against Green Bay West High School which they lost 65-61. They then went up against Lincoln Hills. Watch for updates on those games in our next issue.

With Jamie Betters as coach again this year, we are looking forward to a very successful season. This year we have a nice number of girls on the team. The Lady T-Hawks this year are: Kanani Nunies, Jessica House, Rachel Ninham, Kayla Danforth, Natasha Stevens, La Kota Martinez, Yasmine Denny, Josanna Cornelius, Muriel King, Kylene Welsh, and Joelle Thomas, and, maybe, Heather Stevens. We only have a week and a half of practice in, but it's looking good so far. We have a game Thursday, December 1, against Milwaukee Young Coggs at 5:00 at the Turtle School, so come on out and support the Lady T-Hawks.

Boys basketball eyes improved season

Head Coach Scott Murray speaks to the team at the beginning of practice.

With the passing of the Thanksgiving holiday comes the start of the high school basketball season. In the case of the Oneida Nation High School boys basketball program having enough players to complete a roster has been a difficult task. But that is what makes the upcoming season an exciting and intriguing one for the Thunderhawks.

The 2011-2012 Thunderhawk squad has six players returning to the team from last season: seniors Anthony Cornelius and Jojo Santiago; juniors Devonte Pointer, Diego Metoxen, and Freddy Miller; sophomore TJ McNaughtan.

Normally this would reflect the number of players a Thunderhawk team suits up as of late. However, this season the team was able to take on four new players in freshman Mitchell Cornelius, junior Mike Mills, transfer senior Kommanche Jordan, and transfer senior Oscar Schuyler.

The team also added an accomplished basketball player in Mike King as the Assistant Coach.

"It's great having a team of ten. Having ten guys not only helps us during the games but it helps us the most in practice. In previous years we didn't have enough players to scrimmage five-on-five in practice so we were lacking in that area. Now we can actually put two teams of five out there and get in some real game scenarios," said Head Coach Scott Murray.

The prospect of being a competitive basketball team has the Oneida players excited to get the season started.

"Being my senior year I'm looking forward to winning the most. I do think that we will have to work on our chemistry though because we have a few new players we haven't played with much so just getting used to each other," Anthony Cornelius said.

With the addition of new players comes some height, something the team was lacking last season.

"We have two big guys now, last year we didn't really have any height at all. But I still think we need to work on our rebounding because a lot of teams are going to be bigger than us so we just need to make sure we rebound good," said Jojo Santiago.

With some newfound size and a larger roster the Thunderhawks begin a tough scheduled season. The team opened their season against Green Bay West High School, losing a very close game 65-61.

"We have the potential to be very successful this year. We have a tough schedule this year, being an independent school you have to schedule whoever is willing to play. So it will be a challenge but the potential is there," Coach Murray said.

The Thunderhawks played their second game of the season on November 29th against Lincoln Hills. This time the team emerged victorious, winning by a score of 49-32.

Lady T-Hawks looking to keep momentum of last season

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Nation High School (ONHS) Girls basketball team had a stellar season last year with a push into the regional finals, now the trick is to top it. Head Coach Jamie Betters is expecting good things from her 15 player squad.

"We set the bar high this year because of the success we had last year, because we have about five to six girls coming back that have experience, that we didn't have last year. It's going to be even exciting to see what they bring knowing the competition that they faced last year," said Betters.

One of the returning players is senior Kanani Nunies who plays center. Betters is looking to Nunies to take up the leadership position left by Nunies' sister Ululani who graduated last year.

"(Kanani's) so positive, and at times with herself, she's a bit vulnerable, but she's able to pick herself up and still help out those that need a little bit more spirit," said Betters.

Nunies is hoping to build on last year's success.

"Last year was very unexpected, amazing season. So we kind of know what to expect this year, but we don't know what to expect at the same time because we have a whole new set of girls, girls on different levels, girls on different fitness levels, so we have to constantly encourage each other to go stronger so we can go further," she said.

Returning junior guard Jessica House credits the playoff run to then first year coach Betters.

"We got a pretty good season last year, and I think that was thanks to Jamie. It was my first year there, too. Having Jamie really helped," said House.

Betters sees some advantages this year over last year such as a bigger team, and the addition of a full time assistant coach Margaret Stevens.

"That's going to just add on to the coaching style to the techniques that we teach them to get things done a little quicker, so I can work on something, she can work on something and we can bring it together," said Betters.

Another thing that eased up slightly is the school's ability to schedule games. ONHS isn't in a conference, so the athletic director has to hunt down willing competitors.

"Knowing that we're competitive, and the level of respect that we play at, teams are more apt to play us," said Betters. "Now it's not just a win that they used to get, now it's competition."

Betters is looking beyond the basketball court for her players.

"My … continued journey is to provide a lot of positive influence to this high school," she said. "There's a lot of good things that are happening here, and to have some really great role models in my girls, too, who will become leaders in this community."

Nunies is looking forward to away games as a chance to get to know her teammates better.

"That's more bonding time with my team. I like to get close to girls I haven't befriended before," she said. "Everyone becomes closer and more of a team during basketball season."

Nunies is also looking for the energy of the fans that supported the team last year.

"I'm looking forward to home games and hopefully seeing the same crowds as last year or a bit bigger and away games as well because we love the encouragement, so come support our games," she urged.

"Go T-Hawks, hopefully we can do it as good as we did last year," said House.

Smith hopes to return to state championship game

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

Shiocton High School junior Brandon Smith has just played an essential role in the Chiefs run to the Wisconsin Football Division Six State Title game. Despite the team falling short of winning the state championship, Smith looks to the future with a hopeful eye.

"The state game was a tough loss, we lost 24-0 to St. Mary's Springs. They went to state last year and they had a lot of returning players so they were pretty tough. But, we couldn't convert on three 'fourth and 1's' that would have got us into the red zone. We usually make those plays no problem," Smith said.

With Shiocton playing a majority of underclassmen this past season Smith hopes that it will be their turn to make a return trip to the title game next fall.

Showing his versatility on the football field Smith has played quarterback, wide receiver, tight end, and defensive tackle for the Shiocton Chiefs. Predictably Smith's favorite position to play is quarterback, but he enjoys playing the position in an unconventional way.

"I like playing wildcat, I play the quarterback in that offense and it allows me to run, or hand-off or pass out of that unusual formation," says Smith.

Shiocton High School junior Brandon Smith (#8) played a major role in the Chiefs march to the Wisconsin state championship game.

But above all else Smith enjoys the family camaraderie that exists in the football team.

"This year we had a family bond. It was fun because we know each other very well and we've been playing football together since we were kids. So we are very close and have been very close since we were little," Smith said.

As for his immediate future Smith will now prepare for the spring baseball season. As a catcher for the varsity team Smith believes that the baseball squad will also experience success.

"We made it deep in the playoffs last year and again we have a lot of returning players. We only had three seniors last year and we still did well in the playoffs," said Smith.

"We Remember the Children"

Oneida Chapter #2338 of Compassionate Friends extends an invitation to attend the World Wide Candle Lighting Ceremony on Sunday, Dec 11th at 6:15 pm at the Oneida Parish Hall, 2397 Freedom Rd, Oneida WI. Doors will open at 6pm and Wade Fernadez, a renowned recording artist/songwriter will bring his musical gift of flute playing to our program.

The ceremony will include an evening of poetry reading from parents , the "Music for Our Culture" youth group will sing two very inspirational songs in our native language and Opie Day Bedeau will do the honor song during our roll call of names. Parents are asked to bring a photo of their child to be placed on our Remembrance Table. Lite refreshments and snacks will be served after the program.

The Compassionate Friends is a non-profit organization that assists families in finding positive resolution following the death of their child. Currently there are over 620 Chapters throughout the United States and offered in 15 countries. Oneida is the first Native American Chapter to be formalized in July 2009. The motto of the Compassionate Friends organization is "you need not walk alone". Having a child pass away is the most difficult event a parent will go through. The emotions one endures can range from anger, guilt, sorrow, loneliness to despair. Often times it's hard for families to reach out and seek help during these difficult times but we want families to know the Oneida Chapter of Compassionate Friends is here for them as we all have already traveled that path.

Once again, please join us on Sunday, Dec 11th at 6:15 pm as we light a candle in honor of all those children gone before us and let them know "their light will forever shine in the hearts of all those who love them". If you participated in past ceremonies you still need to call either Julie Denny at 920-490-3661 or Brenda Cornelius at 920-869-2415 to have your child added to the roll call. The actual candle lighting is held outside so please dress accordingly.

Delgado attends Tribal Nations Conference

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Oneida Business Committee (OBC) Chairman Ed Delgado attended the third Tribal Nations Conference in Washington DC which cumulated with a speech from President Barack Obama to the leaders from the 565 federally recognized Native American tribes and representing Alaska natives on Friday, December 2.

"We're really feeling good that we finally have a president that listens to us and really seems concerned, but we need action," said Delgado on the overall mood of the attendees.

Delgado and other tribal leaders had an opportunity the day before to meet with representatives from several federal departments such as the Department of the Interior and Department of Education.

"The most impressive thing I found there was that there was different entities … all working together, collaborating to try and adjust the needs of the tribes," he said.

Delayed winter weather helps ORCCC construction crew

A construction crew works on a tornado shelter at the ORCCC.

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

The delayed onset of winter weather is helping the construction of the Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC) move forward according to Kraus-Anderson Construction Co. Project Superintendent Allen Zaffke.

"This place is going to be ready to go before we know it," said Zaffke.

Currently, the construction crew is working on the two tornado shelters and is continuing to work on the foundation for the 79,000 square foot building. When finished, the facility will have room for 48 residents, a commercial kitchen, fitness and recreation centers, and solar panels.

"It should turn out to be quite a cost savings for the facility here, because we're putting up a big array of them," he said.

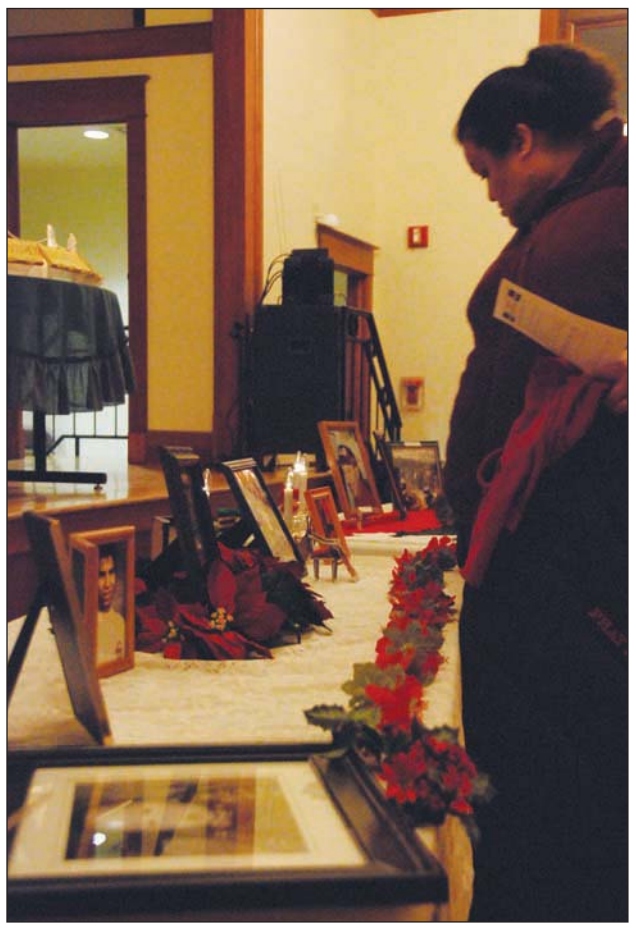
Zaffke wanted to address concerns comparing the costs of the projected $17 million ORCCC to another elder residence being built in the Village of Hobart for $6 million.

"We don't know what the square footage of that other building was, we don't know if they're having a commercial kitchen, we don't know if they've given their residents in-floor heat and nice doors and new decorative hardware and things like that, we don't know what kinds type of site improvements they went through over there," he said. Zaffke estimated $5 million will be spent on site improvements such as sewer lines, utilities and parking lots for the ORCCC.

"We're going to continue the road around this place and make the entire facility a loop, so you can either drive or walk. There's walking paths here, sidewalks and the front entry there's going to be a covered carport," he said.

When finished, residents of the Anna John Nursing Home will move to the ORCCC.

"That's something that's been around for quite a number of years, and it's time to get them into the new facility," he said.



The next big step will take place before Christmas when Standing Stone Erectors will come in to start standing up structural steel. Currently, about a dozen of the 18 workers on site are Oneida citizens.

"It's a significant amount, and a lot more to come," said Zaffke.

In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory of...

Randy Jourdan Sr.

If I could write a story
It'd be the greatest ever told
Of a kind & loving father
Who had a heart of gold

I could write a million pages
But still be unable to say, just how Much I love and miss him
Every single day

I'll remember all he taught me
I'm hurt but won't be sad
'cuz he'll send me down the answers
And he'll ALWAYS be MY DAD

Love your Baby Girl,
Candy Jo

Merry Christmas Lola Bunny

The holidays are here and we are missing you,
one so dear.
Isabella walks all over now,
she plays, climbs and gracefully falls.
Sweet Little Lola loves stories and baby dolls.
Isabella, so sweet and cuddly as a bug,
Little Lola still cries and longs for your comforting hugs.
Phoebe----she won't ever forget you
she speaks of you often, oh how she misses you being there, she tells us you are watching
when she's in Auntie Shantel's care.

Danielle we know she loves and misses you too,
it's something that is very hard for her too.
She's working hard to make you proud,
she's becoming a leader in her school crowd.
She made the Honor list at school,
doing her work—honoring your rule.

Dominic and Michael love and miss you so, we all still wonder why you had to go.

Not a day goes by without thoughts of you,
the love for their Mother will remain strong and true.

I miss you so much,
your smile, your voice, your laughter,
your humor and your loving touch.
You are the daughter I never had,
we shared lots of memories both happy and sad.

It's Christmas time and we all know, it won't be as bright as last years,
because you had to go.

We will all try to make the best of it without you here, that's all we can do but know in your heart that we all love and miss you.

Enjoy your first Christmas Bunny in the land of the Creator, a wonderful place
where we will all meet again later.

Sadly missed, Love Auntie Rose

I see the countless CHRISTMAS TREES around the world below with tiny lights like HEAVEN'S STARS reflecting on the snow.
The sight is so SPECTACULAR
please wipe away that tear for I am spending CHRISTMAS WITH JESUS CHRIST this year.
I hear the many CHRISTMAS SONGS that people hold so dear
but the SOUND OF MUSIC can't compare with the CHRISTMAS CHOIR up here.
I have no words to tell you of the JOY their voices bring for it is beyond description to HEAR THE ANGELS SING.
I know HOW MUCH YOU MISS ME,
I see the pain inside your heart for I am spending CHRISTMAS WITH JESUS CHRIST this year.
Please let your HEARTS BE JOYFUL and let your SPIRIT SING for I am spending CHRISTMAS IN HEAVEN and I'm walking WITH THE KING.

Your time on earth seemed all too brief,
because I wanted you in my life forever.
And although I really miss you,
in my heart I know that you are at peace.

Still, countless times throughout the day
I find myself remembering you.
Although I can not see or hear you,
I know that you are with me.

I'm thankful for the times we shared and the priceless memories too; for those memories are a comfort now
when I lovingly - Remember You.

A Christmas Present

It's Christmas and I'll miss you
You'll never know how much
The greatest thing I could get
Would be just to feel your touch.

I know you're safe in God's arms
And you're as happy as can be
And I know that I'm being selfish
To want you here with me.

Have a lovely Christmas
I'll get by, you'll see
Just Promise me on Christmas day
That you will think of me.

BACKGROUND ON BUSINESS

PTAC looks to enhance Native owned businesses

Program Manager Gwen Carr speaks at a conference hosted by the PTAC program held at the Radisson Hotel & Conference Center.

Offers Native businesses chance to land government contracts

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

In the world of business "who you know" is key. Forming a partnership with another business for supplies that then recommends another business that will address ones other needs.

A newly formed program, the Tribal Procurement Technical Assistance Center (PTAC), will help native-owned businesses connect with a variety of entities such as local suppliers all the way to the federal government.

Program Manager Gwen Carr comments of the nature of the PTAC program that is housed in Oneida. "PTAC's basic function is to provide technical assistance, we provide networking opportunities, and training events. We have a seven state region and we work with tribally owned and Indian owned businesses to increase their capacity to do federal, state, and local contracting."

The PTAC program is able to aid businesses by providing training, ensuring a business has all the necessary certifications to apply for a contract, counseling, conferences, and numerous networking opportunities.

"We also work with non Indian businesses in industry because we can facilitate those relationships between the non Indian industry and the tribes that are in that state," says Carr.

Featuring a skilled staff, which collectively has business experience in bunches, has worked with government entities at the local, state, and national levels.

The program features two Procurement Specialists in Ron Montano, who is stationed at the Oneida office, and Richard Antell, who works out of the Stillwater, MN area. A Tribal & Small Business Outreach Manager in Craig Anderson, Government Affairs Specialist Gail Garrity-Reed, and Chris Cornelius who recently joined the staff as a Program Coordinator.

"This is the first Tribal PTAC in Wisconsin ever and its here in Oneida, but we also work with all the tribes within our service region. We are a conduit for information out to the tribes; we are a conduit for information from the tribes to various agencies. This connection is helpful because a lot of information is lost because one entity may not know another exists. We will be that bridge for our region," says Carr.

The best way to reach PTAC is to visit their website (http://www.facpctac.com) where upcoming events and the program's information can be viewed. Beginning the program's intake process also begins on the site and utilizes a live chat feature which allows the inquiring person to speak to the PTAC staff and receive immediate help.

But what drives the program most of all is the staff's willingness to help and the satisfaction they get knowing they helped push Native-owned enterprises to further achievements.

"I ran into a woman that I had worked with a few years ago while shopping, and she has a Native-owned business, and she was pushing four carts full of stuff. She told me the carts were being donated to charity on behalf of the business. She was so thankful for our help because she said because you helped me I am now able to help others. That is what makes this job so rewarding," said Garrity-Reed.

The road to financial hell is paved with alluring options:

Credit cards, payday loans, reverse mortgages, 401(k) raids and more…

BayBank Green Bay, Wisconsin

Even though parts of the economy are starting to look stronger, the unemployment rate remains at 9.7%, many families are absorbing weeks of unpaid furloughs and others are simply trying to rebuild what they have lost.

Don't compound your problems by making these eight major money missteps:

1. Raiding your 401(k)

Don't think of retirement savings as "now" money. It's money you've really got to save for later.

"Our parents' generation generally worked for someone who gave them a pension check for the rest of their lives," "Today, we actually control our pensions. People think, 'I can see those dollars there. They have my name on the account. I'm going to use that money.' "

It's particularly foolhardy to dip into your 401(k) if you're in danger of bankruptcy. Retirement accounts are protected under bankruptcy laws in most states. You don't have to surrender your retirement to get a fresh start.

"Some people use their IRAs, and then they wind up in bankruptcy, anyway." "So now, they're bankrupt and they don't have any retirement."

2. Walking out on a mortgage

If you owe more than your house is worth, walking away is not your only option, providing that you still have some income to pay a mortgage. The first step is to look honestly at your finances and determine whether you face a short-term issue or a long-term one.

Short-term means you just got laid off and have no savings or small savings, but the job market in your town is such that you can probably get some part-time or full-time work to keep money coming in. Long-term means you've been unemployed, you've depleted your savings, and you don't see a way back into the job market.

"If it's long term, then you can't afford your home anymore." "The faster you recognize it and make plans to let it go, the better it will be. Put your best foot forward to sell your home. Move into a smaller, less-expensive place and preserve your capital for when times are better for you.

If it is a short-term situation, talk with your mortgage lenders and see if they will suspend or lower your payments over the next three to six months.

For information about modifying your mortgage, go to MakingHomeAffordable.gov, a website sponsored by the federal government with the goal of helping the 12 million American families whose homes are now worth less than they owe. The site lists HUD-approved counselors who will work with you for free. If you do not use the Internet, you can contact the program toll-free at 888-995-4673.

3. Ignoring the card balance

Although credit card usage dipped more than 13% in February, almost 15% of American families still owe more than 40% of their income, according to the Federal Reserve.

A credit card should be used strictly as a convenience, not as a means to spend more than you can afford.

"Ask yourself the question, 'Do I really need that?' Or, more important, 'Can I afford it?' These aren't radically new concepts."

Reading the new government-mandated box on your credit card bill that shows how long it will take to pay off your balance if you pay only the minimum and how much interest you pay to carry a balance.

You won't get out of debt overnight. It's going to take time. Behavior modification just doesn't happen overnight."

4. Debt-wipeout scams

Be careful when talking with debt-consolidation firms.

Most of the ones I've seen are shams. I would be very, very cautious. Pretty much, stay away.

An alternative: Seek help through a local United Way chapter, which provides referrals to non-profit counselors, or through the non-profit National Foundation for Credit Counseling.

5. Co-signing a loan

If a friend or relative asks you to co-sign a loan, it means his credit is so shaky no lender will give him money on his own merits. Why should you?

Co-signing is a business transaction, but people don't think of it as a business transaction. They think, 'I'm helping my friend out.

But what you're really doing is co-signing for a loan and you could be on the hook for that.

You should always assume you will have to repay the loan you're co-signing.

I would be more cautious about co-signing for a romantic relationship than in a parent-child relationship. Relationships can end up badly. There can be a lot of acrimony, and that could change someone's interest in repaying that loan.

6. Payday loans

About 19 million Americans have resorted to these high-interest loans, although the number has dropped in the past year.

They are marketed as short-term cash advances to meet emergency expenses between paychecks.

But consumers often become trapped in repeat borrowing.

For the average two-week payday loan, the annualized interest rate ranges from 391% to 521%.

7. Reverse mortgages

Older actors pop up on television marketing these mortgages as an easy income stream for seniors who are house-rich and cash-poor. But the fees and other costs associated with reverse mortgages can sometimes be considerably higher than on other loans.

A reverse mortgage may be a reasonable choice for some homeowners, especially the nearly one-third of retirees who have almost no income other than their Social Security checks, but the high fees associated with it make it a last resort, not a first resort.

Other options: Take out a home equity loan. Sell your home and move to a smaller, less-expensive one. Or sell your home to your kids and create a multigenerational family under one roof. When you die, they can use their inheritance to pay down the mortgage.

8. Trying to stiff Uncle Sam

If you look at the small print when you sign your tax return you'll see that basically you're affirming that everything in it is accurate and true.

What happens if you are audited and everything is not accurate?

If it's a small amount, and it's accidental and not intentional, it will be resolved. If it's a large amount, and they can be sure it's intentional, then they could charge you with fraud, and there could be penalties involved.

WISHING YOU A VERY, MERRY CHRISTMAS

Happy Holidays to you and your family!

The last few weeks have been very busy in terms of policy work for my office. I have been trying to hone in on a few major policy issues that I'd like to advance on behalf of the Oneida people. First and foremost on my mind is trying to bring home a new housing initiative that will bring new jobs and new top-of-the-line housing opportunities. I have also attended 200+ meetings with tribal members and have been working on approximately 180 policy items, including responding to individual tribal member requests and follow-ups.

Legislation

I am looking at offering up a possible new comprehensive policy covering boards, committees and commissions. In the comprehensive policy, I am proposing that employees no longer be allowed to serve simultaneously on a Tribal board, committee or commission. My proposal would apply moving forward and would grandfather those employees serving on boards, committees or commission the opportunity to complete out their terms.

Likewise, I am also in the final review stages of offering some changes to the Oneida Election Law. As with each general election, issues and concerns were raised with the election process, therefore, I am proposing a few additional amendments to streamline the elections for the future. These amendments will include a revamping of the referendum process.

I have some work being conducted on a new budget management act and several other critical policy projects. The GTC reviewed a draft of the Budget Management Act earlier this year. My office is conducting a thorough review and will be bringing forth a more comprehensive proposal.

Restructuring

Switching gears here, I wanted to acknowledge I am pleased to see that the General Tribal Council (GTC) understands the importance of restructuring, as the Monday, November 28th meeting was evidence of such understanding. It is clear the people understand we need to move this tribe in a new direction. Increased capacity to offer new services for the people must become a reality. Similarly, going four or more years without pay increases for the employees is not tolerable; we must sift through what we've been doing wrong so we can make it right. We are doing some things right, we have to build off of that and make the necessary changes so we can position our tribe for a brighter future. Clearly, the destiny of our nation is in our hands, I think everyone realizes now is the time to chart a new course.

Budget

I will say, as I mentioned at the GTC on November 28, 2011, we do have some financial challenges as we move forward. Certainly we have built-in cost factors that we have to deal with, but I am sure we can advance some budget changes in the next few years or so that will put our tribe on solid financial footings. Clearly, the federal budget situation will have an effect on us and unfortunately, many of our grants sources will be drying-up over the next few years, so changes must take place in terms of the structure of our budget, issues such as, size, scope and financial usage must be addressed. Remember, the budget we put in place for this cycle (2012) is merely a status-quo budget. We have exercised great restraint as we now have to decide what to do about our organization which is in need of reforms.

One of the big issues we're going to be dealing with in the next quarter is going to occur around a potential budget amendment. Housing, wage issues and other things need to be addressed short-term, and long-term, we need to make major decisions about the total carrying costs of this operation.

Housing

One of the short-term and long-term budget issues which we need to deal with is housing. In fact, housing is a top priority as we move forward. As a part of our Oneida Business Committee vision, we want to advance housing opportunities and we want people to come and live here. Having Oneida families scattered to the wind (De Pere, Green Bay, Seymour, Milwaukee) because we do not have enough housing stock is no longer an option. Look at the pace with which Hobart can erect housing; we can certainly rival that, while putting more spectacular housing stock into the market for our tribal members. I'll be writing about some of these issues as we move forward in the next few months, stay tuned.

Homelessness

As we close out this year, we also need to remember, we do have homeless people living amongst us, and we need to address this issue, in particular our homeless children. I will be working with a tribal member to bring some resolve to this important issue.

Thank You

On other matters, I want to thank the Oneida employees for all their efforts over the last few years especially in keeping the organization moving forward with dwindling resources. We certainly have stood firm as the economy and other economic forces have challenged our financial standing. As the CFO properly pointed out at the November 28th GTC meeting, we operate in a global economy. For example, even oil prices in foreign lands can impact us here, and we have all done the best we can do to readjust our financial environment. In particular, the front line gaming employees are all an integral part of our success story and deserve some level of consideration as we move forward. So thank you to all of you and I will be coming forward, within the next few months, with some wage solution suggestions that will hopefully enhance your work experience here and your sacrifices on behalf of our tribe.

Thank you for your time and have a wonderful holiday season!

Shekólih,

I want to change things up a bit for this article and let less politically inspired aspirations rule the day. I will start by saying wow! Time has flown by and it is hard to believe we are already preparing to bring in another year. With that, I extend to you all my warmest wishes for joyful holiday season and will offer a prayer that we all have safe travels and celebrations.

As we are all familiar with, it is common for us as native people to give thanks for all we have on a regular basis, not just certain times a year; however, it is nice to be reminded of the wisdom passed on by native leaders who lived through some perilous times in our history. It is comforting to know others have been able to share their experience, so that we may learn from what they lived when faced with what we believe to be difficult times. The first inspired piece of wisdom comes from our own Thanksgiving Address and the second from John Lame Deer.

The People: Today we have gathered and we see that the cycles of life continue. We have been given the duty to live in balance and harmony with each other and all living things. So now, we bring our minds together as one as we give greetings and thanks to each other as People. Now our minds are one.

The Earth Mother: We are all thankful to our Mother, the Earth, for she gives us all that we need for life. She supports our feet as we walk about upon her. It gives us joy that she continues to care for us as she has from the beginning of time. To our Mother, we send greetings and thanks. Now our minds are one.

The Waters: We give thanks to all the Waters of the world for quenching our thirst and providing us with strength. Water is life. We know its power in many forms - waterfalls and rain, mists and streams, rivers and oceans. With one mind, we send greetings and thanks to the spirit of water. Now our minds are one.

The Fish: We turn our minds to all the Fish life in the water. They were instructed to cleanse and purify the water. They also give themselves to us as food. We are grateful that we can still find pure water. So, we turn now to the Fish and send our greetings and thanks. Now our minds are one.

The Plants: Now we turn toward the vast fields of Plant life. As far as the eye can see, the Plants grow, working many wonders. They sustain many life forms. With our minds gathered together, we give thanks and look forward to seeing Plant life for many generations to come. Now our minds are one.

The Food Plants: With one mind, we turn to honor and thank all the Food Plants we harvest from the garden. Since the beginning of time, the grains, vegetables, beans and berries have helped the people survive. Many other living things draw strength from them too. We gather all the Plant Foods together as one and send them a greeting and thanks. Now our minds are one.

The Medicine Herbs: Now we turn to all the Medicine herbs of the world. From the beginning, they were instructed to take away sickness. They are always waiting and ready to heal us. We are happy there are still among us those special few who remember how to use these plants for healing. With one mind, we send greetings and thanks to the Medicines and to the keepers of the Medicines. Now our minds are one.

The Animals: We gather our minds together to send greetings and thanks to all the Animal life in the world. They have many things to teach us as people. We see them near our homes and in the deep forests. We are glad they are still here and we hope that it will always be so. Now our minds are one.

The Trees: We now turn our thoughts to the Trees. The Earth has many families of Trees who have their own instructions and uses. Some provide us with shelter and shade, others with fruit, beauty and other useful things. Many peoples of the world use a Tree as a symbol of peace and strength. With one mind, we greet and thank the Tree life. Now our minds are one.

The Birds: We put our minds together as one and thank all the Birds who move and fly about over our heads. The Creator gave them beautiful songs. Each day they remind us to enjoy and appreciate life. The Eagle was chosen to be their leader. To all the Birds - from the smallest to the largest - we send our joyful greetings and thanks. Now our minds are one.

The Four Winds: We are all thankful to the powers we know as the Four Winds. We hear their voices in the moving air as they refresh us and purify the air we breathe. They help to bring the change of seasons. From the four directions they come, bringing us messages and giving us strength. With one mind, we send our greetings and thanks to the Four Winds. Now our minds are one.

The Thunderers: Now we turn to the west where our Grandfathers, the Thunder Beings, live. With lightning and thundering voices, they bring with them the water that renews life. We bring our minds together as one to send greetings and thanks to our Grandfathers, the Thunderers. Now our minds are one.

The Sun: We now send greetings and thanks to our eldest Brother, the Sun. Each day without fail he travels the sky from east to west, bringing the light of a new day. He is the source of all the fires of life. With one mind, we send greetings and thanks to our Brother, the Sun. Now our minds are one.

Grandmother Moon: We put our minds together and give thanks to our oldest grandmother, the Moon, who lights the night-time sky. She is the leader of women all over the world, and she governs the movement of the ocean tides. By her changing face we measure time, and it is the Moon who watches over the arrival of children here on Earth. With one mind, we send greetings and thanks to our Grandmother, the Moon. Now our minds are one.

The Stars: We give thanks to the Stars who are spread across the sky like jewelry. We see them in the night, helping the Moon to light the darkness and bringing dew to the gardens and growing things. When we travel at night, they guide us home. With our minds gathered together as one, we send greetings and thanks to all the Stars. Now our minds are one.

The Enlightened Teachers: We gather our minds to greet and thank the enlightened Teachers who have come to help throughout the ages. When we forget how to live in harmony, they remind us of the way we were instructed to live as people. With one mind, we send greetings and thanks to these caring Teachers. Now our minds are one.

The Creator: Now we turn our thoughts to the Creator, or Great Spirit, and send greetings and thanks for the gifts of Creation. Everything we need to live a good life is here on this Mother Earth. For all the love that is still around us, we gather our minds together as one and send our choicest words of greetings and thanks to the Creator. Now our minds are one.

Closing Words: We have now arrived at the place where we end our words. Of all the things we have named, it was not our intention to leave anything out. If something was forgotten, we leave it to each individual to send such greetings and thanks in their own way. Now our minds are one.

"Before our white brothers arrived to make us civilized men, we didn't have any kind of prison. Because of this, we had no delinquents. Without a prison, there can be no delinquents. We had no locks nor keys and therefore among us there were no thieves.

When someone was so poor that he couldn't afford a horse, a tent or a blanket, he would, in that case, receive it all as a gift. We were too uncivilized to give great importance to private property. We didn't know any kind of money and consequently, the value of a human being was not determined by his wealth. We had no written laws laid down, no lawyers, no politicians, therefore we were not able to cheat and swindle one another. We were really in bad shape before the white men arrived and I don't know how to explain how we were able to manage without these fundamental things that (so they tell us) are so necessary for a civilized society." - John (Fire) Lame Deer Sioux Lakota - 1903-1976.

There have been many native people throughout history and in our present who have dedicated their lives to bringing balance, wisdom and inspiration to our communities. As parents, friends, family and community, we have the opportunity every day to make a difference in each other's lives as well as our own, we need only take that first step forward. Whether it is the Thanksgiving Address, a quote like the one I have shared, a friendly smile, a prayer or just sharing cup of coffee and a joke, I hope each of us will continue finding inspiration in ourselves

Do I need a will?

People avoid making out Wills for many reasons. Many feel it's morbid to think about their own mortality. Some think it will be costly or complex. Others believe it's unnecessary because their families know who gets what. But regardless of your wealth, marital status or age, a Will is the only way to ensure that your wishes are carried out.

If you die without having a Will in place, your property passes in accordance with state intestacy laws. In that case, a family member or other interested party petitions the Probate Court for distribution of your estate, which then passes according to statute. This can be a confusing and lengthy process that does not guarantee that your estate will be distributed according to your wishes.

In creating a Will, you can designate a special piece of jewelry, photographs or any gifts with emotional attachments to specific persons. By taking the time to think about your possessions, and how you would like them distributed, you are creating a more thoughtful, meaningful approach to the disposition of your assets.

Now, ask yourself again, "Do I need a Will?"

If the answer is yes, the certified paralegals of the Oneida Legal Resource Department can help. For a nominal fee the Legal Resource Department can draft a Will that:

- Designates an Executor to manage the distribution of your estate.
- Appoints a guardian for minor children.
- Specifies your funeral wishes.
- Expedites the legal process, and;
- Reduces confusion and family disagreements during a difficult time.

You may amend your will at any time. In fact, it's a good idea to review it periodically and especially in the event of a family or marital status change. At the same time, review your beneficiary designations for your 401(k), IRA, pension and life insurance policy since those accounts will be transferred automatically to your named beneficiaries when you die. If you need to update your Will the Legal Resource Department can help you make changes by adding a codicil in lieu of rewriting the entire Will.

In addition to a Will, you should draw up powers of attorney for health care and financial matters. If you become incapacitated by illness or accident, a power of attorney will be critical to allow a friend or loved one to pay your bills and make health care decisions for you. These simple documents not only save money, but they give you the security of knowing things will be taken care of if you are unable to do it yourself. When you contact the Legal Resource Center to help you draft your Will, the LRC can also provide you with the forms and instructions, free of charge, for the Power of Attorney for Health Care, Power Attorney for Finances and Property, and Living Will forms.

If you are a Tribal member interested in drafting your own Will, making changes to an existing Will or Powers of Attorney for Health and Finances, please call our office for a free, confidential initial consultation.

December is National Drunk & Drugged Driving Prevention Month

December marks the eighth anniversary of the enactment of a Wisconsin law that prohibits drivers from having any detectable amount of a controlled substance in their system, such as marijuana or cocaine, while operating a motor vehicle. The law also makes the legal penalties for drugged driving the same as drunken driving.

The Wisconsin State Patrol and other law enforcement agencies are continuing their efforts to combat drugged driving. "Law enforcement officers throughout the state have extensive training and experience in procedures that effectively identify drivers impaired by alcohol. Officers use many of those same procedures to identify drugged drivers," says Wisconsin State Patrol Captain Nick Scorcio of the Northeast Region-Fond du Lac Post. "Drivers who exhibit behavior or symptoms indicative of drug use must submit to a blood test that determines the presence of drugs. Refusing to submit to the blood test means an automatic revocation of the driver's license."

In addition to illegal drugs, the overuse or abuse of medications, especially when combined with alcohol, will often cause impaired driving. State law prohibits drivers from being "under the influence of any drug to a degree which renders him or her incapable of safely driving or under the combined influence of an intoxicant and any other drug to a degree which renders him or her incapable of driving safely."

"That's why officers never take a break—even over the holiday season—from arresting those who choose to get behind the wheel while impaired," said Scorcio.

Letters & Opinions...

Reflecting on Oneida ways

You know, we as Native People talk about "walking in balance" on our mother the earth and are steadfast in keeping our Native Traditions alive by practicing our medicine and passing our traditional values on to our kids; as a Pipe Carrier from both the Lac Courte Oreilles and Oneida communities, I'm all with that, for sure. I get the Kalihwisaks newspaper where I am and always take a minute or two to peruse the columns and search for the latest news coming out of my community. Lately I've been seeing these ads promoting and educating the gun deer hunting season on our reservation.

I see these ads in our newspaper and get really mad and disgusted because of all the memories growing-up in both Oneida Tribal School and LCO Eagles school, I've always heard the Elders speak about when we hunt for anything we only "take what we need" and "put tobacco down" to show honor and respect for your gifts that the Creator gives to you. Our Traditional ways of hunting seem archaic in our modern society where barbarism and disrespect for our four-legged gentle people who are considered our brothers, is often considered just a sport.

Listening to my elders, I was always told "not to do that!" "Only take what you need to feed your family and your relatives", then always put tobacco down and say "thank you." We have a big community that spends a great deal of time and money on keeping our Native Traditions alive, but yet we condone this "sport" to be advertised in our community newspaper and it almost seems as if it is even encouraged to get the Oneida youth (hunkwehuwe), to participate in this non-Native "sport" that is being advertised on our reservation. This is very conflicting message we are sending to our community this way. Even their timing is all wrong!

The Ogitchidaa in Lac Courte Oreilles tell me that it is good to go hunting when the lightning bugs come out to dance on their first night out, this is the old way of knowing when to hunt and the meat is good… I just wanted to share this and hope it may remind my brothers and sisters about our Native ways. Never forget who we are and where we come from. Miigwitch. Nindinawaymaaginaag.

Thank you,
Sincerely,
Netahwis Baker

GTC Meetings unheard questions

Dear GTC Members

At the last GTC meeting held on November 28 to consider the annual budget for the Oneida Nation, I made an attempt to address the Business Committee and, consequently, the membership with several pertinent and appropriate questions. I was not recognized because another member called for the question which was recognized and discussion ceased. Even though I have additional questions, I will pose those I had ready at the budget meeting, as follows:

1. Oak Ridge Plaza (Wal-Mart and Festival Foods site): What are the next steps with the contract/agreement with Oak Ridge Plaza? Even though the GTC received a report from Fred Muscavitch and Amelia Cornelius (representing Land Management), I found the report to be unsatisfactory. Are we satisfied with the income from this source even though the Development Company and the businesses are receiving much more than the Oneida Nation is because that is the format of the Bureau of Indian Affairs at the time it was concluded? Also, those businesses are getting a great advantage that goes into their bottom line because the entire site is real estate tax exempt.
2. I wanted to hear reports from all chartered corporations. It seems that some of our corporations have been operating for years without returning anything to the Oneida Nation budget from which their initial and continuing funds have and are emanating.
3. Do we have a managed forest operation? Forests are a natural resource. The Menominees operate their extensive forest for sustained yield, which means they never harvest more than the regrowth every year. Trees have a life cycle. They grow old, decay and die. They could be harvested at an optimum time for maximum yield and an income to the Nation. What do I know about timber? Well, my Dad, Peter Kurowski, taught me all about trees. I cut logs with him with a crosscut saw when I was a teenager. We used a team of horses and chains to bring the logs up the logging roads to the home area. Also, recently, I harvested timber from my property by selective cutting. That allows the undergrowth to be sustained and grow for successive harvests.
4. What is the excise tax rebate from the state of Wisconsin on tobacco products? In 1977, we started to sell tobacco products. At that time, an agreement was made with the state of Wisconsin for a percentage rebate to the Oneida Nation based on the Tribal population. This agreement was pursuant to a Supreme Court decision, known as Bryan v. Itasca. Our population has grown significantly since that time. Has our rebate also grown commensurate with the population?

There are additional questions that I will pose in subsequent letters that have to do with our farm/beef operation, return of gaming compact dollars to this area from Wisconsin, our process and costs for assessing the repair to existing buildings, and perks for Sky Box users.

The importance of the voting method

I would like to explain why I fought so hard for the hand-held voting device at the General Tribal Council meetings. When in GTC under Robert's Rules of Order, one cannot speak about specific cases. You can only speak about issues in general or someone may call "point of order". You can only generally speak about the motion that is on the floor.

I want to share with you two cases that I have seen happen.

1. An employee in GTC was once seated close to their supervisor. The employee was called by name in a warning tone of voice to "behave them self" when voting. This person could not afford to lose their job. The employee did not vote for the rest of that GTC meeting.

2. In another case recently, I sat next to an elderly gentleman. Every time he raised his hand to vote, the woman next to him told him to put his hand down. After this happened several times he just gave up trying to vote. The woman then said to him "ain't you voting".

3. Another thing, when you are in the voting minority, it takes a lot of courage to raise your hand.

I just wish there was some way the vote in GTC could be private.

Last, I want to comment on Loretta Metoxen's letter in the December 1, 2011 issue of the Kalihwisaks. Loretta felt that Chairman Ed Delgado calling her amendment motion "out of order" was wrong. She had motioned that the GTC meeting stipends be paid in Oneida Gift Cards not checks for cash. The reason Chairman Delgado had to call her motion out of order is that the tribe voted to have a 10 day notice policy. The GTC cannot vote on any significant ideas that have not been mailed in a notice to all tribal households 10 days prior to the GTC meeting.

I'm wishing for a happy holiday for you all.

Sincerely,
Madelyn Genskow

From 1A/Tribal Nations

Department of Agriculture about using Oneida produced food in its tribal schools.

"We should be able to use our cattle to feed our children at our tribal schools to serve out the purposes of our people. There's a lot of tribes that have cattle, and a fundamental component of sovereignty is to feed your own people and we've been doing it for hundreds of years," he said.

Delgado also share concerns about the land into trust process.

"Putting land into trust is getting more and more complicated, and more and more of an expense on us. We spent $40,000 on one parcel just to do all the environmental concerns," he said.

Previous conferences have brought forth changes to policies that have helped streamline processes and given authority to tribal police to make arrests of non-Indians in their jurisdiction.

"We should be able to regulate Indians and non-Indians when it comes to protecting our people," said Delgado.

In addition to attending the conference, Delgado went to a retirement party for Representative Dale Kildee (D) of Michigan who's served 19 terms in Congress. Delgado shared Kildee's statements on tribal sovereignty.

"Our constitution does not grant rights to Indians, it recognizes the inherent sovereignty of Indian tribes.

Congress regulates interactions with Indian tribes, recognizes fact we were sovereign, independent nations," Delgado quoted. "Your sovereignty is your most important component; don't give up one inch of it."

Delgado got a chance to tour the Department of the Interior office and shared a story told by Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar about a painting of Navajos returning to their homelands that hung behind the Secretary's desk. Before becoming Secretary of the Interior, Salazar had seen the painting before, and then noticed it was removed during Secretary Gale Norton's term. When Salazar asked about the painting, Norton – a President George W. Bush appointee – stated she had the painting removed because Indians are no different than any other American. When Salazar became Secretary, he sought out the painting.

"As long as he's the secretary of the Interior, that picture of the Navajos returning home will be in back of his desk," said Delgado.

Ninham, who organized the event for the second consecutive year, said the workshop was aimed to gather the community and help out those who may need assistance.

"I wanted to bring our community together and give us all a chance to get to know one another. I don't think everyone involved even realizes what great things they accomplish. Youth, families, police, paramedics, and people from all different walks of life participated in this event," Ninham said.

With police officers and staff from five agencies taking part people got to see them in another light instead of their usual demenor on duty.

"Not only was this a great opportunity for the community members to get to know the cops , but a chance for the cops to get to know the people they are sworn to protect," said Ninham. "It reminds police officers why they became a cop."

Funding for the materials was raised though donations and the Oneida Police Depatrment. Ninham purchased the material at Hancock Fabrics where they offered assistance in prepping the items.

Ninham also uses the distribution of the blankets as life lesson for a youth group he works with. He loads up a van with the kids and blankets and makes the kids deliver the blankets to homes that may need a hand during this time of year.

"The reason I want this group of youth to help me distribute the blankets is because it will impact them in a positive way," Ninham said. "It will give them a chance to experience what it feels like to help someone in need that you don't even know. In doing this you kind of pay it forward, so to speak, and the experience for them I believe will be something very memorable."

For Florence Petri, the satisfaction of helping others is what this time of year is all about. She works daily with elders and holds this event close to her heart.

" It was nice to see so many people participating. Good community spirit. I participated because I heard Matt was donating blankets to the elders, so I wanted to be a part of making the elders christmas more enjoyable," she said.

"The people and elderly who received the blankets last year were very grateful," Ninham added. "The reaction was priceless and very emotional to most involved."

The nearly 90-person group was able to meet their goal of 100 blankets during their three hours of work. Ninham is hoping that these 100 blankets are able to create warm memories of those who receive them.

Taking the right documents when applying for an ID at the DMV will save you time

Being prepared will keep you from making a return trip

The state legislature recently passed a law that requires people to present an acceptable photo ID when voting. Following is some information to help those who need to obtain a Wisconsin ID card for voting purposes better prepare for a visit to the DMV.

If you don't have photo ID for voting, DMV can issue a photo ID free of charge if you will be at least 18 years of age on the date of the next election and request an ID card for the purpose of voting.

A free ID card is NOT available if you:

- Currently have a valid, unexpired driver license
- Will not be at least 18 years of age on the date of the next election
- Already have a Wisconsin ID card that is not eligible for renewal (you may renew your ID card up to one year prior to its expiration date)
- Are not eligible to vote in Wisconsin

When applying, it will be necessary to provide your Social Security number and one document from each category below.

Proof of name and date of birth:

- Certified U.S. birth certificate (not a copy)
- Valid U.S. passport
- Certificate of Naturalization
- Tribal ID card

Proof of identity:

- Social Security card
- Certified copy of a marriage certificate or judgment of divorce
- A driver license or ID card from another state (this must be surrendered to get a Wisconsin driver license or ID card)

Proof of Wisconsin residency – Documents listed below must include your name and current Wisconsin residence street address:

- Pay check or stub or earning statement with your name and Wisconsin address, and your employer's name and address, issued within the last 90 days. Your employer's telephone number may be required for verification.
- A bill for water, gas, electricity, landline telephone, cable or cell phone service issued within the last 90 days. Electronic copies are acceptable.
- An account statement from a Wisconsin bank/financial institution issued within the last 90 days. Electronic copies are acceptable.
- Certified school record or transcript that identifies you by name, shows your current address and is issued within the last 90 days for the most recent school period.
- Mortgage documents for a residential property located in Wisconsin.
- Community based/assisted living residential contracts.
- Your current valid homeowner, renter or motor vehicle insurance policy dated within one year of application.
- A letter from a homeless shelter.

Proof of U.S. citizenship, legal permanent resident, conditional resident or temporary visitor status:

- U.S. state or local government-issued certificate of birth (certified copy - birth registration and hospital certificates are not acceptable).
- Valid U.S. passport
- U.S. Certificate of Naturalization or U.S. Certificate of Citizenship

The Government Accountability Board notes that an unexpired Wisconsin driver license is the most common acceptable photo ID for voting. An expired Wisconsin driver license or ID is acceptable too as long as it expired within two years after the most recent general election. In other words, if a Wisconsin ID or driver license expired in December 2010, it can still be used for voting purposes in the November 2012 general election.

The most common documents are listed above. For a complete list of acceptable documents and more information on how to get a Wisconsin ID card, visit the Wisconsin DMV online at www.wisconsindmv.gov.

For more information on voting in Wisconsin, visit the Wisconsin Government Accountability Board online at www.gab.wi.gov.

Peltier Awareness Walk set to begin on west coast

By Travis Cottrell
Kalihwisaks

It has been 35 years since Leonard Peltier began serving his two consecutive life imprisonment sentences. Peltier was found guilty of first-degree murder in the shooting of two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents in 1977. Despite the verdict, accusations of federal abuse of power, violation of human rights, manufactured witnesses, intimation, and manipulation have been shouted since the beginning of Peltier's trial. The outrage surrounding his controversial case has spanned generations. Just as the cries of injustice still exist, so to does the support of Peltier.

On December 18, 2011 the Leonard Peltier Walk for Human Rights will get underway. The five-month walk will begin on Alcatraz Island, travel across southern states, and end in Washington, DC on May 18, 2012.

Dorothy Ninham, who is a member of the Leonard Peltier Defense Committee, will be traveling to the west coast to participate in the walk.

"I don't have an exact number of how many will be involved in the walk but many have contacted us and are interested. We have six to eight people who will walk the entire distance but what usually happens is that people join the walk in their native state, walk their state, and then drop off and someone else comes in," Ninham said.

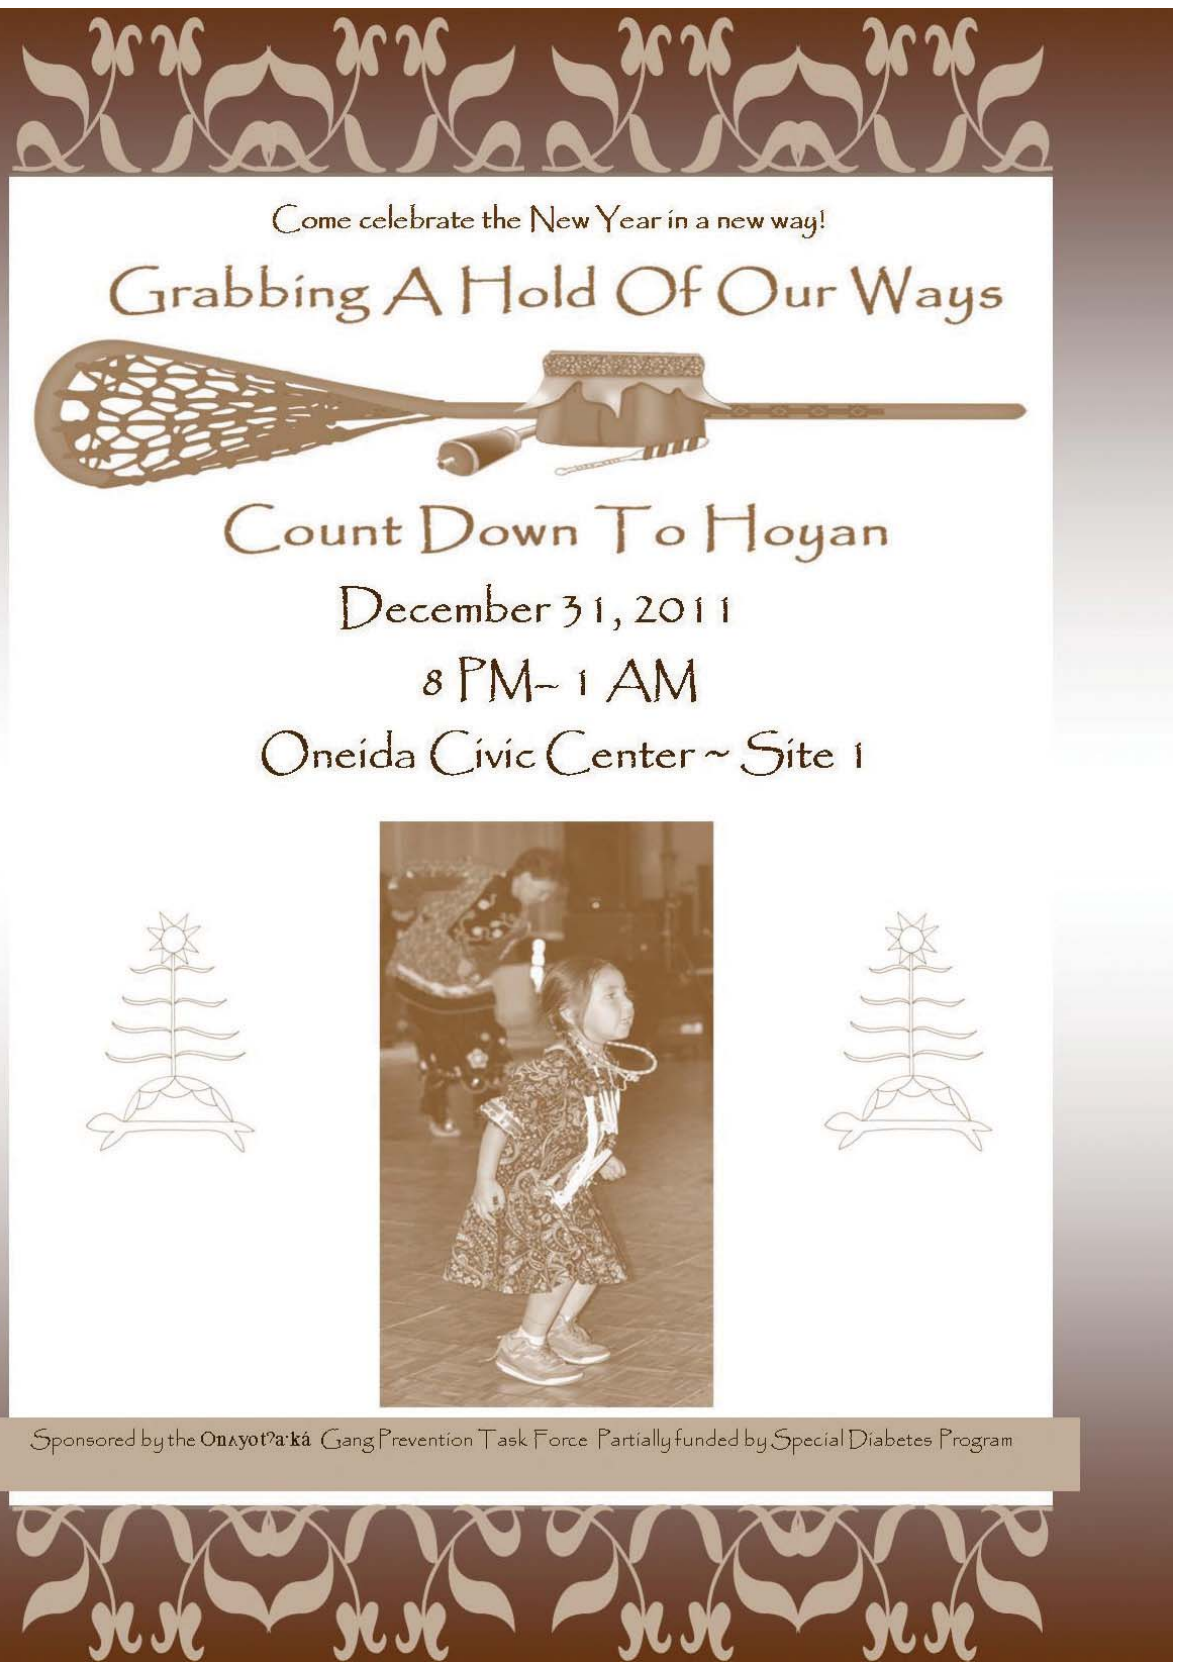
A group of ten Oneida participates left on Monday, December 12, 2011 for California and the start on the awareness walk.

The walk is intended to raise awareness about Leonard Peltier's case. Aside from the case, participants hope to raise awareness on issues that Peltier is passionate about to this day.

"As we're walking across the country we're going to be talking about a lot of the stuff that happens in Indian Country, a lot of the human rights violations that people aren't aware of or that they hear about but skim over and think that it isn't real. We're going to try to be the voice," says Ninham.

The planned path of the walk has been altered multiple times due to the amount of communities hoping to have the walk pass through their area. Communities are continually contacting the walk's organizers hoping to get an idea of when they will arrive in their community.

Having worked with Peltier in the Milwaukee area prior to his arrest, Ninham hopes to share her knowledge of the man with those who are unaware of the situation.



"The thing that we want people in Indian Country to know, because a lot of them aren't aware and a lot of the younger generation isn't aware of this case, and they hear about him in a shoot out with FBI agents but so much of what they hear isn't true. He is a really compassionate man, if anyone got to meet him and know him they would feel that they need to get involved to help him," Ninham expressed.

Information of the Leonard Peltier, the Peltier Defense Committee, and the Awareness Walk can be found on their website, http://www.whoisleonardpeltier.info . The event's website also features a diagram of the walking path as well as participant's blogs about the current progress.

The Canandaigua Treaty

By Eliza Skenandore
Oneida Cultural Heritage

The Canandaigua Treaty was signed in 1794 between the Six Nations and the United States. It is the foundation of the Iroquois sovereignty. This yearly commemoration is a time of rededication of this agreement which was made to secure perpetual peace and friendship between the six nations and the United States. Over 1,600 Lotinoshoni representatives attended the treaty signing in 1794.

The treaty defined the lands/reservations of the Iroquois nations. It also defined the relationship: each party would handle their own internal problems and never disturb nor prevent "free use and enjoyment" of their said lands. The commemoration of this treaty helps to ensure that the "chain of friendship" and agreements between our nations remain vibrant and in good and current working order.

The commemoration of the Canandaigua Treaty took place on November 11, 2011, at 2 p.m. on the front lawn of the Ontario County Court House on Main Street in Canandaigua, New York, and happens annually there. It was important for us to join together in a time of Peace and Friendship to commemorate this Treaty between the people of the United States of America and the Haudenosaunee people, and there were several representatives of the Oneida Tribe of Wisconsin at the 2011 commemoration.

Check out the Canandaigua Treaty Day on YouTube
http://www.youtube.com/user/OneidaWIMedia

In commemoration of the Canandaigua Treaty a ceremony was held and speeches were given in front of the Ontario County Court House in Canandaigua, NY.

Robert Odowi Porter, President of Seneca Nation of Indians, spoke at the Canandaigua Primary School in Canandaigua, NY.

By attending this event we were able to learn about and gather more information about the Canandaigua Treaty. In addition, attending this celebration brings it into our hearts so that we can bring this fellowship of peace and friendship back to our Nation to expand all our people's learning and understanding of the importance and significance of the Canandaigua Treaty.

We would like to further this fellowship and teaching, bringing it into line with the Cultural Heritage Department objectives to offer our own celebration of this event as well as further teachings and trainings. It is important to honor and promote Lotinoshoni accomplishments, so be looking for an expansion of this knowledge in the form of programs or events next year.

Oneida members initiate sharing of Native Culture, Heritage with co-workers

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

To acknowledge and celebrate Native American Awareness month this past November, Sheila Serrano and Jeffery Jimenez, both of the Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin brought a Native Traveling Museum to their co-workers at Harley-Davidson Motor Company in Milwaukee. Over 150 Harley-Davidson employees and contractors viewed the exhibit while it was on display, according to Serrano.

The exhibits and displays allowed employees to get a glimpse of the Native American heritage from the past to the present. "There were numerous hands-on exhibits, which included the white corn, which was provided to us by the Oneida Tourism Department," she explained. A recreated Oneida Longhouse, beadwork and rattles, which were borrowed from the South Eastern

Oneida Tribal Services, was also on display. Those items, along with traditional regalia, hand drums, cornhusk dolls and more – which were all from their personal belongings - provided a unique cultural experience for everyone who stopped by. Many guests shared their own childhood memories growing up in Northern WI and visits to tribal events and Powwows. It was a glance into the Native American culture. "Jeff and I are proud to have been able to share the experience with our co-workers", said Serrano. "We could not have done it without the help of Kirby Metoxen, Rich Figueroa and Debra Ushakow, Yaw^ko," she added.

Did You Get Your Purple Carts? Now What?

Submitted by
Amy Spears

All Oneida Trash and Recycle Collection Customers should have received your new purple carts. If you have not, call 869-4549. The new carts are purple, but have different color lids. The purple is for trash and the blue is for recyclables.

Old carts need to be returned to Veolia, including the gray waste management carts. They are the property of Veolia per our contract and must be returned to them. Please place the old carts at the curbside, empty, and Veolia will pick them up. It may take a few days or more for your bin to be picked up but Veolia will pick up as time permits. The small blue recycle bins that were handed out by Environmental may be kept. If you do not wish to keep your blue bin, please place it roadside with your cart and Veolia will collect and recycle them.

Some customers may have had two of the new trash carts delivered to their residence. This was done for our customers who previously had two trash carts with the old service. Utilities will be billing you for the extra trash carts. The trash carts are $65.00 and you will be billed an extra $9.90 per month on your monthly bill. If you do not wish to keep your extra trash cart or if you need an extra trash cart, please call 869-4549. Do not use your recycle cart for trash.

We have had some customers call regarding the size of the new trash carts. We did switch to one size bin, the 65 gallon. This was done to not only make the billing and service more efficient, but to also help our customers reduce their amount of solid waste landfilled and to recycle more. The 65 gallon size is the industry standard for the average household. For those households that produce more trash you are able to add an additional trash cart for the prices listed above. Why should we reduce our waste? Plain and simple we are running out of landfill space. The new landfill in Appleton, where our trash will be going, only has a life expectancy of 10 years! Where will the next landfill be? Some things you can do to reduce your amount of trash and stay with one 65 gallon cart are:

- Recycle-Make sure you are recycling all recyclable material. All types of paper and cardboard, Plastic containers that have a neck, Glass food and beverage containers, Metal/aluminum containers, aerosol cans. You can also recycle plastic bags at many local stores.
- Compost-You can compost your fruit and vegetable waste, egg shells, coffee grounds and filters, tea bags, yard waste including grass, leaves, wood chips, and plant materials.
- Compact-Make sure you are compacting all trash items before placing them in the garbage bag and before placing your bag in your trash cart.

Some items that you should not place in your trash cart and that are banned from all Wisconsin landfill's include:

- Used motor oil and oil filters
- Yard waste

- Recyclable materials
- Electronic waste: TV's, microwaves, computer and computer peripherals, cell phones, cordless phones, dvd players, game systems etc...

If you are interested in learning how to compost please call or email me. If I get enough people interested I will hold a class this month to teach customers how to do outdoor composting. If you have any questions regarding the above information please call: Amy Spears at 869-4549 or email at: aspears@oneidanation.org

- Use the blue lid bin for Recyclables
- Leave your old bins at the curb for pick-up
- Call 869-4549 if you need another bin

Recycling during the Holiday season

Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources

The holiday season is a time of giving and sharing with family and friends. While enjoying these traditions, you can also take steps to reduce waste, save money and be creative while making the holidays green.

Holiday Tips

An average Wisconsin resident generates three quarters of a ton of solid waste each year. This amounts to more than four pounds per day, including both household waste and an individual's share of commercial waste. During the holidays, waste can increase with extra packaging, gift wrap, disposable dishes, leftover food and more.

But the holidays don't need to be a time of waste. From using less packaging, to buying environmentally friendly gifts, to creative reuse of materials in decorations, the holiday season offers many opportunities to reduce waste, help the environment and save money. Here are some simple steps to help you throw away less and recycle and reuse more.

Holiday Preparation Tips

- Instead of incandescent lights, use energy-efficient LED lights for holiday decorations. Have lights that no longer work? Many companies accept used light strings for recycling and may even offer a discount on new lights. Talk to your local retailer or search online for details.
- Use a timer to turn off holiday lights when no one is awake to enjoy them.
- Potted trees are a great waste-free alternative to cut trees and can be planted in the yard in the spring.
- At holiday parties, use washable plates, cups, silverware, tablecloths and napkins instead of disposables.

Gift-Giving Tips

- Look for gifts with little or no packaging, or packaging that can be easily reused or recycled. Remember to bring your own reusable bags to bring your purchases home.
- Give experiences, not things. Give your family and friends tickets to a concert, gift cards for a lunch out, or simply set aside time to spend together. Experiences create memories that last longer than any material thing, and they create much less waste.
- Give gifts that help your friends and family live greener. Possibilities include bus tickets, state park passes, compost bins, reusable grocery bags and rechargeable batteries and chargers.
- Support recycling by purchasing gifts made of recycled material.
- Wrap presents in old comics, reusable cloth, or your own artwork. Creating your own wrapping paper from scrap paper is a great activity to do with kids.

After Holiday Tips

- After the holidays, bring your tree outside to provide winter shelter for birds and animals. In the spring, chip the tree and use it for mulch.
- Trim smaller branches off your tree to use as cover for garden plants. Use the trunk as the base of a trellis or as a tomato stake.
- Use dried branches as kindling for fires. Chop the trunk to dry and use as logs.
- Chip your tree to use as mulch, or check with your local government to see if they collect trees for mulching. If your community doesn't offer this service, check earth911.org to find a tree recycler near you. If you live on the Reservation, the Conservation department will take trees at the community composting site.
- In upcoming years, continue to buy live trees rather artificial. Following the steps above, your tree will be recycled back into the environment. Artificial trees use resources to create and may end up in the landfill after a few years of use.
- Don't throw away your holiday greeting cards; use them to make gift tags next year or donate to organizations that could reuse them.
- Save and reuse boxes, ribbon, gift bags and wrapping paper from year to year. Recycle paper products that are no longer useable.

This information is from the Wisconsin DNR. Please contact Amy Spears at 869-4549 if you have any questions. The Oneida Community Compost Site is located at N8047 Cty Rd. U.

Concealed carry law in Oneida

By Shad L. Webster
Natural Resources Director

The 2011 Firearm Season was a safe and accident free nine days of hunting for Oneida Sportsmen. During the season, Conservation Officers were contacted by a number of individuals inquiring about the Concealed Carry Law and what the implementation of this law meant for Oneida Sportsmen transporting firearms during their time afield.

The Oneida Nation has adopted a resolution regarding the Concealed Carry Law. The resolution recognizes that the current 2011-12 Oneida Nation Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping Laws require Sportsmen to transport all firearms in an appropriate carry case. Here is the Oneida Nation Hunting, Fishing, and Trapping laws, violation and sanctions for illegal transportation of firearms.

Law

45.7-5. Firearms, Traps and Bows. It is unlawful to:

(b) Transport any firearm in a vehicle, unless it is encased and unloaded. A firearm must be within a carrying case without any part of the firearm exposed. A muzzle-loader is considered unloaded when the cap, primer (flint), is not in place.

Violation

21. Possession of uncased air rifle, firearm or bow or crossbow in a motor vehicle.

Sanction

1st Violation– $150.00 fine.
2nd Violation– $300.00 fine.

Please contact the Oneida Conservation Department at (920) 869-1450, with any questions or concerns.

Notice of Availability

Project Description:
The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is proposing to develop a One-Stop Gas Station and Convenience Store on a 2.5 acre site at 501 Packerland Drive. The project is proposed to alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts related to the 2012 closure of the Mason Street Bridge (part of WI DOT's State Highway 41 improvement). The site is a prime retail location based upon traffic flows in west Green Bay.

A draft environmental assessment (EA) has been prepared regarding the proposed action in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The draft EA contains project information, effected environment, project alternatives and consultation letters.

Comments were requested from the US Fish and Wildlife Service regarding possible impacts to threatened and endangered species, and from the Oneida Cultural Heritage Officer. No significant impacts to these resources are anticipated and recommendations from these sources will be followed.

Need for Project:
To help alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts resulting from closure of the Mason Street Bridge related to State Highway 41 improvement. Development will provide jobs, and it will make use of an existing property that is currently vacant.

Project Alternatives:
This site was chosen based on local traffic flows in west Green Bay. This site is currently vacant and is owned by the tribe. The no-action alternative would not address the potential loss of revenue and would not provide jobs in the local community.

Comments & Availability:
Interested parties can obtain copies of the draft EA from Oneida Environmental, Health & Safety Division at N7332 Water Circle Place, P.O. Box 365, Oneida WI. 543155.

My Scoop

I Hate Spiders

By Geronimo Pocan
Thunderhawk Times

Something you don't know about me is that I hate spiders. On the bible I hate spiders.

They are "psychos" and they are out to get me.

I hate daddy long legs, too. They can go far, far away.

There's a big nasty spider that just chills on my porch and every time I try to kill it, it just sits there and doesn't move. The other day it traveled into my house and made me mad. Then, everyone in my house just sat there and stared at the dang thing, not even trying to kill it. Then they pick it up and bring it outside. When I told them to kill the thing, no one would listen to me. I almost "yakked" when I looked at it.

Oh and there's another spider that just sits in my bathroom and watches people take showers. It like has no purpose, for real. Then I have to sit there and spray it down with window washer type stuff until it dies.

I'd rather have snakes in my house. They like, slither around and kill ugly flies, or is that frogs? But at least they're not spiders.

27th Annual Science Fair Underway

By Thunderhawk Times Staff

Since 1974, Oneida Nation students have been participating in an annual science fair.

The fair has many purposes including providing Native American students with an opportunity to conduct individual research, problem solve, and develop and display science projects. It also gives students the chance to apply their knowledge of math and science and to interact with professional role models in science, mathematics and engineering.

A Lot Going on at ONHS

By Thunderhawk Times Staff

As usual, the days leading up to Christmas break are hectic ones at Oneida Nation High School. Science Fair is full-swing with students working hard to finish projects. According to science teacher, Becky Nutt, there are a few very good projects.

The art department is also busy, having just wrapped up the annual Oneida Nation Museum art sale.

The freshman class spent time making fringe-cut blankets to be given to friends and family for Christmas.

Other things going on this week include home and away basketball games, reading testing, and wrapping up projects, papers and other work that is due before Christmas Break—which, by the way, begins on Friday, December 23 and runs through Monday, January 2. Classes resume on Tuesday, January 3.

Wooden stick!

By Eddie Powless
Thunderhawk Times

If you're into lacrosse, you dream of a great wooden lacrosse stick.

One guy who makes top of the line wooden sticks is Alfie Jacques, an Onondaga Nation lacrosse stick maker.

Alfie says, "I don't cut corners. I make the best stick I possibly can."

I have witnessed one of his sticks that my brother, Kendrick, was using. It was gorgeous. It threw great and had a nice catch pocket. It was shiny and waterproof. It was obvious that he doesn't cut corners.

Kendrick said that the stick was "the Bentley of lacrosse sticks. The balance, netting, weight, and craftsmanship were superior to any lacrosse stick I have ever used."

When it got rained on, nothing happened to it. Alfie's signature was on it.

Now I've never met Alfie Jacques in person, but you can see him on YouTube talking about his sticks. And they are so popular that he says he can't take any calls because he has so many orders already.

Instructor Kevin Schoenebeck and assistant Instructor Brian Jordan went to San Jose California for Black Belt testing in Danzan Ryu Ju Jitsu. Brian Jordan testing for his 2nd Degree Black Belt and Kevin Schoenebeck testing for his full teaching Credentials. The testing was over 5 hours long. There are several "boards" which must be demonstrated: Hand Techniques, Throws & grappling , then defense against knife and gun. Then the student must be able to blend all of this together.

"It's a long day and very challenging physically and mentally" says Jordan.

GTC set to tackle tabled judiciary, LPA

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

A new year will ring out on January 1, but the Annual General Tribal Council (GTC) meeting on Monday, January 2 will have some ghosts of GTC's past.

Perhaps the biggest tabled item on the agenda is the Judiciary Law which was tabled at a February 5, 2011 Special GTC meeting. Chief Council Jo Anne House stated the GTC seemed close to creating a new judiciary system to replace the current Appeals Commission, but got hung up on qualifications for judges.

"There were some questions about qualifications that they couldn't resolve on the floor. Trying to amend things on the floor of the General Tribal Council is difficult. It's a lot of people who don't agree on a word, or two or three," said House.

After going through four months of community meetings, the Judiciary Law is back along with a tabled petition from Loretta Metoxen regarding qualifications for judges as well as the make-up of disciplinary panels.

The requirements recommended by the community workgroup are that potential judges have a Bachelor's degree, or eight years of experience working within any court system or tribal hearing body. The Metoxen petition asks for a Bachelor's in either American Indian Studies, Criminal Justice, Paralegal Studies, Human Science, or Political Science, or four or more years of experience serving in trial or appellate court as a lawyer, judge, tribal advocate, paralegal, or certified professional in Indian law in tribal court.

"The General Tribal Council has any number of options in front of it. The basic ones would be they could pick the judiciary off the table, accept the community workgroup's recommendations and adopt it. If they do that, then Loretta Metoxen's petition is moot," said House. "Or they could reject the community workgroup's, take Loretta's petition off the table, and adopt that petition. In the alternative worst case scenario, they could reject it all and we're back at square one."

House credits the Appeals Commission for establishing rules of order, but that according to historical documents, it was only meant as a temporary solution.

"I think the Appeals Commission has been our first good step. The judiciary is a good second step. It formalizes it on a different level. It goes hand in hand in what we're trying to do with the Constitutional amendments … and sets up that more formal system," she said.

Also coming back to the GTC is the Legislative Procedures Act (LPA). If adopted, the LPA will replace the Administrative Procedures Act (APA). Initially the LPA was presented at the November 20, 2010 GTC.

"That in part was tabled because there was a concern by the membership that somehow the Legislative Procedures Act would prohibit a

Oneida pilot part of aircrew of the year

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

Chief Pilot Bill Quistorf of Washington state's Snohomish County Sherriff's Office Air Support likes to face a challenge. His ability to tackle those challenges earned him a national award.

The National Airborne Law Enforcement Association (ALEA) recognized Quistorf along with his deputy pilot as the "Aircrew of the Year".

"The award was a definitely was a surprise. My sergeant wrote up the award," said Quistorf. "I had no idea that we would be selected. They flew me and my deputy pilot to the banquet in New Orleans a little over a month ago."

Quisdorf's crew performs law enforcement operations in the county and search and rescue operations in the demanding environment of the Cascade Mountains. The award is the top annual recognition the ALEA gives out.

The daily challenges of his work keeps Quistorf on his toes.

"Each mission we do is interesting, and challenging, our bread and butter is search and rescue (missions)," said Quisdorf. "It's like a puzzle. I like that it s challenging and we talk amongst our crew about how we are going to get the person out the safest way we can."

Quisdorf and his crew respond to roughly 80 calls per year with the busy seasons being the summer and fall. "Winter and spring are pretty slow. We do get an occasional call (like) avalanche calls but those are pretty rare in the wintertime," said Quisdorf.

petition from moving forward, or allow the Business Committee or the (Legislative Operating Committee) LOC to say no to a petition, and that's not really the case," said House.

"The only thing the Administrative Procedures Act does is say is if you have a petition that amends a law, adopts, repeals, etc. it has to go through a public hearing, because good laws need public comment. It recognizes the second half of it that a comment period allows a legislature, the business committee, to accept those comments, consider them, weigh them against all the opposing viewpoints, and come up with the appropriate language."

According to the language of the proposed LPA, individuals can send a written request to the Legislation Reference Office, and that request can be denied by the LOC. However, a written request for legislation is not the same as a GTC petition which needs the signatures of 50 GTC members.

"At the General Tribal Council meeting, there was a significant amount of discussion about that they're taking away the ability of the member to petition, it's not true. All we're doing is saying if you want to amend a law, good laws require public hearing and comment, the time to digest and respond, and you're petition has to go through that. One of the hard parts is a petition filed by a member is it's really a request to hold a GTC meeting. As such, it doesn't have the weight of anything behind it to do anything other than to hold that GTC meeting," said House.

Under the APA, proposed laws or amendments to laws would undergo a fiscal estimate, legislative analysis and a public hearing before going to either the Oneida Business Committee (OBC) or the GTC for adoption.

"The only thing the Administrative Procedures Act does is say is if you have a petition that amends a law, adopts, repeals, etc. It has to go through a public hearing, because good laws need public comment. It recognizes the second half of it that a comment period allows a legislature, the Business Committee, to accept those comments, consider them, weigh them against all the opposing viewpoints, and come up with the appropriate language," said House. "Doing that on the fly leads to bad law that compounds itself over time."

House stated the proposed LPA may have saved some debate on the proposed Judiciary Law.

"We had essentially a public hearing period in a General Tribal Council meeting, and we weren't able to come up with language that worked. That's why we hold public hearings under the legislative processes," she said.

OHA keeping costs down by turning inventory green

By Nate Wisneski
Kalihwisaks

The Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) knows the value of a dollar and is making sure their dollar stretches as far as it can. OHA's green initiative has been running for some time as the program also helps their clients.

"OHA tenants can expect to pay lower utilities and the quality is in line to reduce maintenance and repair costs to the unit," said OHA's Executive Director Dale Wheelock. "It makes the units affordable by reducing utility cost the tenant or home buyer has to pay each month."

When purchasing new property OHA prefers energy efficient homes or property that can be converted to become more energy efficient. This fits into their pay now versus pay later philosophy.

"OHA is currently purchasing and conducting rehabilitation of units in a buyers' market. Once purchased we upgrade the furnace and hot water heaters to energy star, insulation upgrades, replace windows if needed, and replace roofs," Wheelock said.

According to Wheelock, the benefit of spending money upfront is an easy and necessary choice. OHA funding is received from federal grants and rent income. With the current state of the economy leading to feared cuts in funding, efforts to reduce future costs is needed.

"The cost of unit is approximately 40 percent of the cost of unit over its life span of 50 years. The remaining 60 percent is the cost to maintain the building. It only makes sense to build with low maintenance materials that last longer," he said. "Have you seen building material cost going lower over time? No, the prices raise each year."

With older homes part of OHA's inventory work is in progress to make them green.

"Rehabilitation of 132 units is taking place on old housing stock in the form of replacing furnaces, hot water heaters, increasing insulation, windows, doors and roofs," said Wheelock.

OHA is utilizing federal grant money along with an annual rehabilitation budget to increase energy efficiency of their housing units.

In a time when businesses are stretching their dollar for the most value, OHA is making changes that not only benefit them but their clients.

Buchman, Vermelia
July 3, 1923 – December 24, 2011

Vermelia "Babe" Vera Buchman (Doxtater), 88, born July 3, 1923 she lived a complete life before her passing on December 24, 2011 with her family by her side, daughter of the late Reuben and Wilhelmina (Skenandore) Doxtater.

Babe was raised primarily by her father Reuben and older sisters. They traveled about performing a vaudeville act. She slept while the family all played musical instruments with father Reuben jigging while jumping rope. She attended Sturgeon Bay Sebastian High School and was the baton leader of the marching band. During World War II, Babe was one of the original "Rosie the Riveters." She was a welder working along with her sister Velma in the Milwaukee area until the end of the war. She enjoyed square dancing with her husband Earl. She was a talented seamstress and made fashioned clothes for her entire family, her granddaughter Angie still holds her First Communion dress made by grandma. Her professional career included working at Tuttle Press out of Appleton for 20 years and later as a seamstress for the Oneida Wardrobe Dept. where she later retired. She enjoyed bowling with co-workers, friends and family. She liked to deer hunt and would often see her children and grandchildren harvest many deer on her home property in Black Creek. One of her most enjoyable past times was making porcelain dolls and ceramic pieces, firing them in her own kiln, painting them and making the doll clothes. Babe's dolls were the center of attention at numerous craft shows that she attended with her daughter Nancy. She stayed active in life, even in her later years. She was always ready and willing to take anyone in and her caring and warm approach in dealing with any situation could ease anyone's worries. She was a tremendous mother, grandmother, and friend beyond anyone's measurement. She was like a rock for her children and grandchildren and those that knew her. Babe held a personal and separate attachment to each of her children. While she is in a better place now, she will always have the unbreakable bond of love from her family and friends.

A thank you from the family to the Unity nurses who assisted her. A very special and more than appreciation can say, "Thank you," to son Mark who has assisted Babe over the years, especially the past few months that have been the most trying for her. Through thick and thin Mark was there. A heart felt thank you goes to Anna Johns Nursing home staff who watched over and cared for her, assisting her in her final time of need.

Dive into the New Year

Jerry Hill completed his goal of swimming 50 miles one year after embarking on his fitness quest. Hill has earned a place in the 50 Mile Club membership and a tee-shirt.

By Dawn Walschinski
Kalihwisaks

Jerry Kaihuhatati Hill gave himself a present he started creating one year ago on Christmas Eve. Hill completed 50 miles of swimming and earned a spot in the Oneida Family Fitness (OFF) Center 50 Mile Club.

"I just wondered if I could do it. I gave myself two years and I did it in one year," he said.

Hill had been physically active with running, but found swimming to have unique demands.

"When I first started, I had to play around and get in shape for swimming," he said. "It took about 3, 4 weeks, and then I started swimming quarter miles, and then when that got kind of easy, then I did it for half a mile."

Hill swam a half mile every other day until he got close to his goal, and began swimming a half mile every day for the past two weeks.

"It's good exercise, I think more people ought to do it," said Hill who earned a 50 Mile Club tee-shirt and a certificate of achievement. Hill credits OFF Aquatic Supervisor Teresa Sieja-Holschuh for his success in reaching his goal.

"We want them to be committed to really working at something that sounds really impossible," said Sieja-Holschuh. "They really can achieve it in small, little steps."

Most members take two years to complete the 50 miles.

"We have some that take a little bit longer than that," she said. "We have those that whip through it pretty quick."

According to Sieja-Holschuh, 31 people have completed the challenge.

"We had 700 people join, and kind of drop by the wayside," she said.

Swimmers attempting the challenge can count laps from other pools toward their mileage.

"It's kind of something that's more fun and exciting for that person who wants to swim," she said. "We've had some people who once they've completed their 50 miles will continue to do it over and over again."

Hill didn't think of himself as a lap swimmer at first, but later realized his Oneida name Kaihuhatati should have been a clue.

"It means Running River," he explained. "Yeah, I never thought about that."

Oneida's Energy Development Program

Submitted photo

Rendering of the ORCCC currently under construction; solar collectors located on top of the building and centered in the photo.

By Mike Troge
Oneida Environmental Health and Safety

Energy is an important subject for the Oneida Community. As of 2008, energy costs for Tribal homes are estimated at $5 million and for Tribal buildings, $3 million. The cost of energy is continuing to rise and the impending future costs of a changing climate indicate a need to take a hard look at our energy policies. Consider that 100% of the energy that is used by Oneida is imported from outside of the Community; that means that the Community does not have a voice around their energy future.

You have read in past issues about the Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) and their assistance to Tribal members to reduce energy costs in their homes. Heating and electricity can get expensive for homeowners. The same is true for large facilities. Tribal departments have been working on these issues to give Oneida a bright energy future. The following is a timeline of activities:

In 2007, the Oneida Energy Team was formed to develop a strategic path for Oneida to look at energy issues in the Community. The Team is made up of several departments to bring their unique talents together for a common cause. Four initiatives were established: Residential Energy, Building Operations, Transportation, and Renewable Energy. Each initiative has a specific plan to address specific energy needs of the Tribe.

Oneida has received several grants to address energy costs in Tribal buildings. In 2009, the Energy Efficiency and Conservation Block Grant (EECBG) from Department of Energy (DOE) provided $324,700 to supplement a new electrician position, provide lighting improvements in Tribal buildings, fund home energy audits for community members, and install a solar thermal system on the new Oneida Resident Centered Care Community (ORCCC). Combined funds from the Tribe, EECBG, Wisconsin Public Service, and Wisconsin Focus on Energy will be used to install 48 solar collectors that will provide more than 50% of the hot water needs in the facility.

The Energy Efficiency Deployment grant is a recent grant awarded by the DOE to the Tribe for $227,100. The Department of Public Works and the Environmental Resources Board (ERB) are administering this grant to be used for energy audits on more than 40 Tribal facilities.

Another DOE grant called the First Steps grant is providing $183,000 for strategic planning and is administered by the Eco-Services Department and ERB. It will be used for feasibility work around energy development, including renewables.

The cost for renewables has been a roller-coaster ride over the last several decades. This past decade, incentives were high and installation costs had decreased considerably. However as incentives continue to dwindle down to zero and costs start to level off, we now need to be increasingly strategic in the way we invest in energy.

A wise mix of different technologies will help to lessen the impact of economic ups and downs, allow Oneida to base a portion of their local economy on locally produced energy, and it will provide a seed for future job creation. Renewable technologies include bioenergy, solar, wind, and geothermal.

The primary focus of the Energy Development Program is to 1) investigate and implement local options for energy production, 2) educate about wise building construction techniques and conservation, 3) encourage greater management of imported energy, and 4) promote thoughtful integration of renewable energy into the Community.

To give you a hint of what's to come, we will be developing a website to provide information to the Community about energy. We are also planning a biodiesel workshop for January 18, 2012 primarily geared toward agricultural producers. Other information and events, including an update about the wind data we have collected, will be announced in future articles and on the website. Stay tuned!

For more information, contact the following persons: for the Energy Development Program, Mike Troge 920-869-4572; for home energy audits, Laura Manthe 920-496-5360; for Tribal operations, Ray Olson or Kevin Rentmeester 920-869-1059.

Travel Report

Often Oneida Tribal members question Business Committee travel. As Tribal Chairman for a little more than 4 months now, I've done more travel than I had planned. That travel has been paid for from Oneida Tribal funds, money that belongs to the Oneida General Tribal Council and the membership of the Oneida Tribe and it is to the membership that this Report is directed to.

On November 29th thru December 2nd, I attended the White House Tribal Nations Conference in Washington DC. The highlights of the trip were as follows:

White House Briefings and Listening Session With Tribal Leaders

Attendance at this Session was limited to one Tribal leader per Tribe. Attending were tribal chairmen, presidents, chiefs and governors. Representing the President's Office were representatives from the Departments of Education, Agriculture, Housing, Interior and Justice. Tribal leaders asked very good questions and demanded action over words as they told of their needs on their reservations back home. I was able to ask the first question which was Oneida's need to use our own cattle to feed our own children at our own schools. Currently there are U.S.D.A restrictions which inhibit Oneida using Oneida raised beef to feed our school children. I was told that through collaborative efforts between the Departments of the Interior, Education and Agriculture, the Federal government is working on a solution. My thoughts were twofold. I too, am now looking for action over words as we seek to provide more opportunities to provide our Oneida people with better quality and more healthy foods. My other thought was regarding this Business Committee's efforts to restructure and realign our own Tribal divisions to increase collaboration in order to better serve our children, elders and all Oneidas- all of whom depend on strong and effective Oneida Tribal governing practices.

Reception for Retiring Congressman Dale Kildee

On December 1st, I attended a reception honoring Michigan Congressman Dale Kildee, who will be retiring next year after serving 19 terms in House of Representatives. Congressman Kildee, who is not Indian, is widely recognized in Indian Country as a steadfast defender of Indian people and Indian tribal sovereignty. Indian Country is hopeful that his replacement will also be a strong advocate for Indian issues in the legislature.

Speeches by President Obama and Department of Interior Secretary Larry Salazar

On the last day of the conference, more than 500 tribal leaders gathered to listen to President Barack Obama and the Secretary of the Department of Interior Larry Salazar (the Bureau of Indian Affairs is within the Department of Interior). Speaking first was Salazar. He spoke of a picture that was once in back of the Interior Secretary's desk. It was a picture of the Navajo people returning to their homelands years after being forced from their lands at gunpoint. When he took Office, the picture was gone. He was told that former President George Bush's appointed Secretary of the Interior Gale Norton had taken it down because she did feel that Indian tribes should have any special recognition by the Federal government. When Bush was gone, President Obama appointed Larry Salazar to replace Norton. Now, that picture is back behind the Secretary of Interior's desk. It is a picture that not only recognizes Indian history and the effects upon Indian people brought upon them by failed Federal policy for so long, but also recognizes the special relationship between Indian tribes and the Federal government. It should also remind all Indian people who respect their own heritage, the importance of having a President who appointed a Secretary of the Interior who supports the story of our people which is a story of the past and hopefully of the future. President Obama followed with a speech which showed he also is a supporter of Indian tribes and Indian sovereignty. Thank you for reading this Travel Report.

Sincerely,
Ed Delgado

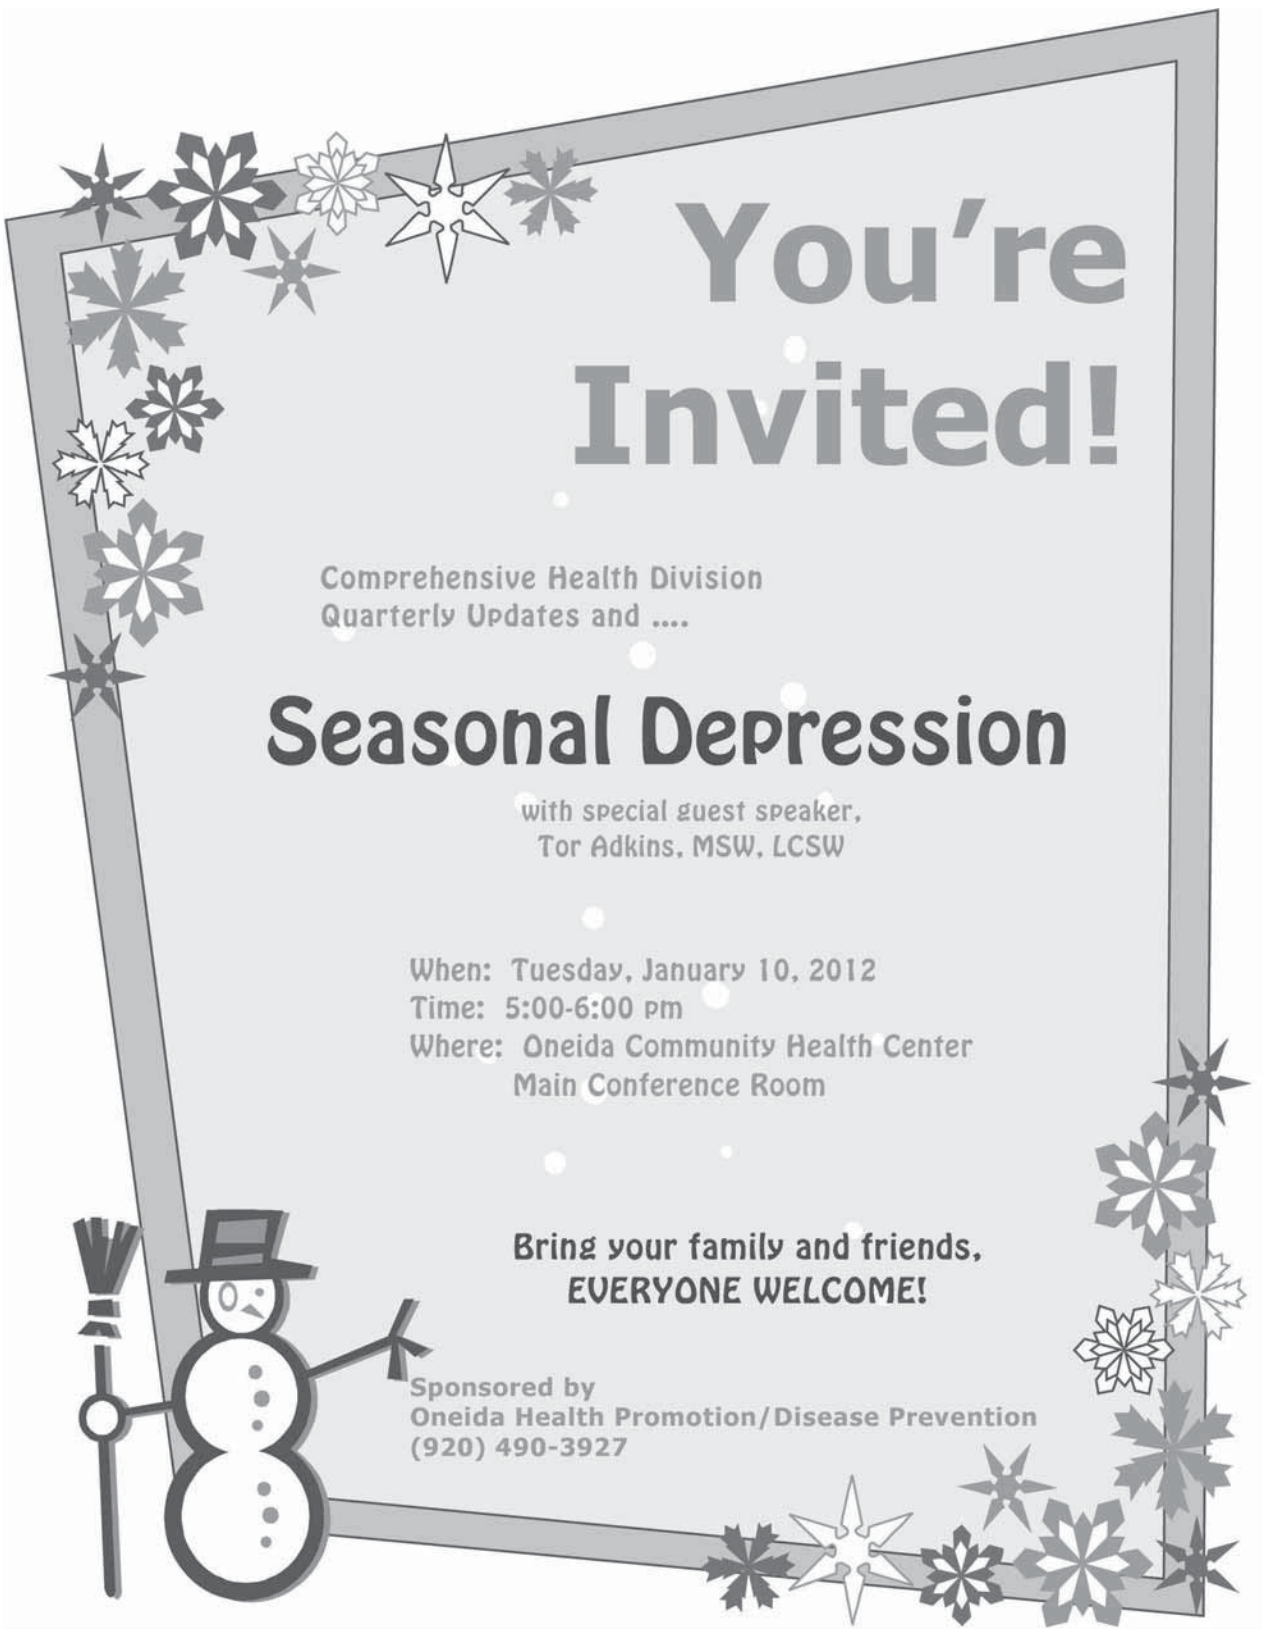
Thank You,

I want to extend a sincere Thank You for a job well done to all those involved in the Elder Christmas Party held on December 15th. There were many individuals as well as departments who contributed their time and effort into making this a big success for our elders.

First of all I would like to thank Florence Petri and her entire staff from Elderly Services. Her department was instrumental in planning, organizing and staffing the Christmas Party so everything went off without a hitch. Many hours were put in to make this event happen and the staff was present to see that everyone received a gift bag as well as helping with the Bingo games and delivering the door prizes.



I would also like to thank the supervisors from Elderly Services and the Business Committee staff for gathering the donations and preparing the gift bags prior to the event and also manning the registration tables as well as handing out daubers and match play coupons.

I would also like to thank all the departments who contributed items to be used as prizes in both the Bingo games and door prizes and for the items donated to be placed in the gift bags. These departments include Oneida Bingo & Casino, Retail, Oneida Police Department and the volunteers who made the blankets, Tourism, Communications, ONCOA and the Oneida Business Committee.

A very special thank you to "Santa" who made an appearance prior to the meal and of course, Doxbee's for everything they did in preparing the meal and hosting the event.

Again, thank you to everyone and I hope you have a very Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Red Cliff Chippewa to open park to public

BAYFIELD, Wis. (AP) – A Wisconsin tribe will become the first in the nation to open tribal land to the public, giving visitors a chance to enjoy nearly 89 acres of pristine forestland along the coast of Lake Superior.

The Red Cliff Chippewa are creating Frog Bay Tribal National Park, an area flush with towering trees _ hemlock, white pine, white spruce, balsam fir, yellow birch and white cedar. The park is expected to open in August.

"This is a rare gem," said Chad Abel, the tribe's administrator of natural resources.

The National Park Service says there are no other parks that are tribally owned or controlled by tribes that are open to the public, according to a Milwaukee Journal Sentinel report (http://bit.ly/udW6KO).

The tribe is obligated to open the land to the public since taxpayer money helped acquire it.

A Madison couple used to own the property. But David and Marjorie Johnson, who are in their 90s, decided to sell the parcel to the tribe for half its appraised value of $950,000, said Ellen Kwiatkowski, the executive director of local land trust Bayfield Regional Conservancy Inc

"They certainly could have held out for more money, but he was willing to sell it for half the value," she told The Associated Press. "They wanted to see it in some form of conservation ownership so it would be protected."

To pay for the land, the tribe received a $488,000 grant from the federal Coastal and Estuarine Land Conservation Program, Kwiatkowski said. The money covers the land, closing costs and other expenses, with a little left over to pay for trail development and a sign.

One requirement for accepting money from the CELP program is that the land be open to the public, she told AP.

The parcel offers views of the Apostle Islands, as well as the opportunity to enjoy boreal forest. Once common, the forests were largely decimated by logging in the last century, leaving just a few remnants along Lake Superior and eastern Door County.

Visitors to the Red Cliff park will be able to hear the songs of nearly 90 species of birds. Other local inhabitants include bobcats, bears, deer, wolves and beaver.

Kwiatkowski said her conservancy is trying to balance two competing concerns on the land: giving people access to nature's beauty so they're more inclined to protect it, and minimizing the damage that visitors can cause to the sensitive regions.

"Certainly you don't want to destroy what you're trying to protect," she said.

To that end, the parking area will only have room for about a half-dozen cars, she said, and people will have to walk to the one-quarter mile stretch of sand beach. Trails will be comfortable but compact, and motor vehicles such as all-terrain vehicles and snowmobiles will be banned, she said.

Red Cliff and the Apostle Islands are considered the hub of Ojibwe culture. But the 14,000-acre reservation, established in 1863, was distributed in parcels to tribal members by 1896 and became fragmented as original members lost properties.

Today, the tribe and its members hold 8,000 acres within the reservation that stretches for 14 miles around the top of the Bayfield peninsula.

Red Cliff Chippewa traditionally fished and harvested wild rice from the bays, and gathered medicinal plants, nuts, berries and other plants from forests. That's why the tribal members appreciate the property being returned to Red Cliff ownership, Abel said.

"These shoreline areas were cherished by the tribe," he said.

Searching for family ties in Wisconsin

By Yvonne Kaquatosh

Chad Smith

Searching for a long lost relative can be difficult at best if you have little information to go on. Compound that with a very common last name of a father whom you barely remember as a child and you have the makings of a daunting task that deserves resolution.

Chad Smith was only 4 years old when his father passed away.

Chad's father, Ronald Chester Smith, was a member of the Oneida tribe. He was born on April 28, 1940. Chad's grandparents were Chester Robert Smith and Emaline Smith.

"I have been searching for my fathers family for the last couple of years off and on. With the limited information I had (only his name) I did not have much success," explained Chad.

"He married my mother Linda (Durrant) when she was 18 and (they) moved away to Minnesota," said Chad. His parents had three boys together, his oldest brother Justin, 33, Chad, 28, and Austin, 24.

Chad has never met any of his relatives on his fathers' side.

His mother, Linda passed away in 2009.

"I have a strong desire to connect to my family. I have no family pictures of my father or grandparents," explained Chad.

"I have always dreamed of connecting with my family and learning about my heritage even if only to obtain a picture of him (his father)", and added, "I have been told I look a lot like him."

There is another reason he would like to reconnect with his Oneida relative's, Chad is getting married in June of 2012. It is his desire to have relatives on his side of the family to join him on this special occasion.

Chad resides in White Bear Lake, MN

If you have any information that may lead Chad closer to finding long lost relatives on his father's side of the family, you may email him at: chad.e.smith2002@gmail.com

If you do not have access to email, you can contact me direct at: 920.496.7317 and I will relay the message to Chad.

Pope approves 2 women with NY ties for sainthood

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) – Two women with strong ties to upstate New York are among seven new saints approved by Pope Benedict XVI.

That puts the Blessed Marianne Cope and the Blessed Kateri Tekakwitha on track to be canonized next year.

Cope was a Syracuse Franciscan sister who cared for leprosy patients in Hawaii in the late 1880s. She'd previously taught and helped establish the first two hospitals in central New York in the 1860s.

Tekakwitha was a Native American baptized in 1676 in the Mohawk Valley. She fled to a mission in Canada after being scorned and threatened in her home village near what is now the village of Fonda.

Benedict signed decrees Monday approving miracles attributed to the intercession of the women and five others, the last obstacle to their canonizations.

State appeals Mukwonago nickname ruling

MADISON, WI. (AP) – The state is appealing a Waukesha County court ruling which allows Mukwonago (muk-WAH'-nah-goh) High School to keep its Indians nickname and logo.

Judge Donald Hassin ruled in September that the state's effort to strip the school of its Indians name was unconstitutional. The state Department of Public Instruction ruled last year the nickname and mascot perpetuated stereotypes of American Indians and is discriminatory. The district was given a year to drop the Indians mascot. The school district did not and Hassin ruled the department's administrative hearing on the case was unfair.

The Journal Sentinel says at least three other school districts have had administrative hearings on their nicknames.

Echo Hawk Issues Decisions on Two Tribal Gaming Applications

WASHINGTON – Assistant Secretary-Indian Affairs Larry Echo Hawk today took action on two tribal gaming applications from tribes in Michigan and New York.

The Assistant Secretary approved a proposed gaming facility in Marquette County, Mich., determining it would be in the best interest of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community and would not be detrimental to the surrounding community.

"I undertook a careful and thorough review of the Keweenaw Bay Indian Community's application. The tribe's application satisfies the rigorous standards contained in the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act and our regulations," Echo Hawk said. "The tribe demonstrated that it has a significant historical connection to the proposed gaming site, and its proposal to move an existing gaming facility closer to its reservation has strong support from the local community."

The Assistant Secretary also dismissed a gaming application submitted by the Cayuga Nation of New York for the acquisition of land in trust for gaming purposes in Seneca County, N.Y., returning the application to the tribe. The tribe's application was incomplete, and did not address all of the requirements contained in the Department's regulations. The Department has removed the application from consideration, although the tribe can submit a new application at a time when it is prepared to address all of the relevant factors in the regulations.

The Keweenaw Bay Indian Community is located in Baraga County, Mich., and has approximately 3,310 members. It has more than 6,000 acres of existing trust lands on its reservation in the state's Upper Peninsula. The tribe has been operating and regulating a class III gaming facility in Marquette County, about 90 miles from its headquarters, since at least 2000. The tribe is proposing to relocate this existing facility to a new location within Marquette County, on an 80-acre parcel at the site of the former Marquette County Airport. The new site is 18 miles closer to the tribe's reservation than its existing facility. Under a 2000 settlement agreement with the state of Michigan, the tribe has agreed to close its existing off-reservation gaming facility if its proposal receives final approval and it begins gaming activities on the new site.

The Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (IGRA) prohibits Indian gaming on lands acquired in trust after the law's enactment in 1988, unless one of three explicitly crafted exceptions applies. The Keweenaw Bay Indian Community submitted its application under IGRA's "Secretarial Determination" exception, which requires the Secretary to determine the proposed gaming establishment is in the best interest of the tribe and its citizens, and would not be detrimental to the surrounding community. The governor of Michigan must concur in this determination before the land can be acquired in trust for the tribe for gaming.

Under IGRA, the governor of Michigan has one year to concur in the Assistant Secretary's determination. If the governor does not concur in the Assistant Secretary's determination, then the tribe may not conduct gaming on the proposed site.

Understanding Credit: Saves Money & Creates Opportunities

There are a number of ways to save your money and put it back into your pocket book. One way is to have a better understanding of how to create good financial credit, manage that credit, and maintaining a good credit history. Having a better understanding of financial credit will result in you saving hundreds if not thousands as you borrow money to meet life's needs and wants.

Places like "buy here/pay here" car lots, payday loans, title loans, and high interest credit card accounts is costing Oneida tribal member hundreds and thousands of dollars each year. As money is being spent on high interest rates the result is Oneida members having less money available to pay rent, feed families, and meet the overall expenses of life.

Trying to understand credit can feel intimidating and confusing. Oneida Housing Authority (OHA) has put together a two part informational workshop in effort to help Oneida members improve their understanding of financial credit. Participating in a workshop such as this can provide members with the information necessary to start saving money and having more money available for other aspects of their lives.

Financial credit is not just about borrowing money from a bank. Financial credit impacts opportunities and costs related to; car loans, home loans, home repair loans, rental housing, employment, insurance, etc. Having an improved understanding of financial credit is a valuable investment into your family's future. Your gained knowledge is something you can hand down to your children, as financial credit will one day impact their opportunities as well.

If you are interested in starting off a new year with developing a better understanding of financial credit, how to put money back in your pocket, and create better credit related opportunities for you and your family, please contact Comprehensive Housing Coordinator, Scott Denny at 920-869-6193, and take part in the Understanding Credit Workshop offered by OHA.

Space is limited. Please sign up today.

Justice Dept.: Seattle police used excessive force

By Donna Gordon Blankinship
Associated Press

SEATTLE ~ Inadequate supervision and training have led Seattle police officers to grab weapons such as batons and flashlights too quickly and to escalate confrontations even when arresting people for minor offenses, the U.S. Justice Department said Friday.

The department launched an investigation last spring following the fatal shooting of a homeless Native American woodcarver and other reported uses of force against minority suspects. The probe was aimed at determining whether Seattle police have a "pattern or practice" of violating civil rights or discriminatory policing, and if so, what they should do to improve.

Federal investigators determined Seattle police have engaged in excessive force that violated federal law and the Constitution. They did not find discriminatory policing, but the report acknowledged that many community members believe the department does show bias.

"Our findings should serve as a foundation to reform the police department and to help restore the community's confidence in fair, just and effective law enforcement. The problems within SPD have been present for many years and will take time to fix," said Thomas E. Perez, assistant attorney general for the civil rights division.

The Department of Justice is currently conducting 20 investigations of police department across the country and the use of force is a prominent issue in most of them, Perez said.

He was optimistic about Seattle's chances of improving, based on his experience in other cities. He mentioned Los Angeles as an example of a city that had much worse policing problems than Seattle 12 years ago and has since been transformed.

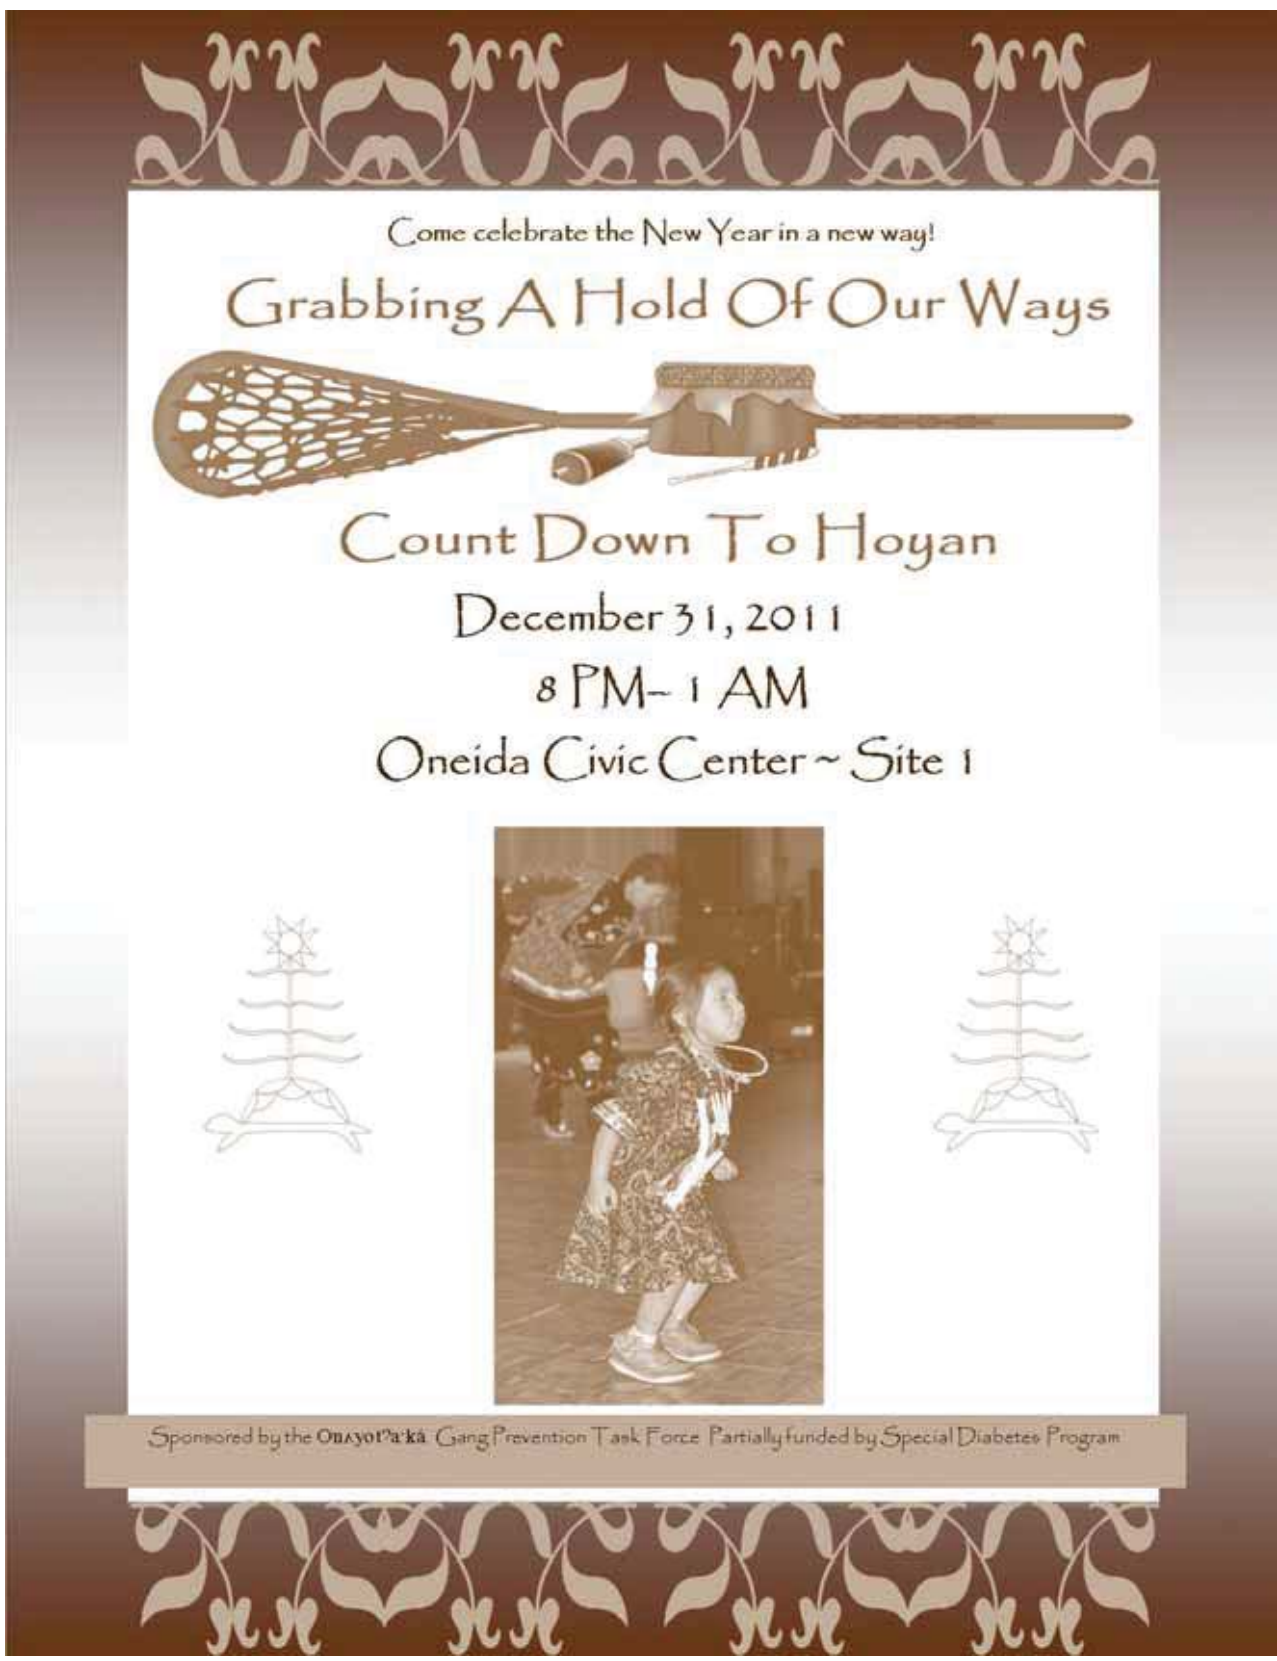
In interviews and a department-wide email, Seattle Police Chief John Diaz disputed the findings of the Justice Department report.

"I want to make this clear," Diaz said during an interview with The Seattle Times. "The department is not broken."

Seattle Mayor Mike McGinn said the police department has already started making reforms in response to the issues raised in the report. The public is concerned about use of force and possible bias in the police force, McGinn acknowledged, adding that the police chief and his officers take those concerns very seriously.

"We will be looking closely at the specifics the Department of Justice has raised and how we can have the best possible police force," he said

The American Civil Liberties Union of Washington and 34 other community groups called for the inquiry after a Seattle officer shot and killed the woodcarver, John T. Williams, in 2010.



Video from Officer Ian Birk's patrol car showed Williams crossing the street holding a piece of wood and a small knife, and Birk exiting the vehicle to pursue him. Off camera, Birk quickly shouted three times for Williams to drop the knife, then fired five shots. The knife was found folded at the scene, but Birk later maintained Williams had threatened him.

Birk resigned from the force but was not charged. A review board found the shooting unjustified.

Recycle It: Your Christmas Tree

Submitted by
Amy Spears

So Christmas is over, now what should be done with the Christmas tree? Did you know you can "recycle" your tree? There are many uses for your undecorated tree after the holiday season ends. Here are a few ideas:

1. For the Birds: "Decorate" your tree with edible treats for birds and other wildlife. String your tree with garland made from popcorn, dried fruit, non-salted shelled peanuts; hang some fruit slices such as apple and citrus; hang some stale bread, bagels or plain cake donuts (leftover Hoyan donuts anyone?); and make pinecone bird feeders or suet feeders to hang on the tree. Once you have all of your decorations prepared, place your tree outside of your house in view from a window, decorate your tree and enjoy watching the birds, chipmunks and squirrels devour your creation.

2. Shelter Me: Prop your tree against your garage, a fence or some other area in your yard to provide a sheltered refuge for birds and other wildlife during the bitter chill of winter. Once the warmer months of spring arrive, you can chip the tree or take it to a community compost site.

3. If You Build it They Will Come: Turn your tree into a bird feeder. Remove the branches and cut the trunk into 10-12" lengths. Drill 5-10 ¾" holes around the trunk. Fill the holes with a mixture of suet and birdseed. Screw an eyebolt into the top to hang in your yard. You could even use pieces of the branches to make perches if you are so inclined.

4. Mulch it: If you have access to a chipper, use it to turn your tree into mulch for your flower or garden bed.

5. Compost it: Take it to your local community compost center for reuse. Many times communities will use your trees for mulch, compost, or even for shoreland protection. Some communities use Christmas trees to make effective sand and soil erosion barriers, especially for lake and river shoreline stabilization and river delta sedimentation management.

The Oneida Community Compost Center is located at N8047 County Road U. Call 920-869-6500 or 920-869-4549 for hours and information. Any questions? Contact Amy Spears at 869-4549.

Notice of Availablity

Project Description:
The Oneida Tribe of Indians of Wisconsin is proposing to develop a One-Stop Gas Station and Convenience Store on a 2.5 acre site at 501 Packerland Drive. The project is proposed to alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts related to the 2012 closure of the Mason Street Bridge (part of WI DOT's State Highway 41 improvement). The site is a prime retail location based upon traffic flows in west Green Bay.

A draft environmental assessment (EA) has been prepared regarding the proposed action in compliance with the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The draft EA contains project information, effected environment, project alternatives and consultation letters.

Comments were requested from the US Fish and Wildlife Service regarding possible impacts to threatened and endangered species, and from the Oneida Cultural Heritage Officer. No significant impacts to these resources are anticipated and recommendations from these sources will be followed.

Need for Project:
To help alleviate the anticipated negative financial impacts resulting from closure of the Mason Street Bridge related to State Highway 41 improvement. Development will provide jobs, and it will make use of an existing property that is currently vacant.

Project Alternatives:
This site was chosen based on local traffic flows in west Green Bay. This site is currently vacant and is owned by the tribe. The no-action alternative would not address the potential loss of revenue and would not provide jobs in the local community.

Comments & Availability:
Interested parties can obtain copies of the draft EA from Oneida Environmental, Health & Safety Division at N7332 Water Circle Place, P.O. Box 365, Oneida WI. 543155.

Annual Oneida Nation Museum Art Sale

By Jaleesa Caldwell
Thunderhawk Times

Students in ONHS Art Teacher Becky Anderson's classes displayed their art work at the Oneida Nation Museum again this year.

In association with that display, student's work was available for bids online.

The theme of the artwork had to be Iroquois-related.

According to the museum staff, "Each year, the Oneida Nation Museum showcases artworks done by Oneida students at the high school level. This event helps to encourage the talents and creativity of our young artists. It also provides the students with the opportunity to learn more about Oneida culture and traditions."

Pieces sold on average for between $10 to $75.

Anderson times the event each year so that students can pick up a little cash money for Christmas and people who buy the artwork can get themselves some original pieces of art.

Anderson said she was happy with this year's sale. "I want to thank the museum and art buyers for their support of our art program at the high school. The students involved and patrons are on the museum website as well as photos of the art work. Thanks."

The artwork and the bidders can be viewed at http://www.oneidanation.org/museum.

Bowled A 300?

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

December 11 fell on a Sunday this year, but not just any Sunday. It was the Sunday ONHS senior Anthony Cornelius bowled a 300.

It was "traveling league" Sunday, and Anthony was doing his regular routine bowling. However, he switched up his usual pattern by bowling a perfect game.

"I've gotten up to 8 [strikes] in a row, and blown it."

So when the tenth frame came around he could really feel the pressure.

"After you bowl your tenth strike in a row, everyone claps and you become aware that everyone's watching," Anthony said.

He said it wasn't until the tenth frame that he actually realized how close he was to his perfect game.

After conquering two more strikes, he ended his game perfectly.

After that, he was able to celebrate his accomplishment, even earning himself mention in the Green Bay Press Gazette.

A Bear Fan in Green Bay

By Denis Gullickson
Thunderhawk Times Advisor

By the time you read this, the game will be over. But a lot of Packers fans might ask, "What's it like to be a Bear fan living in Green Bay?"

According to ONHS sophomore Sheldon Skenandore, "It feels kind of weird, because you sometimes wonder, 'Are there other Bear fans around? Am I the only one?'"

Sheldon says he has been a fan of the Windy City footballers "since I was in fourth grade, because they started winning some games. They were a good team back then."

It's kind of a family thing, too, according to Sheldon. "My aunt's family, they're Packers fans. But my mom's side, we're Bears fans. We don't argue about it, but we do bet like a dollar sometimes on who is going to win."

"The Packers are doing really good so far," said Sheldon, "They've been winning thirteen games so far and they only lost one game. I think the Packers will go to the playoffs and get kicked out and the Bears are going to win the Super Bowl."

That means the Bears will have won the game at Lambeau Field on Christmas Day.

So, for Sheldon and the rest of the Bears fans, it's either the best Christmas present he could imagine or a lump of coal under his tree. This Packers fan is predicting the lump of coal.

"You're evil," Sheldon said.

True Packer Love

By Natasha Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

The Green Bay Packers are now 13-1 this season and 19-1 going back to last season. There seem to be a lot of Packers fans these days.

I interviewed Denis Gullickson, an author of two books on the Packers and our journalism teacher.

Denis' first book, "Before They Were the Packers," is a story of how the Packers started. His second Packers book is called "Vagabond Halfback" and it's a biography on Packer player Johnny Blood.

Denis said he has been a Packer fan since he was a kid. "My brothers and I used to fall asleep quizzing each other on players and their jersey numbers," he said.

When I asked him how many games he has gone to over the years, he said "at least fifty."

One thing I noticed is that Denis doesn't wear any Packer stuff like jerseys. I asked him why not. He said, "My Packer love is in my heart. There are a lot of other people wearing Green and Gold these days."

Denis is working on several other books, but he said the next book he will have out is about his stone cottage by Lakewood and the man who built it. He also wrote "The Monfils Conspiracy."

Restaurant Review - Qdoba's

By Noelle Metoxen
Thunderhawk Times

The other day I went to class with my mother in Milwaukee. On the way home we decided to stop at Qdoba's Mexican Grill for supper. Having been fairly new to this restaurant I wasn't sure what to order. I settled with the Craft Two meal, choosing triple cheese nachos, and chicken quesadilla. My mother ordered the Vegi Burrito. They have a line of fixings, so you can help choose what you'd like on your order, plus you can see how they cook it and put it together. The burritos are nicely packed, and rather large. We left there completely stuffed, with no room for more. The food was amazing, and they fix it just the way you like it. I enjoyed Qdoba very much.

Oneida Nation School System Nurse Retiring

By Natasha Stevens
Thunderhawk Times

Today, December 22nd, the school nurse of nineteen years at ONSS is retiring.

Yvonne Cornelius, daughter of Alice and Robert Schuyler, graduated from Seymour High 1967. She got her nursing degree from Fox Valley Tech, class of 1979.

Before being a nurse at the Oneida Nation School System she worked in a hospital in the medical surgical unit.

I asked Yvonne what the climax of her career was, she said "watching the kids grow up and even having their own children, get married, working, and going to college."

I also asked her what she will miss the most about her job and she told me "the kids! I think of them as my own" said Yvonne.

"Over the years, I've heard some extremely creative excuses for wanting to go home. I can write a book on it!" she joked.

Advice Yvonne would give to someone looking to a nursing career is "go for it! It's been a rewarding career!"

Yvonne said she "plans on enjoying life" in her retirement.

Thanks, Yvonne, for your dedication to the students of the Oneida Nation School System.

Baby's First Christmas

By Kayla Danforth
Thunderhawk Times

I am a junior at O.N.H.S. with a 5 month-old son. It's been a rough couple of months, but I must say they've been the most enjoyable ones I've had this year.

But this year is going to be his very first Christmas. I'm looking forward to seeing the smile on his face and the joy he always brings to me and my family.

I plan on getting him tons of toys and lots of clothes and other things he really needs. There are so many things I'd like to get for him and already have gotten him and I can't wait to see how he reacts.

I'm very thankful for my son and he deserves it all the best. This Christmas should be one of the best and one of the most memorable ever.

Catching Up on the Movies...

Puss in Boots

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

Puss in Boots is an animated family movie about the character, Puss in Boots, made famous in the Shrek movie. It tells of his adventure before he met Shrek and friends. This movie is a type of prequel.

The Shrek movies' animation get better and better each film.

This movie stars a group of actors and actresses that you would not normally see in a movie. It stars Antonio Banderas (Puss in Boots), Salma Hayek (Kitty Softpaws), and Zach Galifianakis (Humpty Alexander Dumpty).

The villains are Jack and Jill, voiced by Billy Bob Thornton and Amy Sedaris. Jack and Jill have the fabled magical beans that grow the beanstalk to the giant's castle where there is a goose who lays golden eggs. Puss in Boots, hesitantly, rejoins his former childhood friend Humpty Alexander Dumpty and his associate Kitty Softpaws to steal the magical beans and reach eternal fame and riches. Puss in Boots is only doing so because he wants his home town, San Ricardo, to forgive for what happened 7 years ago.

As in all Shrek movies, there is its share of adult jokes, but no more than any other Shrek movies. This movie isn't just fun for children, it will entertain adults and even make all audiences laugh and enjoy this movie.

Another great Shrek film to add to the saga, and asks a question we all want to know, what is the next Shrek movie, and is it about Donkey (Eddie Murphy)?

A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas

By Táwet White
Thunderhawk Times

A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas is something you would expect from the Harold & Kumar saga, just with a Christmas twist.

First of all, the movie must be seen in 3D, 2D is not an option. There are so many references refer to the 3D of the movie, not to mention all the things that pop out would make you feel bummed that you didn't see it in 3D.

Well, this movie seems to take a weird angle as did their previous movies. Their first adventure began whilst trying to get food to at their favorite restaurant, White Castle. Their second adventure began by a misunderstanding on an airplane, sending them to Guantanamo Bay.

And now their third adventure begins when Harold's (John Cho) wife's (Paula Garcés) father (Danny Trejo) comes to visit with all of Maria's family. Her father, Mr. Perez, hates Harold for reasons unknown until Harold accidentally says, "It's not a big deal" about Mr. Perez's Christmas tree. One thing leads to another and Kumar comes to Harold's house (they have not seen each other in years.). Kumar inadvertently burns Mr. Perez's tree into nothing. Their adventure begins with trying to find a perfect tree to replace it without Mr. Perez's knowledge.

How Do You Want to Feel?

It seems for some elders to look back to think about their lives in the past.
What was good?
What was bad?
What could have been different?
The stories that made us laugh…that makes us cry.
People who left us but who are still here.
I found myself thinking about the past quite a bit.
But then I brought myself to the present.
I brought myself to right now.
How do I want to feel right now?
Now, is the most important time in my life.
The rest is history and I cannot do anything about it
Except to learn from it and improve on it.
Now, spiritually…I am Oneida and….Life is good!

Oneida Elder Services will be having "AARP Drivers Safety Program" Next spring in May, 2012

"AARP Driver Safety Program" is a refresher driving course designed for older adults. One learns how to make driving safer, more comfortable, and more worry-free for one's self, the family who loves you and others on the road who depend on your driving abilities. The course is provided by AARP and is conducted by certified volunteer instructors.

The class runs for one/ four hour session, focusing on problems unique to older drivers. These include physical changes in eyesight, hearing, and reaction time which normally happen as people age. The instructors lead participants through a review of basic laws and patterns that may have changed since older drivers got their first license.

The goal of the program is to keep older drivers behind the wheel longer and more safely. It is difficult for the average driver to keep up with changes in traffic and related driving situations unless the individual takes a driving improvement course such as this. One example would be the additions of many "Round-Abouts". Some insurance companies may give a discount on insurance premiums for those taking the course. No tests are involved. The course is conducted in a classroom setting and there are no behind the wheel tests.

Oneida Community Integrated Food Systems

Buying Local! Buying Oneida!

It is important to know where your food comes from and the Oneida Nation Farm uses sustainable and best management practices, new plant varieties, and fertilizers that can double the yields of major crops. That is why education is of extreme importance to the folks at the Oneida Nation Farm who are concerned for the Tribal members to understand what is at stake.

Cash Crop Sales is the largest revenue source for the Farm, but also known for the high quality crops that are produced, sold to local grain markets and local dairies. Oneida Nation Farms is proud to be a team player with Oneida Tribe of Indians to be known as one of the largest Agriculture Cash Crop Farms in North East Wisconsin.

The Oneida Nation Farm features are that our livestock are fed with our grown safe crops, free of antibiotic's, steroids, hormones and animal byproducts but also continues to implement a growing herd of "Point-of-Origin" cow-calf pasture, a beef feedlot, and mix forage pastured and feed supplemented Bison herd.

The Farm has approximately 450 - 500 head of Black Angus cattle, with about 220 plus cow/calf pairs which is used to stock their beef feedlots. Selecting livestock genetics increases the amount of meat that animals produce. The cow/calf operation works like this: about 6-7 months of the year, the beef cows will be grazing in a 237.4 acre pasture to feed along with a couple of excellent breeding bulls. These cows/bulls are supplemented with mineral, vitamins and a total mix ration of hay and some corn.

When a beef cow is at about 2 years of age, she will give birth, nurses her calf until 6-8 months of age. To make sure we have a healthy beef calf, it also receives a free choice of a grain mix supplement, vitamins and minerals.

When it is time to sort off the calves from the mom, the male and some female go to the comfortable feedlot area and are raised for finished beef sales for our valuable beef customers.

The other selected female calves are then raised as cows for reproduction of the herd and should around the age of two give birth, which is increasing the point of origin beef herd.

Normally a beef cow can give birth up to 8-10 calves in her lifetime. But to keep our herd growing, at times the Farm will need to purchase some replacement beef cows to give birth at Oneida Nation Farms.

The Farm can tell you exactly where that meat came from, which is now being called 'Point of Origin' and ads much value to your products.

Thank you to all our customers for Buying Local, Buying Oneida!

Holiday food safety

The holidays are a time of family, friends, and a festival of FOOD! With all of the hustle, bustle, and excitement of the celebrations, it's easy to neglect the most important ingredient in any holiday treat-food safety. Foodborne illness can easily ruin anyone's holiday, and can quickly turn holiday cheer and merriment into chaos and misery.

The most common symptoms of a foodborne illness are vomiting, diarrhea, fatigue, and other flu-like symptoms. These symptoms can appear anywhere from a few hours to a few days after the tainted food is consumed.

No one is immune from contracting a foodborne illness. However there are several groups of people that are more at risk. Extra precaution should be taken when preparing food for these groups:

1. Children
2. Elderly
3. Sick individuals
4. Pregnant women
5. Individuals with weakened or suppressed immune systems (i.e. someone HIV positive)

Foodborne illness occurs when an individual consumes a food that is tainted with bacteria, viruses, parasites, or some other contaminant. The following food safety handling practices should be followed in an effort to prevent illness:

1. Proper Cleaning and Sanitizing

- All food contact surfaces should be sanitized before and after they are used. Hot soapy water is sufficient. Otherwise, a chemical sanitizer is fine too, as long as manufacturer directions are properly followed.
- ANY time raw meats are handled or prepared, the food contact surfaces used must be sanitized (i.e. the cutting board and knife used to cut raw chicken breasts.)

2. Control of Time and Temperature

- Cook meats to the following required internal cooking temperatures in order to kill bacteria:
  - o Poultry and Stuffed Meats – 165
  - o Ground and Injected Meat – 155
  - o Fish and Steaks/Chops (Beef or Pork) – 145
- Potentially hazardous foods (i.e. proteins such as dairy, meats, seafood, tofu; sprouts, heat treated plant foods, etc.) need to be MAINTAINED at either 135 or higher, or 41 or lower. This being said, food should NEVER be allowed to sit at room temperature for very long.
- Leftovers need to be reheated to 165 or higher.
- NEVER thaw your foods at room temperature. The following methods are considered safe:
  - o In a refrigerator
  - o Submerged under cool running water
  - o In a microwave if the food will be cooked immediately
  - o As part of the cooking process

3. Prevent Cross Contamination

- Wrap or cover food when storing it.
- Store raw meats, seafood, and poultry below all other foods in the refrigerator.

4. Practice Good Personal Hygiene

- Wash hands with warm soapy water before and after any food preparation. Hands should be scrubbed for 10-15 seconds. Hands should also be washed after:
  - o Handling raw meats
  - o Using the restroom
  - o Touching your hair, face, or body
  - o Sneezing or coughing
  - o Handling chemicals

Please take the time to follow these safe food handling practices in an effort to ensure a healthy and enjoyable holiday for your friends and family!

For any questions or concern regarding food safety or foodborne illness, please contact Vanessa Miller at 920-869-4553.

Cornelius retires after 32 years in nursing profession

Other OCHC employees also recognized for years of service

By Yvonne Kaquatosh
Kalihwisaks

After 32 years in the nursing field, December 23 was the last day of work for Yvonne Cornelius. She was hired by the Oneida Health Center 19 years ago, January 1992. She was relocated to the Norbert Hill Center as the school nurse in the fall of 1992, where she has been since. Her plans to retire were pushed up due to health reasons that developed this past August. The illness, which has since then been corrected, made her realize that she would like to retire early to enjoy life.

"I've enjoyed my service here," said Cornelius upon receiving a Pendleton blanket from Debbie Danforth, Oneida Health Administrator. Cornelius was also proud of the fact that she was able to learn her Oneida language while employed with the tribe.

Other employees who were recognized for their years of service include:

- Diane Hernandez, 20 years.
- Mary Webster and Carrie Quatsoe, 10 yrs. with the lab department
- Louetta Fowler, 3 yrs.

Kali photos/Yvonne Kaquatosh

Above, Debbie Danforth drapes a pendleton blanket around the shoulders of retiree Yvonne Cornelius after a 32 career in the nursing, 19 years of which as the Oneida school nurse. Right, Diane Hernandez receives a recognition award for 20 years of service at the Oneida Health Center from her supervisor.

It was also noted by Danforth that Hernandez has completed her Bachelors Degree and is due to complete her Masters Degree in April 2012.

The employees were recognized in a staff meeting held on Thursday, December 15.

Oneida is Close to Winning the Blood Challenge

The Oneida Nation has entered into a blood challenge with Humana. On December 8, 2011, Humana hosted their blood drive and 66 people gave blood. That will potentially save around 200 lives. So, now its Oneidas turn on January 6, 2012. As of December 26, a total of 54 people had signed up for appointments at the Fitness Center. "This is so exciting, seeing the Oneida average blood drive is 35 people." stated Rita Kamps, Employee Health.

You can help Oneida beat Humana by signing up to give blood at the Oneida Fitness Center from 8AM-2PM on January 6, 2012. The Fitness Center is making appointments, call 490-3730. The first 60 people to sign up will receive a goodie bag. If you are diabetic you can give blood.

Oneida Health Center Pharmacy for Prescriptions:

The Oneida Pharmacy will now require a legal I.D. at the time of registration in the pharmacy and when the patient or representative picks up a prescription.

This process was initiated on January 1, 2011 requiring the patient or their representative show a legal form of identification (Tribal I.D. or Drivers License) at the time of registration in the pharmacy, to pick up prescriptions.

Oneida Pharmacy will now require each patient or their designated representative present a legal Identification to PICK UP prescriptions.

Please plan ahead to avoid delays when picking up prescriptions at Oneida Pharmacy.

Note: The busiest time for pick-up for prescriptions is Friday afternoons. Please avoid these times, if possible to avoid a delay in service and to avoid long lines. This will help you and everyone to keep the prescription pick up smooth and efficient.

Thank You for your help and cooperation.

JOIN US FOR A HOYAN CELEBRATION!

Hoyan is an Oneida tradition celebrating the New Year. For decades on New Year's Day, Oneida children walked through the reservation with paper bags collecting doughnuts from friends and families. As the children approached each home they shouted, Hoyan! Whoever answered the door came with a plate a doughnuts and dropped a doughnut into the paper bags.

Some say the doughnut shaped like a circle symbolizes a new beginning, as in the circle of life. Saying Hoyan is like saying Happy New Year. It's a time for reconnecting with family and friends to celebrate the start of another new year. Hoyan!
